Area motorists will be paying an average additional 2.8 cents per gallon today as the Regional Transportation Authority's 5 per cent gasoline tax goes into effect.

The long-delayed, controversial tax is expected to generate $50 million for the remaining seven months of the RTA's 1977-78 fiscal year, with most of that sum coming from Cook County. The gas tax revenue will provide about 22 per cent of the RTA's annual budget.

More than 70 per cent of the $50 million in tax revenue will be collected in Cook County and the bulk of those funds will go to the financially strapped Chicago Transit Authority.

ALTHOUGH LAST ditch efforts to halt the tax failed in two separate cases this week in Cook and McHenry County circuit courts, area gasoline dealers have threatened to stymie the tax collection process.

Jim Brawar, a spokesman for the Illinois Service Station Operators Assn., which represents 400 stations in the Chicago metropolitan area, called the tax "discriminatory and unconstitutional." He said some dealers have threatened to close to avoid collecting the tax, others have said the tax should be collected and not paid to the state to force legal action. Others have advocated not collecting the tax at all.

Brawar said some dealers have told the association they have not received the forms necessary for bookkeeping.

"If they're going to implement this, it should be on a flat amount," Brawar said. "Now, every time the wholesale price of gasoline changes, the dealer will have to change all his pump prices. The dealers may get accused of ripoffs if there are mistakes in calculations."

HOURS BEFORE THE tax was to take effect, area gas station managers said the levy may hurt their businesses, already plagued by high prices.

"We've already had a slack in our business in the last month because of high prices, but this ruling may make it worse," said James Lima, assistant manager of the Algonquin & Wilke Standard Station, 1801 Algonquin Rd., Rolling Meadows. "It's ridiculous. Our premium alone, will be selling for 80 cents."

Randy Bresinger, assistant manager of George's Mobil Service Center, 795 Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, said the tax may "upset a balance" in the gasoline business.

"I see it doing two things," he said. "First, more and more people will be buying gas at mini-pumps because full-service prices will be so high. Second, people probably will either be buying less gas or buying more small cars than ever before."

LIKE SEVERAL Northwest suburban station managers, Bresinger said customers were filling their tanks Wednesday to beat the rush of increasing prices.

'Adult club' may become test for new porn law

by BILL HILL

For $20 and a minimum tip of $10, you can spend a half-hour with a nude model in a private room.

That's what the girl on the phone said, which is a big surprise to Herman and Frank Mueller, who leased the little brick building at Rand and Arlington Heights roads to two men who said they wanted to open a gun repair shop.

Indications Wednesday were that the business called Interlude, located in a former fruit and vegetable stand, may become the first test case for Cook County's new antiporonography law.

The law prohibits adult entertainment businesses from being located within 1,000 feet of residential areas.

Interlude is the third such club to open in the unincorporated patches of the Northwest suburbs in recent months, but it is the first to open since the county's law regulating adult entertainment businesses was passed Oct. 3.

THE SIGN on the outside of the building leased to Brad Pride and Michael Horvath for $600 a month says that Interlude is for adults only.

Interlude has been in business for about two weeks and has been raided once on prostitution charges by the vice squad of the Cook County Sheriff's Police. Three men, including Pride and Horvath, were arrested for keeping a house of prostitution and a 24-year-old Chicago woman was charged with prostitution. They are scheduled to appear Dec 19 in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

The raid at Interlude last week came after an undercover agent paid a $5 membership fee and $15 admission to gain entry, and $60 to Janice M. Cloutier for sexual intercourse, sheriff's police said.

"We anticipate making more arrests in there," said Sgt. Clark Buckendahl, vice squad field commander, "but people running these places get quite tricky.

THE NEW RTA gas tax represents 22 per cent of the transit district's total revenue for 1977-78. The chart shows that Chicago gas sales will contribute 34 cents to every gas tax dollar collected while surburban motorists will contribute 37.5 cents. The financially strapped Chicago Transit Authority, however, will receive 43 cents of every tax dollar collected and suburban Cook County transit services will get 33.9 cents.

Carter promises 'substantial' tax cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Wednesday promised to propose "substantial" tax reductions for Americans in 1978 but major tax reforms next year appeared unlikely.

Administration officials have predicted the President will propose a $20 billion to $22 billion tax cut next year to be divided one-third for business and two-thirds for individuals.

Carter told a press conference he has received assurances Democratic leaders in Congress will act quickly to enact tax cuts after he proposes them early next year.

He said he wants to cut taxes quickly to offset the effects of tax increases he expects this year — including higher Social Security taxes and energy taxes to discourage consumption.

CARTER SAID no final decisions can be made until he sees the final legislation for the Social Security and energy tax increases.

"I would hope that all those changes in the law that bring about any tax increase will be concluded in 1977, and in 1978 there will be substantial tax reductions and combined with that will be an adequate proposal for tax reform," Carter said.

Both administration and congressional tax planners agree there probably will be a handful of modest changes in the present tax code.

HOWEVER THE more difficult, complex issues of tax reform would be delayed, probably until 1979.

Carter announced without elaboration: "Some of the more controversial items on tax reform that have been proposed to me that would be very time consuming and have very little monetary significance might be delayed until later on because I feel that it's necessary to expedite the effectiveness of substantial tax reduction."

SENATE MAJORITY Leader Robert Byrd and House Speaker Thomas O'Neill have told the President major tax reform has no chance in Congress in 1978, and they fear fast action on tax cuts would be jeopardized if the House and Senate become entangled in complex tax reform issues.

Financial experts suggested among the "controversial items" Carter had in mind were a move to eliminate preferential tax treatment of capital gains and an effort to reduce the so-called "double taxation" of corporate profits and dividends.

Both originally were favored by the administration but have now, apparently, been eliminated for 1978.

Republicans in Congress have been pushing their own plan for an across the board tax rate cut, giving some relief to everyone, particularly the middle-income class.

Foggy weather leaves travelers stuck at airport

by TOM VALEO

A thick fog that settled on the Northwest suburbs Wednesday snarled air traffic at O'Hare Airport, forcing several airlines to cancel all flights and causing delays for thousands of passengers.

The airlines managed to find rooms for most of the stranded passengers who wanted them.

"It's been tough, though," an Allegheny Airlines attendant said. "There's a doctor's convention in town."

The fog was caused by warm, wet air passing over the cold snow on the ground, a spokesman for the National Weather Service said. A winter storm watch also has been issued for northern Illinois today as a cold front over Minneapolis moves this way.

THE AIRLINES arranged for bus transportation to nearby cities for those passengers who had only a short distance to go.

One man about to board a bus for Kalamazoo, Mich., was satisfied with the alternative.

"It could've been worse," he said. "I could've been one of those who didn't even make it to O'Hare to get trapped."

The fog settled on the area in mid-afternoon, reducing visibility to one-eighth of a mile in some spots of the airport. Most arrivals were diverted to other airports in Des Moines, St.

Fog mires travelers at airport

Louis, Cleveland, Detroit and other cities, and those that did land were one to three hours late. At times, the number of landings was reduced to seven per hour at the world's busiest airport.

By evening, flights were becoming so backed up that American Airlines decided to cancel all flights until morning, when the fog was expected to lift.

"WE'VE CANCELED more as a convenience to our passengers," said T. G. Jackson, a flight supervisor. "Rather than keep postponing flights again and again, and having all these passengers just walking back and forth in the terminal waiting, we decided to just tell them there will be no more flights until morning so they can at least get a room and get some sleep."

Although those airlines that canceled flights worked hard to arrange accommodations there were a lot of disgruntled passengers standing in line Wednesday evening.

"They rerouted us here from Des Moines," said one woman bound for Connecticut. "We could've just stayed in Des Moines and slept there!"

Another man was annoyed by the confusion caused by the cancellations.

"It's just hurry up and wait everywhere you go," he said. "I should have stayed in Dallas."

John Lampinen

Byline report

Gail Mandel thrust her arm out and pointed a finger.

Her voice was bitter and accusing. And loud. She was not screaming really. Screams usually are characterized by subtle changes in inflection. Her voice was just loud.

She was angry.

"My kid is dead."

She said it repeatedly. It had been more than a week since Nov. 20, when her 19-year-old son, Bradly L. DeGree, was found shot and stabbed to death in a ditch on the edge of Kildeer.

AND ABOUT ALL she had to show for it was a headline.

"Shooting of man may be related to drugs: police," the headline said, and it as much as anything was what made Mrs. Mandel angry.

"You got a false piece of information," she said, loudly.

Her husband, Earl (Sonny) Mandel Jr., sat on the other end of the sofa. He was more subdued. He spoke softly, chose his words carefully and occasionally chided his wife to calm down.

But he was just as upset. The story quoted Louis Harceg, chief invstigator for the Lake County Sheriff's Dept., as saying, "We believe it's drug related."

"Nobody knows what this is about yet," Mandel said.

"He's dead," Mrs. Mandel interjected. "They can write anything they want."

She has children who go to Catholic schools, she added. Other students have been badgering them about their brother ever since they heard the news.

ONE OF HIS daughters, Mandel said, reads the paper every day. She likes to read. Can you imagine, he said, how the story affected her?

He lit a cigaret and smoked it slowly, leaning forward from his seat.

"There's no way that they (the police) know about this," he said. "If they know it's drug-related, why are they coming to us? If they knew what was coming off, they wouldn't come here and pump me ond a thousand of his friends for information."

Harceg, however, seems more convinced than ever that drugs played a part in the killing. Investigators have some solid suspects in the case, he said Wednesday, although there are still a number of possible motives.

"It is a drug-related thing, that much we have," Harceg said. "At this point, I can safely say we are dealing with a drug-related case."

But Brad hadn't been involved in drugs, Mrs. Mandel maintained, at least not in the last couple of years. He "smoked those cigarets of his," Mandel added, but he didn't use drugs.

Mandel went on to another part of the story, which referred to Brad as a "dropout."

THAT IS "BAD journalism," he said. Brad "quit" school. He looked around the room, and talked about his own experience with high school.

He quit high school himself in his second year, he said. He "quit"; he was not a "dropout and there's quite a bit of difference." Now, he runs a "multimillion dollar business." He is fairly well off.

"I live in Streamwood," he observed, "but I don't have to live in Streamwood."

Mandel pointed toward the hallway. He could go around the house and show all the trophies Brad had won. He was active in sports, he said. Football, basketball, baseball, you name it. He had a lot of friends in Streamwood, Mandel said, he was "well-liked."

"But you don't see that in the paper," Mrs. Mandel said.

BRAD, MANDEL said, didn't have a car. Often, he borrowed $2 or $5 from his mother to pay for gas for a friend or for something else. If he was dealing in drugs, Mandel questioned, why would he need to borrow money? Don't you make money when you sell drugs?

"Here's a kid who never had any money in his pocket," Mandel said, "and (they say) it's drug-related."

"They can write anything," Mrs. Mandel added, "but my kid is dead."

Three weeks ago, Brad had enrolled at Elgin Community College. Nobody suggested that to him. Nobody told him to. He wanted to take some night courses, and he was going to begin in January. In fact, Mandel said, the last time he saw him was when he had to go out to pick Brad up from the school.

"But you don't see that in the paper," he said.

"You don't see that in the paper," his wife echoed.

HE DISAPPEARED four days before his body was found. Mrs. Mandel said she knew when he disappeared that Brad was dead. He liked to take a couple of showers a day, and when he didn't come home for even that, she knew.

So when the police came to the door to say that Brad had been shot four times and his throat slashed as well, she knew even before they said anything.

"It was an animal who did this," she stated, and for the first time, her voice softened. "We don't know what he ever did to deserve this."

Mandel leaned forward and measured his words carefully.

"I don't know why," he said, "but I'm going to find out why, because I don't believe they had to kill him."

Their 14-year-old son walked through the living room, and Mrs. Mandel told him to stop. Not too long ago, he was named to the honor roll at school, Mandel said.

"But they don't put that in the paper."

PLO asks end to 'conspiracies'

Sadat vows to see talks through by United Press International

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat Wednesday lashed back at Arab critics of his peace initiative and vowed, "I will finish what I started." The PLO appealed to the Egyptian army to stop Sadat's "conspiracies."

The Soviet Union formally told Egypt it will not go to Cairo to discuss Middle East peace and Egypt replied that the Soviets were wasting an opportunity for peace.

Israel said it would not attend a separate U.N. peace conference but diplomatic sources said the Jewish state would halt further settlements in occupied Arab lands to help the cause of peace.

SADAT SAID in a speech in the Suez Canal city of Ismailia: "I will carry my peace call to the very end."

Defending his trip to Jerusalem, Sadat said, "I did what I did because I felt the weight of the responsibility.

"It would have been easier for me to stay in my place, talking and attempting to outbid (other Arab leaders) and leave the problem to my successor," Sadat said.

"But I felt that God will summon me to account if I did not work to spare future generations the ferocity of war," Sadat said. "Before meeting my God, I have to do my best for the sake of this country.

"I promise you that I will finish what I started in order to realize for our people a better future and for our future generations a more peaceful life," Sadat said.

"I PROMISE you that, God willing, I will perform the prayers of the next feast (of sacrifice) in the heart of Sinai."

In Damascus, Arabs opposed to Sadat's initiative and direct talks with Israel held a strategy session for their own summit in Tripoli, Libya, but two rival Palestinian groups squabbled over their anit-Sadat stand.

The hard-line Palestinian Rejection Front — so called because it rejects any negotiations of any kind with Israel — boycotted a Palestine Liberation Organization meeting, which was headed by PLO Chairman Yasser Hrafat.

The PLO issued a statement at the conclusion of a meeting of its Central Council calling on all Arabs to oppose Sadat's initiative.

THE PLO statement called on "the Egyptian people and army to reject conspiracies aimed at taking Egypt out of the Arab-Zionist struggle."

The PLO called Sadat's invitation of Israel to Cairo "a new danger to the Palestinian resistance and high treason to the Palestinian issue."

In Cairo, Soviet ambassador Vladimir Polyakov delivered in person to acting Foreign Minister Butros Ghali the formal Soviet rejection of an invitation by Sadat to attend preparatory talks in the Egyptian capital.

According to the sources, Ghali told the Soviet ambassador: "We are very sorry the Soviets are wasting this opportunity to take part in steps leading to a peace settlement."

"If you (the Soviet Union) are in favor of the Geneva conference, how can you refusue to take part in a conference summoned to make preparations for Geneva?" the sources said Ghali asked Polykov.

THE SOVIET rejection left Israel and the United States as the only countries specifically invited as prepared to attend the Cairo conference.

However, Romania indicated it will send a special envoy to attend the Cairo talks — the first Community nation to join the guest list.

Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu, who acted as informal messenger in arranging Sadat's visit to Jerusalem, will send his special assistant, Mircea Malita, as an observer to the Cairo meeting, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported from Bucharest.

Carter urges work to peace

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter urged other Arab nations Wednesday to follow Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's "historic breakthrough" and meet collectively or individually with Israel toward reaching a Middle East peace.

Carter said he expects the Israeli-Egypt peace meeting to begin in Cairo Dec. 13 and said the United States will be represented by Alfred Atherton, the State Department's top-ranking Middle East expert.

But a State Department spokesman said later that the meeting would start on Dec. 14, one day later than Carter estimated.

ALTHOUGH Syrian, Jordan, the Soviet Union and the Palestine Liberation Organization will not attend the talks, Carter said he does not anticipate or want a separate peace agreement between Israel and Egypt.

"In the past few days we have seen I believe an historic breakthrough inthe search for a permanent, lasting peace in the Middle East," Carter said in a nationally broadcast news conference.

"I believe that this is a move the whole world looks upon with great appreciation."

It was the first public statement Carter has made on the Middle East since Egypt announced plans for the Cairo conference last weekend, and he credited Egyptian President Anwar Sadat with "true leadership qualities."

He said there is still "a very viable hope" that Middle East nations eventually will reach a comprehensive peace settlement, but in the meantime, the United States would be happy to see any Arab power try individual talks with Israel.

STATE COMPTROLLER Michael Bakalis, right, announced in Springfield that he has chosen Richard Durbin, 33, to be his running mate in the 1978 gubernatorial election. Durbin, a Springfield attorney, ran Bakalis' political campaign in 1970 when Bakalis was elected state school superintendent.

Bakalis names Durbin as campaign running mate

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Bakalis Wednesday announced that attorney Richard Durbin, a virtual unknown outside central Illinois, will be his running mate in the race for governor.

Bakalis, on a statewide flyaround, said, "My choice of Dick Durbin is a result of careful evaluation of many potential candidates and extensive consultation with leaders of the state Democratic Party as well as with non-political state leadership."

Bakalis and Durbin, who lives in Springfield, stopped first in Chicago and followed that with news conferences in Springfield, Marion, Quad Cities and Rockford.

BAKALIS SAID Durbin, currently parliamentarian for state Senate President Thomas Hynes, D-Chicago, meets all three of his major criteria for lieutenant governor — that the candidate have the ability to serve as governor, share Bakalis' concept of the role and direction of government and be a vigorous campaigner.

As a lieutenant governor, Bakalis said, Durbin's experience makes him well equipped to be a liaison between the governor and the legislature, to help create a better business climate in the state and to act as a liaison to Congress on federal programs.

Both Durbin and Bakalis said the No. 2 post can be useful if vigorously administered.

"I believe that the office has been allowed to drift on an aimless course under the current administration" with Republican incumbent Lt. Gov. Dave O'Neal in the chair, Durbin said.

Bakalis said his choice of Durbin was influenced by downstate grumblings about the lack of downstate candidates on the Demcratic slate. But he said it was not the major reason Durbin was picked.

Durbin engineered Bakalis' first run for statewide office when Bakalis beat incumbent state School Superintendent Ray Page of Springfield in 1970. Bakalis then went on to win the comptroller's race last year.

Gas costs 2.8c a gallon more today

ferent car for a second fill-up," Bresinger said.

Station managers said they would wait until opening time today before increasing the prices on their pumps.

The new gas tax money is needed to offset threatened deficits in RTA operating costs, the biggest of which is the CTA which accounts ofr 77 per cent of the agency's operating subsidy costs.

The two-year tax is expected to generate some $80 million in a full year. It will end Oct. 31, 1979, if the RTA board does not vote to extend it.

The new tax will be the fourth surcharge on gasoline in Cook County, putting them at the highest in the nation. Motorists already pay 7.5 cents per gallon in state tax, 4 cents in federal tax and 1 cent in Cook County tax.

THE RTA ALSO receives funds from federal subsidies, state sales tax and motor vehicle registration.

RTA spokesman Wayne Dunham Wednesday said although most of the gas tax money collected in Cook County will be used to aid the CTA, suburban services will not be "shortchanged."

"The RTA board is committed to meeting the deficit of all the suburban bus systems and no suburban system will be shortchanged," Dunham said. He said commuter railroads have "purchase of service" agreements with the RTA and will benefit from the new tax.

The new tax also will be used to fund 40 new suburban bus lines, including two new commuter bus lines in Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows scheduled to begin Dec. 12, he said.

"One hundred per cent of the money will go to the county in which the tax is collected," Dunham said. "We'll have a fair amount of money to spend in the five outlying counties.

"In Cook County the bulk of the money will go to the CTA because the bulk of the service is the CTA," Dunham said. "It serves the city and many suburbs and has perhaps 80 per cent of the passengers."

DUNHAM SAID there are many variables which could affect how much the 5 per cent tax will generate, "the price of gas being the biggest." He said gasoline-buying habits could change because of the tax.

THE TAX WILL BE collected by the Illinois Dept. of Revenue and sent to the RTA periodically, Dunham said. The tax represents 22 per cent of the RTA's total 1977-78 revenue.

With the new tax, 61 per cent of the RTA's estimated fiscal 1978 expenditures of $237 million will go to the CTA; 31.5 per cent to suburban services, including commuter railroads; and 8.5 per cent for administrative costs and debt retirement.

But the suburbs will provide 45 per cent of the transit district's revenue through tax sources, while Chicago will provide 33 per cent and federal funding 22 per cent.

IN TWO COURT challenges to the tax this week, a McHenry County circuit court judge dismissed a suit filed by State Rep. Calvin Skinner, R-Crystal Lake, and Democratic senatorial hopeful Anthony R. Martin-Trigona, who was unsuccessful in his attempt to get a hearing on his request for a temporary injunction.

Martin-Trigona said he will continue to seek a temporary injunction preventing the RTA from enacting the tax until the Illinois Supreme Court rules on his suit challenging its legality.

MARTIN-TRIGONA failed even to get a hearing on his request for a temporary injunction to prevent the RTA from imposing the tax until the Illinois Supreme Court rules on his suit. Martin-Trigona has charged the tax was enacted improperly.

Park sorry U.S.-Korea ties sour

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Millionaire Tongsun Park is contrite over his role in strained relations between Washington and Seoul and may go to the United States to face questioning in the Korean bribery scandal, government sources said Wednesday.

The sources said there may be a breakthrough in the case by Christmas.

Park is the key figure in an investigation into alleged payoffs to congressmen and others in an attempt to promote pro-Korean policies in Washington.

The sources said Park, who had lived in the United States for 25 years and considered the country his second home, "felt sorry" that the scandal had harmed relations between Seoul and Washington.

"Should he change his mind and decide to go to the United States voluntarily, there is no reason why we should oppose it," one government source said.

As a lieutenant governor, Bakalis said, Durbin's experience makes him well equipped to be a liaison between the governor and the legislature, to help create a better business climate in the state and to act as a liaison to Congress on federal programs.

Both Durbin and Bakalis said the No. 2 post can be useful if vigorously administered.

"I believe that the office has been allowed to drift on an aimless course under the current administration" with Republican incumbent Lt. Gov. Dave O'Neal in the chair, Durbin said.

Bakalis said his choice of Durbin was influenced by downstate grumblings about the lack of downstate candidates on the Demcratic slate. But he said it was not the major reason Durbin was picked.

Durbin engineered Bakalis' first run for statewide office when Bakalis beat incumbent state School Superintendent Ray Page of Springfield in 1970. Bakalis then went on to win the comptroller's race last year.

Gas costs 2.8c a gallon more today

ferent car for a second fill-up," Bresinger said.

Station managers said they would wait until opening time today before increasing the prices on their pumps.

The new gas tax money is needed to offset threatened deficits in RTA operating costs, the biggest of which is the CTA which accounts ofr 77 per cent of the agency's operating subsidy costs.

The two-year tax is expected to generate some $80 million in a full year. It will end Oct. 31, 1979, if the RTA board does not vote to extend it.

The new tax will be the fourth surcharge on gasoline in Cook County, putting them at the highest in the nation. Motorists already pay 7.5 cents per gallon in state tax, 4 cents in federal tax and 1 cent in Cook County tax.

THE RTA ALSO receives funds from federal subsidies, state sales tax and motor vehicle registration.

RTA spokesman Wayne Dunham Wednesday said although most of the gas tax money collected in Cook County will be used to aid the CTA, suburban services will not be "shortchanged."

"The RTA board is committed to meeting the deficit of all the suburban bus systems and no suburban system will be shortchanged," Dunham said. He said commuter railroads have "purchase of service" agreements with the RTA and will benefit from the new tax.

The new tax also will be used to fund 40 new suburban bus lines, including two new commuter bus lines in Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows scheduled to begin Dec. 12, he said.

"One hundred per cent of the money will go to the county in which the tax is collected," Dunham said. "We'll have a fair amount of money to spend in the five outlying counties.

"In Cook County the bulk of the money will go to the CTA because the bulk of the service is the CTA," Dunham said. "It serves the city and many suburbs and has perhaps 80 per cent of the passengers."

DUNHAM SAID there are many variables which could affect how much the 5 per cent tax will generate, "the price of gas being the biggest." He said gasoline-buying habits could change because of the tax.

THE TAX WILL BE collected by the Illinois Dept. of Revenue and sent to the RTA periodically, Dunham said. The tax represents 22 per cent of the RTA's total 1977-78 revenue.

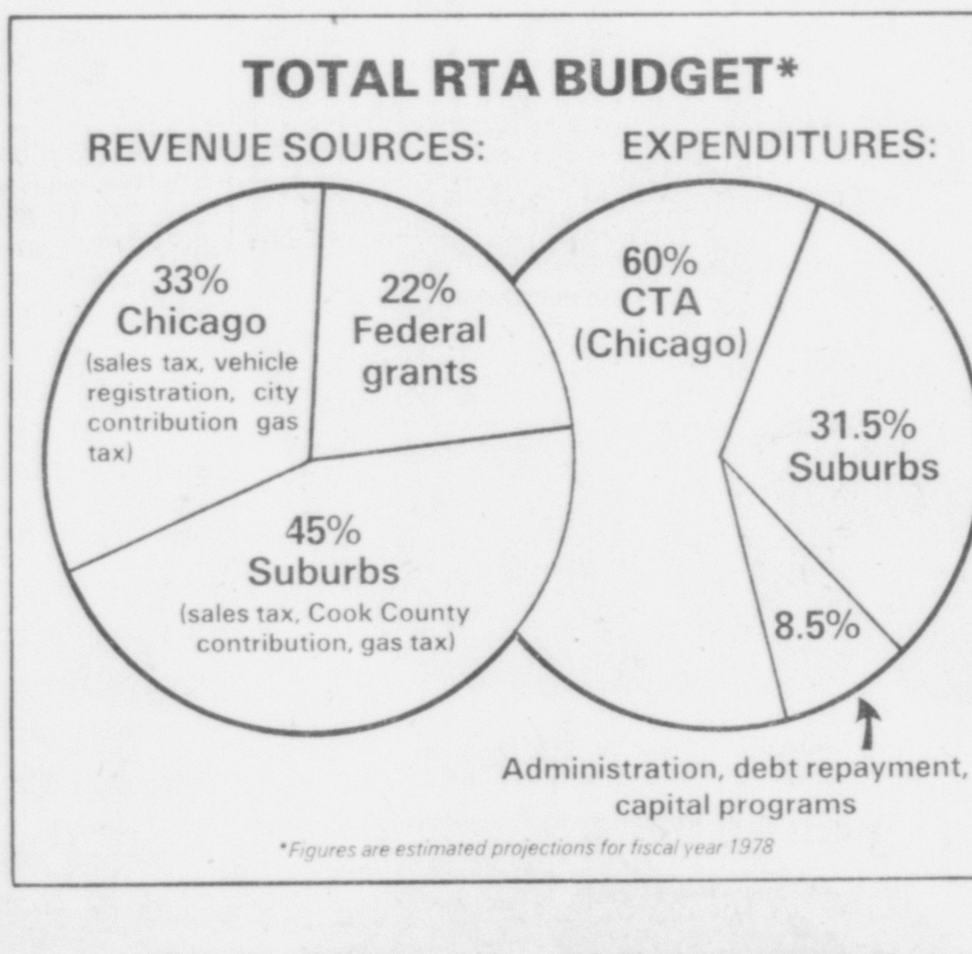
With the new tax, 61 per cent of the RTA's estimated fiscal 1978 expenditures of $237 million will go to the CTA; 31.5 per cent to suburban services, including commuter railroads; and 8.5 per cent for administrative costs and debt retirement.

But the suburbs will provide 45 per cent of the transit district's revenue through tax sources, while Chicago will provide 33 per cent and federal funding 22 per cent.

IN TWO COURT challenges to the tax this week, a McHenry County circuit court judge dismissed a suit filed by State Rep. Calvin Skinner, R-Crystal Lake, and Democratic senatorial hopeful Anthony R. Martin-Trigona, who was unsuccessful in his attempt to get a hearing on his request for a temporary injunction.

Martin-Trigona said he will continue to seek a temporary injunction preventing the RTA from enacting the tax until the Illinois Supreme Court rules on his suit challenging its legality.

MARTIN-TRIGONA failed even to get a hearing on his request for a temporary injunction to prevent the RTA from imposing the tax until the Illinois Supreme Court rules on his suit. Martin-Trigona has charged the tax was enacted improperly.



Park sorry U.S.-Korea ties sour

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Millionaire Tongsun Park is contrite over his role in strained relations between Washington and Seoul and may go to the United States to face questioning in the Korean bribery scandal, government sources said Wednesday.

The sources said there may be a breakthrough in the case by Christmas.

Park is the key figure in an investigation into alleged payoffs to congressmen and others in an attempt to promote pro-Korean policies in Washington.

The sources said Park, who had lived in the United States for 25 years and considered the country his second home, "felt sorry" that the scandal had harmed relations between Seoul and Washington.

"Should he change his mind and decide to go to the United States voluntarily, there is no reason why we should oppose it," one government source said.

Missing woman baffles Palatine police and FBI

Despite a nationwide search and assistance from the FBI, Palatine police Wednesday said they have all but run out of leads to the whereabouts of a 39-year-old Palatine woman who disappeared five weeks ago.

Stephanie Lyng

Stephanie A. Lyng, 1328 E. Sanborn Ave., mother of four, has not been seen since about 9:15 a.m. Oct. 25 when she returned home from a neighbor's house to keep an appointment with a carpet installer, police said. Her 15-year-old daughter reported her missing later that day.

The only trace the woman left was her blue 1975 station wagon, found three days later in a parking lot at O'Hare Airport. Palatine Det. Robert Ward said police have suspected foul play in her disappearance ever since blood stains found on her car were determined Nov. 10 to be identical to her blood type. Mrs. Lyng is the daughter of Sun-Times columnist Dorsey Connors.

POLICE, HOWEVER, said they have been unable to determine whether the results of the test conducted by the Cook County Sheriff's Dept., indicate if the stains belong to Mrs. Lyng.

"We're almost at a dead end," Ward said. "We've checked the airlines, rental car agencies and missing persons reports from several states, but all with negative results. And the worst part about this case is, we don't know if she's alive or dead.

"At the moment there's one of two things we're hoping for," he said. "Either for someone to come forward and confess to doing the woman bodily harm, or for her husband to talk."

Police said they have questioned Edward Lyng, 45, three times about his wife's disappearance, but they have refused to disclose details of the conversation. Police, however, said Lyng is not a suspect in his wife's disappearance.

Lyng, head of the Lyng Canteen Service Co., Elgin, has told police his wife had filed a divorce suit against him charging mental cruelty. He said divorce proceedings had been in a preliminary stage shortly before her disappearance.

Illinois briefs

Ban on midwife licenses upheld

A federal court decision released Wednesday upheld an Illinois law banning licensing of midwives. There is "no fundamental" right to choose to have childbirth at home with the assistance of qualified, licensed midwives," U.S. District Judge Frank J. McGarr ruled. McGarr also said his court has no jurisdiction to substitute its judgment for that of the Illinois Legislature. Ten women who wanted to have their babies at home with the aid of midwives and 10 other women who wanted to be legal midwives filed suit challenging the Illinois law, which banned licenses for midwives after Aug. 22, 1965.

Elections board deadline extended

The Illinois Supreme Court Wednesday night for a fifth time extended the legislature's deadline for creating a valid State Board of Elections — this time until Jan. 13 next year — but one justice blistered his colleagues for allowing another delay. The agency, ruled unconstitutional more than a year ago, would have expired at midnight Wednesday without the latest reprieve. The majority said it granted the extension "with reluctance," but saw no other course since the board must process thousands of nominating papers for the 1978 elections beginning Dec. 12. The court also noted Gov. James R. Thompson has a bill creating an eight-member elections board on his desk.

Schlafly coalition 'greatest ever'

Phyllis Schlafly, leading opponent of the Equal Rights Amendment, Wednesday said her supporters comprise "the greatest coalition of all times," and include both conservatives and liberals. She also told a meeting at the Washington Press Club she has not decided whether to mount a challenge to Sen. Charles Percy, R--Ill., who is up for reelection next year. But she said she will announce her decision next Wednesday on whether to enter Illinois' Republican primary against Percy. Mrs. Schlafly, a long-time ERA foe, was the apparent leader of a conservative minority of delegates at the National Women's Conference in Houston, which last week endorsed ERA, lesbian rights and abortion.

Schultz guilty in sexual assault

A jury deliberated about 2½ hours Wednesday before convicting Roy E. Schultz, a Kansas prison escapee who said visions told him to kidnap a Metamora family last July and sexually assault a 5-year-old girl. The seven-man, five-woman jury convicted Schultz on seven counts of aggravated kidnaping, two counts of deviate sexual assault, two counts of taking indecent liberties with a minor and one count of armed robbery.

County jail too crowded: official

Cook County Jail is so overcrowded that inmates are sleeping on floors, a corrections official said Wednesday. More than 2,000 inmates frequently are crowded into the maximum security building with a capacity for 1,900, said Phillip Hardiman, executive director of the Dept. of Corrections. He said a new jail scheduled to open next spring should relieve the overcrowded conditions.

Bilandic damaged: alderman

Mayor Michael A. Bilandic has suffered politically no matter what the outcome of the taxi fare increase charges, Ald. Martin J. Oberman said Wednesday. "Any time a public official is involved in this kind of serious controversy, it is politically damaging, especially when that public official is going to be compared to a predecessor who was a magical person in the eyes of many," the independent alderman said. Oberman, who first suggested a city council investigation of 11.86 per cent fare increase last July, expressed confidence the truth will come out. Bilandic fired Jane M. Byrne from her post of consumer sales commissioner after she had charged the mayor "greased" the way for the increase.

ANTI-PORNOGRAPHY LAWS passed recently by Cook County officials may be tested in a case involving the Interlude, which opened two weeks ago at 2120 N. Arlington Heights Rd. The business has been raided once by Cook County police on prostitution charges.

'Adult club' may be new porn law test

cer has to get back into a room with a girl and she has to tell him what acts whe will perform and what it will cost," Buckendahl said.

Meanwhile, business at Interlude continues.

Arlington Heights officials are getting most of the complaints about Interlude because most people assume the property is within the village's boundaries, Assistant Village Mgr. Frank Charlton said Wednesday.

Village officials always have feared that the unincorporated areas along Rand Road in Wheeling Township would become a smut strip similar to one in Palatine Township. Along a short strip there, there is a drive-in movie theater that features X-rated shows, adult bookstores, a club featuring nude dancers and a business called Club Renaissance which, like Interlude, has been raided for prostitution.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS police assisted county police during the Nov. 21 raid at Interlude, but dissolution of the business is up to county officials. Right now it is caught between departments.

"I'm waiting for an official report from the sheriff's office, but we're prepared to take action," William Harris, commissioner of the county's building and zoning department, said.

"We are dissatisfied with the Interlude and its activities and believe it's probably in violation of the new zoning ordinance regulating adult entertainment. As soon as I have the sheriff's department's report I will have to confer with the state's attorney and get a legal opinion. Right now we do hope to make this a test case for the new ordinance," Harris said.

It is possible, however, that the Muellers will act more quickly than the state's attorney and attempt to get Interlude evicted for breach of contract. The lease signed by Pride and Horvath states specifically that they "will not permit any unlawful or immoral practice" in the building.

The intended use for the building, according to that lease, is for a retail store to sell gun equipment and to repair guns.

Debate on parks, village control today

The pros and cons of having the village government in Arlington Heights take control of the parks will be discussed at 8 p.m. today when a forum of Arlington Heights homeowners associations meets at Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Assn., 25 E. Campbell St.

ANTI-PORNOGRAPHY LAWS passed recently by Cook County officials may be tested in a case involving the Interlude, which opened two weeks ago at 2120 N. Arlington Heights Rd. The business has been raided once by Cook County police on prostitution charges.

'Adult club' may be new porn law test

cer has to get back into a room with a girl and she has to tell him what acts whe will perform and what it will cost," Buckendahl said.

Meanwhile, business at Interlude continues.

Arlington Heights officials are getting most of the complaints about Interlude because most people assume the property is within the village's boundaries, Assistant Village Mgr. Frank Charlton said Wednesday.

Village officials always have feared that the unincorporated areas along Rand Road in Wheeling Township would become a smut strip similar to one in Palatine Township. Along a short strip there, there is a drive-in movie theater that features X-rated shows, adult bookstores, a club featuring nude dancers and a business called Club Renaissance which, like Interlude, has been raided for prostitution.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS police assisted county police during the Nov. 21 raid at Interlude, but dissolution of the business is up to county officials. Right now it is caught between departments.

"I'm waiting for an official report from the sheriff's office, but we're prepared to take action," William Harris, commissioner of the county's building and zoning department, said.

"We are dissatisfied with the Interlude and its activities and believe it's probably in violation of the new zoning ordinance regulating adult entertainment. As soon as I have the sheriff's department's report I will have to confer with the state's attorney and get a legal opinion. Right now we do hope to make this a test case for the new ordinance," Harris said.

It is possible, however, that the Muellers will act more quickly than the state's attorney and attempt to get Interlude evicted for breach of contract. The lease signed by Pride and Horvath states specifically that they "will not permit any unlawful or immoral practice" in the building.

The intended use for the building, according to that lease, is for a retail store to sell gun equipment and to repair guns.

Debate on parks, village control today

The pros and cons of having the village government in Arlington Heights take control of the parks will be discussed at 8 p.m. today when a forum of Arlington Heights homeowners associations meets at Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Assn., 25 E. Campbell St.

FOUR PERSONS WERE KILLED late Tuesday in a fiery crash on a fogbound stretch of I-94 about two miles north of the Wisconsin-Illinois state line. The crash involved four cars, a semitrailer truck bringing beer from St. Louis and an empty automobile carrier. Shown is the burned beer truck in which the driver was killed.

Cops hint strangle deaths work of team

Police in Los Angeles said Wednesday they believe the strangling deaths of at least 10 of the 12 women and girls found dead in hillside sections of Los Angeles in the past six weeks are all the work of a team of two killers. Lt. Ed Henderson also disclosed that a special police task force investigating the slayings will be increased to about 40 members Thursday and said police plan to increase patrols in "the concerned areas." He said city officials are considering offering a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects and announced that police had set up a special telephone hotline for anyone with information about the crimes to call.

Henderson said the victims on the list had all been strangled and left in remote areas in the same general section of the city. He said all but one of them were nude and most had been sexually molested. He indicated there are other undisclosed similarities among the victims, including the way they were killed and molested. There are also disparities, including their ages, which range from 12 to 28, and their lifestyles.

Koreans sought to muzzle defector

South Korea flew a cabinet minister to the United States in June on an undercover mission to block a defected spy's testimony on Washington bribery operations, according to Korean intelligence documents released Wednesday. The new batch of leaked spy documents indicated the envoy tried unsuccessfully to cajole and intimidate the congressional witness, former Korean CIA chief Kim Hyung Wook, who later testified in detail about covert Korean influence peddling in Washington. Releasing 18 KCIA documents at a congressional hearing, Chairman Donald Fraser of the House International Relations subcommittee angrily accused the Seoul government of trying to obstruct U.S. justice. The documents outlined attempts to muzzle Kim Hyung Wook, who ran the KCIA from 1963 to 1969, and who later testified both before the Fraser committee and the House Ethics Committee.

Colonel the elephant still free

Colonel, a four-ton bull elephant fugitive from a circus truck, won another day of freedom Wednesday in a hide-and-seek game with rangers, cowboys and animal trainers in a 400,000-acre Palmdale, Fla. wildlife refuge. A second day of searching from horseback, swamp buggy and airplane was called off at sundown with the elephant still at large. Colonel was sighted briefly from the air about noon Wednesday, but he wheeled into heavy underbrush and disappeared. Searchers said they plan to call in a helicopter Thursday.

Additional year in prison for Ray

James Earl Ray, convicted assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., was sentenced Wednesday to an additional one to two years imprisonment for escaping last June from Brushy Mountain State Prison. Ray, who appeared two hours ahead of schedule before Circuit Judge Lee Asbury, asked that he be declared indigent for purposes of an appeal of the conviction. Asbury ordered preparation of the court record and exhibits in a bill of exceptions be filed with the state Court of Criminal Appeals within 45 days. A Morgan County jury found Ray guilty last month of escaping from the prison June 10 and fixed his sentence at one to two years. The sentence was added to Ray's 99-year term for the 1968 King murder.

Abortion fight jeopardizes checks

Congress failed Wednesday to take any action on behalf of thousands of federal workers whose Christmas paychecks are jeopardized by the House-Senate fight over abortion. The two issues are linked because the abortion question was tacked onto a $61 billion money bill containing the fiscal 1978 appropriations for the Labor Department and Health, Education and Welfare. Those appropriations normally would have been available to the agencies Oct. 1, but instead, Congress has passed resolutions allowing the agencies to continue spending at last year's levels until the new appropriations are approved with the abortion question.

The latest resolution was to expire at midnight Wednesday, however, and it was not clear whether another would be passed. Agency spokesmen said unless funding is restored within a week, the mid-December once-a-month paychecks for some 150,000 workers cannot be met.

Sen. McClellan buried in Arkansas

First Lady Rosalynn Carter, Vice President Walter Mondale and 34 U.S. senators Wednesday attended a typical Southern Baptist funeral for Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., one of the last of the powerful seniority system senators. The eulogy for the 81-year-old McClellan was based in part on yellowed, handwritten notes of a Sunday School lesson on faith he once taught. One note McClellan had scribbled with emphasis read: "Faith is a higher faculty than wisdom." The 54-minute funeral at Little Rock's Immanuel Baptist Church and subsequent burial at Roselawn Memorial Cemetery were conducted in a steady rain.

Vorster wins whites-only election

South African Prime Minister John Vorster Wednesday scored a resounding personal victory and his ruling National Party chalked up massive gains in a whites-only general election called to bolster the white regime's rejection of U.S. attacks on its stern policy of racial apartheid. Voters in Vorster's constituency of Nigel returned the 61-year-old Afrikaner leader with a majority of 9,561 votes, the largest majority ever received by a candidate in South African history.

FOUR PERSONS WERE KILLED late Tuesday in a fiery crash on a fogbound stretch of I-94 about two miles north of the Wisconsin-Illinois state line. The crash involved four cars, a semitrailer truck bringing beer from St. Louis and an empty automobile carrier. Shown is the burned beer truck in which the driver was killed.

Cops hint strangle deaths work of team

Police in Los Angeles said Wednesday they believe the strangling deaths of at least 10 of the 12 women and girls found dead in hillside sections of Los Angeles in the past six weeks are all the work of a team of two killers. Lt. Ed Henderson also disclosed that a special police task force investigating the slayings will be increased to about 40 members Thursday and said police plan to increase patrols in "the concerned areas." He said city officials are considering offering a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects and announced that police had set up a special telephone hotline for anyone with information about the crimes to call.

Henderson said the victims on the list had all been strangled and left in remote areas in the same general section of the city. He said all but one of them were nude and most had been sexually molested. He indicated there are other undisclosed similarities among the victims, including the way they were killed and molested. There are also disparities, including their ages, which range from 12 to 28, and their lifestyles.

Koreans sought to muzzle defector

South Korea flew a cabinet minister to the United States in June on an undercover mission to block a defected spy's testimony on Washington bribery operations, according to Korean intelligence documents released Wednesday. The new batch of leaked spy documents indicated the envoy tried unsuccessfully to cajole and intimidate the congressional witness, former Korean CIA chief Kim Hyung Wook, who later testified in detail about covert Korean influence peddling in Washington. Releasing 18 KCIA documents at a congressional hearing, Chairman Donald Fraser of the House International Relations subcommittee angrily accused the Seoul government of trying to obstruct U.S. justice. The documents outlined attempts to muzzle Kim Hyung Wook, who ran the KCIA from 1963 to 1969, and who later testified both before the Fraser committee and the House Ethics Committee.

Colonel the elephant still free

Colonel, a four-ton bull elephant fugitive from a circus truck, won another day of freedom Wednesday in a hide-and-seek game with rangers, cowboys and animal trainers in a 400,000-acre Palmdale, Fla. wildlife refuge. A second day of searching from horseback, swamp buggy and airplane was called off at sundown with the elephant still at large. Colonel was sighted briefly from the air about noon Wednesday, but he wheeled into heavy underbrush and disappeared. Searchers said they plan to call in a helicopter Thursday.

Additional year in prison for Ray

James Earl Ray, convicted assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., was sentenced Wednesday to an additional one to two years imprisonment for escaping last June from Brushy Mountain State Prison. Ray, who appeared two hours ahead of schedule before Circuit Judge Lee Asbury, asked that he be declared indigent for purposes of an appeal of the conviction. Asbury ordered preparation of the court record and exhibits in a bill of exceptions be filed with the state Court of Criminal Appeals within 45 days. A Morgan County jury found Ray guilty last month of escaping from the prison June 10 and fixed his sentence at one to two years. The sentence was added to Ray's 99-year term for the 1968 King murder.

Abortion fight jeopardizes checks

Congress failed Wednesday to take any action on behalf of thousands of federal workers whose Christmas paychecks are jeopardized by the House-Senate fight over abortion. The two issues are linked because the abortion question was tacked onto a $61 billion money bill containing the fiscal 1978 appropriations for the Labor Department and Health, Education and Welfare. Those appropriations normally would have been available to the agencies Oct. 1, but instead, Congress has passed resolutions allowing the agencies to continue spending at last year's levels until the new appropriations are approved with the abortion question.

The latest resolution was to expire at midnight Wednesday, however, and it was not clear whether another would be passed. Agency spokesmen said unless funding is restored within a week, the mid-December once-a-month paychecks for some 150,000 workers cannot be met.

Sen. McClellan buried in Arkansas

First Lady Rosalynn Carter, Vice President Walter Mondale and 34 U.S. senators Wednesday attended a typical Southern Baptist funeral for Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., one of the last of the powerful seniority system senators. The eulogy for the 81-year-old McClellan was based in part on yellowed, handwritten notes of a Sunday School lesson on faith he once taught. One note McClellan had scribbled with emphasis read: "Faith is a higher faculty than wisdom." The 54-minute funeral at Little Rock's Immanuel Baptist Church and subsequent burial at Roselawn Memorial Cemetery were conducted in a steady rain.

Man nabbed for shooting gun

A 24-year-old Mount Prospect man who allegedly was taking target practice with a .22-caliber rifle in his apartment was arrested early Wednesday.

Patrick D. Drennan, 2321 S. Cannon Rd., Mount Prospect, was charged with reckless conduct and criminal damage to property. He was released on a $100 cash bond and ordered to appear in the Mount Prospect branch of Cook County Circuit Court at 1:30 p.m. Jan. 9.

Police said a tenant in the adjacent apartment returned home at about 11:15 p.m. Tuesday and found holes in his apartment wall. Suspecting they were bullet holes, he called a friend over to look at them, and called the police.

Police said that when an officer knocked on the door of Drennan's apartment and no one answered, he obtained a passkey and entered the apartment where he found Drennan and another young man.

Drennan told police he shot the holes in the wall while shooting at a wine bottle in his kitchen. Police said they found two automatic pistols, a 12-gauge shotgun and the .22-caliber rifle in the apartment.

Five bullets went through the wall into the next apartment, and several others were found lodged in the wall, police said.

Man nabbed for shooting gun

A 24-year-old Mount Prospect man who allegedly was taking target practice with a .22-caliber rifle in his apartment was arrested early Wednesday.

Patrick D. Drennan, 2321 S. Cannon Rd., Mount Prospect, was charged with reckless conduct and criminal damage to property. He was released on a $100 cash bond and ordered to appear in the Mount Prospect branch of Cook County Circuit Court at 1:30 p.m. Jan. 9.

Police said a tenant in the adjacent apartment returned home at about 11:15 p.m. Tuesday and found holes in his apartment wall. Suspecting they were bullet holes, he called a friend over to look at them, and called the police.

Police said that when an officer knocked on the door of Drennan's apartment and no one answered, he obtained a passkey and entered the apartment where he found Drennan and another young man.

Drennan told police he shot the holes in the wall while shooting at a wine bottle in his kitchen. Police said they found two automatic pistols, a 12-gauge shotgun and the .22-caliber rifle in the apartment.

Five bullets went through the wall into the next apartment, and several others were found lodged in the wall, police said.

Man guilty in bank and travel fraud

A Schaumburg man Wednesday was sentenced to three years probation with six months in a work release program after pleading guilty to five counts of theft involving bank fraud and a phony travel agency scheme.

William B. Veneris, 54, of 321 Maplewood Ct., also was ordered by Circuit Court Judge Sylvester Close to make $4,000 restitution.

Richard Loftus, special prosecutor for the Cook County Financial Crimes Division, said authorities estimate that Veneris has taken in $80,000 since his schemes began in June, 1975.

VENERIS, WHO used his home in Schaumburg as the location for Val's Travel Service, would promise potential clients substantially reduced air fares as long as they would pay him for tickets 60 to 90 days in advance, Loftus said.

Veneris would make ticket purchases for some clients, who would spread advertising for his service to friends and fellow employes, who in turn, also would pay him for reduced fares. But Veneris simply ignored most of his clients and provided no tickets after receiving the money, Loftus said.

Veneris was indicted by the Cook County Grand Jury in 1975 on four counts of theft after 42 couples registered complaints about the business.

Reid to run for state House in 1st District

William W. Reid of Buffalo Grove will announce his candidacy today for the Illinois House in the 1st Legislative District.

Reid, a High School Dist. 214 administrator, is currently in his second term as a Wheeling Township trustee. He is a Republican precinct captain and area chairman and township coordinator for Citizens for Thompson.

"I have actively supported and worked for many outstanding Republican candidates and strongly believe that good local representation and a strong two-party system are achieved through active individual participation in government," the 44-year-old Reid said.

The 1st District includes Wheeling Township north of Palatine Road, Northfield and New Trier townships and northeast Evanston Township. Traditionally the district has been represented by state legislators from the eastern end of the district.

"I DON'T PLAN to campaign on the basis of geography. I think we've been well represented in the past. But I also hope people would recognize a candidate from Wheeling Township," he said.

The incumbent Republican state representatives in the district are seeking other offices. State Rep. Roger A. Keats, R-Wilmette, is a candidate for the state Senate, and State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston, is running for state treasurer.

"I have grown up with the suburbs," said Reid, who has lived in Buffalo Grove since 1961. He is Dist. 214's director of social science, foreign language and data processing. "Exploding school population, declining enrollments, land developments, rising taxes, sprawling suburbs and maturing cities are all personal experiences for me. Future growth and problems of this area must be faced from a base of experience and knowledge to be able to provide leadership in developing sound responses to future challenges."

High court backs man's conviction in search case

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Illinois Supreme Court Wednesday upheld the conviction of a Peoria man by ruling two policemen had reasonable cause to stop and frisk him and another man on a late-night walk.

In a case involving defendant James J. McGowan, the court found that one of the two policemen was rightly suspicious of two men they found walking in a high-crime area. McGowan, arrested as a result of the frisk and convicted of unlawful use of a weapon, had claimed the evidence was obtained in violation of two laws dealing with pre-search and arrest procedures.

On April 13, 1975, at 12:50 a.m., Peoria police officers George Fulton and Orlando Allen came from a parking garage in the city's downtown area. They spotted two men on the sidewalk wearing black clothing. They stopped when asked to by Fulton who said he was "checking them out" because the area was plagued by burglaries. He frisked them and found a .22-caliber pistol on McGowan.

FULTON TESTIFIED at the trial he stopped the men because of the hour, their clothes and the area's high burglary rate. Fulton also said it was unusual to see persons in the area at that time of night.

The high court had to decide whether Fulton had sufficient cause for stopping the two men and, if so, whether he had adequate grounds to pat down McGowan for weapons.

"While this is admittedly a close case," the court said, "we agree with the appellate and circuit courts that the state has met its burden of proof on this question."

The court said the two men barely would have had enough time to make it to the only nearby open tavern before its 1 a.m. closing time to "have a fast drink," thereby making that possibility unlikely.

THE BLACK clothing also was highly unusual if they were just walking down the street, Justice William G. Clark said in the opinion, but not if they were involved in a "surreptitious activity."

The court said since it was reasonable for Fulton to assume that a burglary had just been committed or was about to be committed, then he was also justified in seraching them for weapons.

In another case, the high court ruled that the 30-day suspension without pay of Woodford County Circuit Court Judge Samuel G. Harrod III, the so-called "haircut judge," must be expunged from the record.

The court ruled that the Illinois Courts Commission, which decides on cases of alleged judicial impropriety, exceeded its constitutional bounds in suspending Harrod from the bench for a month.

THE COMMISSION decided against Harrod in connection with his sentencing practices in his courtroom in Eureka. Harrod had been charged with willful misconduct in office, conduct prejudical to the administration of justice and conduct that brought the judicial office into disrepute.

Specifically it was charged that Harrod ordered defendants to get haircuts in addition to paying fines and costs. Harrod also was charged with ordering persons on probation to surrender their driver's license and get in return a card saying they were on probation.

Harrod argued he could hand down the unorthodox orders through judicial discretion. But the board said his haircut orders were without authority of law and they were imposed as punishment "to remedy what" (Harrod) "considered to be the defendants' antisocial attitudes."

But the court said the board went on to apply its own "independent interpretation and construction" of judicial discretion, thereby exceeding its constitutional authority.

Post office lifts package embargo

The U.S. Postal Service has lifted the two-month embargo on packages for surface delivery to Europe, U.S.S.R., Africa, Central and South America, Puerto Rico, Greenland, Iceland and the Caribbean Islands.

However, postal officials will not guarantee delivery of packages in time for Christmas.

"The dates are tight. There is no way of knowing the extent the heavy influx of mail will have on sailing dates," Arlington Heights Postmaster Donald Swanson said. He suggested individuals use air mail where possible if time is a factor.

The embargo was put into effect Oct. 1 because of a dock strike that crippled the eastern seaboard.

Israeli comedy showing Saturday

"Daughter's, Daughter's," the Israeli comedy film will be shown at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Ida Crown Jewish Academy, 2828 W. Pratt St., Chicago. The film presentation is sponsored by the Jewish Day School, Schaumburg. Ticket prices start at $5.

4 Northwest judges on Dem slate

Four associate judges who have presided in Northwest suburban courts were among 31 Democrats slated Wednesday to run for judicial seats.

The four, Francis Glowacki, Arthur A. Sullivan, John M. Breen and David Shields, won the support of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee for circuit court judgeships that will be voted upon next November.

They will run countywide along with 12 others for vacancies on the Cook County Circuit Court.

SIX CANDIDATES also were chosen to run for judgeships to be elected from Chicago. Six other candidates will be selected in several days to run as suburban judicial candidates.

Traditionally the Democrats have succeeded in electing their city and countywide slate while the Republicans have taken the suburban seats.

The Republicans have endorsed as their six suburban candidates Associate Judge Peter Bakakos, Wilmette; Judge Lawrence X. Pusateri, River Forest; Edwin M. Berman, Hillside; Henry A. Gentile, Palos Park; Kenneth L. Gillis, Glencoe; and Leonard R. Grazian, Morton Grove.

The Democratic slate was voted on after a closed meeting of the central committee Wednesday at the party's Bismarck Hotel headquarters.

SOME 110 CANDIDATES, all rated as qualified by the Chicago Bar Assn., had sought party slating.

Wednesday's session was opened to the public briefly before the public vote when Chicago Ald. Wilson Frost, chairing the slatemaking, apparently thought the selections had been agreed to.

But several committeemen, including Theodore Forsberg of Barrington Township, continued to debate the selections, with Forsberg calling for slating of Des Plaines Associate Judge Jerome T. Burke. The debate prompted Edmund Kelly, 47th Ward committeeman and Chicago Ald. Edward Burke, 14th Ward committeeman, to call for reclosing of the meeting.

The slate included two women, one of whom is Assoc Judge Willie Whiting, who will run with Judges Allen Hartman and Dom Rizzi for three vacancies on the Illinois Appellate Court.

4 Northwest judges on Dem slate

Four associate judges who have presided in Northwest suburban courts were among 31 Democrats slated Wednesday to run for judicial seats.

The four, Francis Glowacki, Arthur A. Sullivan, John M. Breen and David Shields, won the support of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee for circuit court judgeships that will be voted upon next November.

They will run countywide along with 12 others for vacancies on the Cook County Circuit Court.

SIX CANDIDATES also were chosen to run for judgeships to be elected from Chicago. Six other candidates will be selected in several days to run as suburban judicial candidates.

Traditionally the Democrats have succeeded in electing their city and countywide slate while the Republicans have taken the suburban seats.

The Republicans have endorsed as their six suburban candidates Associate Judge Peter Bakakos, Wilmette; Judge Lawrence X. Pusateri, River Forest; Edwin M. Berman, Hillside; Henry A. Gentile, Palos Park; Kenneth L. Gillis, Glencoe; and Leonard R. Grazian, Morton Grove.

The Democratic slate was voted on after a closed meeting of the central committee Wednesday at the party's Bismarck Hotel headquarters.

SOME 110 CANDIDATES, all rated as qualified by the Chicago Bar Assn., had sought party slating.

Wednesday's session was opened to the public briefly before the public vote when Chicago Ald. Wilson Frost, chairing the slatemaking, apparently thought the selections had been agreed to.

'Cigarette Man' entertaining, moving

by SCOTT FOSDICK

You can find the goopiest geeks at the Victory Gardens Theater. The slickest sleazes, and, yes, even the bubbliest broads.

This modest theater on Chicago's North Side is without a doubt the best place in town to find all these — and more — dyed in the wool stereotypes.

Review/theater

In its first play this season, "June Moon," Victory Gardens took us back 50 years to the Tin Pan Alley world of Ring Lardner and George S. Kaufman.

THIS WAS A "camp" tour de force that was as entertaining as it was sappy.

"The Cigarette Man," Victory Gardens second play this season, also deals with nostalgia. But while "June Moon" was a static remembrance of days gone by, "The Cigarette Man" is kinetic nostalgia.

The play is the first ever produced by Evanston writer David Blomquist. It was given a limited staging last year by the Victory Gardens Readers Theater Program, and is getting its formal premier this month in two cities — here, and at the Dallas Theater Center.

Through a cliched but effective convention, the play follows a trio of characters through three New Year's Eve parties in 1960, 1968 and 1973.

The characters go through what are now practically mythic changes on the outside while keeping their essential characters intact, practically. It is these small changes, as well as reflections on the nature of change itself, that gives the drama its punch.

AND IT IS MARVELOUS performances by the entire cast that gives "The Cigarette Man" its humor: Allison Giglio, William J. Norris, Nancy Serlin and Ian Williams.

The metamorphoses they go through, so like those we have all gone through, are at once comic and a bit depressing. From naive simp to jaded sophisticate is never an easy road to travel.

Such brilliant nostalgia is eventually this drama's undoing. It renders a fatal distance that prevents the tragedy from hitting home.

Nonetheless, "The Cigarette Man" is certainly one of the most entertaining plays of the season, if not the most moving.

Cole Porter's songs salvage 'Compliments'

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

There's been a lot of humming and toe-tapping in the Windy City recently. Not only have Chicagoans been courted by the usual round of musical comedies, but "musical entertainment" — a collection of songs that pay homage to a gifted songwriter are coming on strong.

The latest offering is "Compliments of Cole," a new "musical divertissement" that premiered Wednesday night at the First Chicago Center. Like the current Drury Lane hit "Side by Side by Sondheim," "Compliments of Cole" is an unabashed tribute; nothing more and nothing less than a string of such Cole Porter greats as "Night and Day," "Anything Goes," and "Begin the Beguine."

Review

But with tributes like "Side by Side" and "Rodgers and Hart" live up to the superiority of their material, "Compliments of Cole" falls flat.

MANY OF THE SHOW's problems can be traced to headliner Lois Nettleton, a gifted actress who nevertheless can't carry torchy numbers like "Just One of Those Things" or "Love for Sale." Her sexy winks and feather boa are fine on the campy "The Laziest Gal in Town," but elsewhere she's almost an embarrassment.

If Miss Nettleton's lack of vocal savvy dims the sparkle in "Compliments of Cole," so does the pacing of the show itself.

Except for some fancy footwork in the 1923 jazz ditty "Dizzy Baby" and in "Brush Up Your Shakespeare," most of the evening is straight song. The raw material can stand alone, to be sure but solid voices and snappy transitions are sorely missed.

There are a few moments of real pizzazz in "Compliments of Cole."

Ann Jullian's rendition of the still-suggestive "You've Got that Thing" (written in 1929) is hilarious. And her voice is the strongest of the entire six-member cast. Michael Allinson, with his properly British accent and straight-laced black tuxedo is perfect in "Don't Fence Me in." He may not be wearing a Stetson hat, but the irony is appropriate.

The musical accompaniment is perhaps the best part of the show, and it's too bad that except for the musicians, Cole Porter himself is the only one who deserves any real compliments.

Stevenson aides attempt to get new slating session

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — Aides to U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., are attempting to get members of the Democratic State Central Committee to reconvene and consider slating new statewide candidates for the 1978 elections.

The Daily Herald learned of the effort after reports surfaced that Stevenson talked Tuesday with Metropolitan Sanitary District Commissioners Richard Troy and Jerome Cosentino and left them with the impression he wanted them to drop off the ticket. Cosentino is slated for secretary of state and Troy for attorney general.

Stevenson aides in Chicago refused to discuss the meeting between Stevenson and Troy, or the telephone conversation the senator had with Consentini.

However, Thomas Wagner, a Stevenson aide in Washington, confirmed reports he had talked with several members of the 24-man state central committee about reconvening the slatemakers.

"I TALKED to them about procedural matters and tried to determine what their attitudes might be about reconvening," Wagner said. He added Stevenson was not trying to force another meeting of the slatemakers to drop Troy and Cosentino.

Sources close to the senator said he has been personally concerned about the "hysteria" that has gripped some elements of the party since the ticket was picked.

Downstate Democrats seemed to be the most distressed over the imbalance of the ticket and the fact that two MSD trustees were on the slate.

Comptroller Michael Bakalis, the Democrat's top candidate for governor, Wednesday attempted to nullify some of that uproar by announcing he has picked Springfield attorney Richard Durbin, 33, to run for lieutenant governor.

HOWEVER, BAKALIS got caught in a cross fire of inquiries about Stevenson's unusual effort to convince Troy and Cosentino to withdraw because of the negative publicity they might receive for being connected with the scandal-riddled sanitary district and the Chicago Democratic organization.

While Bakalis indicated he knew Stevenson planned to meet with Troy and Cosentini, he said he did not know exactly what the senator told the pair.

"As a leader of the Democratic Party, he has the right to do what he thinks is best," Bakalis said.

However, Bakalis refused to back the Stevenson effort.

"Other than the negative reaction of some editorials and some Downstate Democrats, I see no reason to be dissatisfied. I don't think we should be judging people on the basis of where they happen to work part time or where they live," he said.

LARRY HANSEN, another Stevenson aide, said the Senator would have no comment on the slatemaking situation or his discussions with Troy and Cosentino until next week when he returns to Illinois.

Besides the discussion and the low profile effort to reconvene the slatemakers, Stevenson also personally tried unsuccessfully to find a stronger opponent for U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., than Hinsdale attorney Alex Seith.

"Who are Mike Bakalis and Adlai Stevenson and Alan Dixon to be changing the ticket?" Cosentini told The Daily Herald. They were present at slatemaking. They know that everyone in that room had a chance of being slated. I think we should put all of this behind us and get on to the Republicans."

Stevenson aides attempt to get new slating session

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — Aides to U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., are attempting to get members of the Democratic State Central Committee to reconvene and consider slating new statewide candidates for the 1978 elections.

The Daily Herald learned of the effort after reports surfaced that Stevenson talked Tuesday with Metropolitan Sanitary District Commissioners Richard Troy and Jerome Cosentino and left them with the impression he wanted them to drop off the ticket. Cosentino is slated for secretary of state and Troy for attorney general.

Stevenson aides in Chicago refused to discuss the meeting between Stevenson and Troy, or the telephone conversation the senator had with Consentini.

However, Thomas Wagner, a Stevenson aide in Washington, confirmed reports he had talked with several members of the 24-man state central committee about reconvening the slatemakers.

"I TALKED to them about procedural matters and tried to determine what their attitudes might be about reconvening," Wagner said. He added Stevenson was not trying to force another meeting of the slatemakers to drop Troy and Cosentino.

Sources close to the senator said he has been personally concerned about the "hysteria" that has gripped some elements of the party since the ticket was picked.

Downstate Democrats seemed to be the most distressed over the imbalance of the ticket and the fact that two MSD trustees were on the slate.

Comptroller Michael Bakalis, the Democrat's top candidate for governor, Wednesday attempted to nullify some of that uproar by announcing he has picked Springfield attorney Richard Durbin, 33, to run for lieutenant governor.

HOWEVER, BAKALIS got caught in a cross fire of inquiries about Stevenson's unusual effort to convince Troy and Cosentino to withdraw because of the negative publicity they might receive for being connected with the scandal-riddled sanitary district and the Chicago Democratic organization.

While Bakalis indicated he knew Stevenson planned to meet with Troy and Cosentini, he said he did not know exactly what the senator told the pair.

"As a leader of the Democratic Party, he has the right to do what he thinks is best," Bakalis said.

However, Bakalis refused to back the Stevenson effort.

"Other than the negative reaction of some editorials and some Downstate Democrats, I see no reason to be dissatisfied. I don't think we should be judging people on the basis of where they happen to work part time or where they live," he said.

LARRY HANSEN, another Stevenson aide, said the Senator would have no comment on the slatemaking situation or his discussions with Troy and Cosentino until next week when he returns to Illinois.

Besides the discussion and the low profile effort to reconvene the slatemakers, Stevenson also personally tried unsuccessfully to find a stronger opponent for U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., than Hinsdale attorney Alex Seith.

"Who are Mike Bakalis and Adlai Stevenson and Alan Dixon to be changing the ticket?" Cosentini told The Daily Herald. They were present at slatemaking. They know that everyone in that room had a chance of being slated. I think we should put all of this behind us and get on to the Republicans."

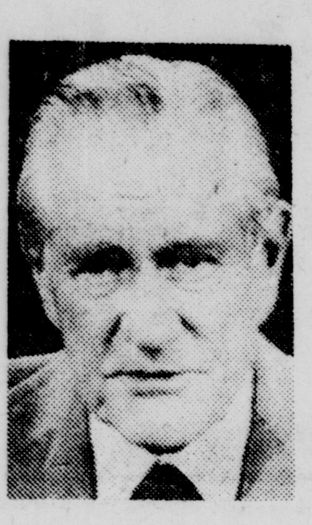
Broadcaster Sevareid retires after 38 years



Eric Sevareid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eric Sevareid retired from 38 years of broadcast journalism Wednesday, maintaining in a final commentary he will wear his reputation for fairness like a medal.

"There is, in the American people a tough, undiminished instinct for what is fair," the scholarly commentator said. "Rightly or wrongly, I have the feeling that I have passed the test.

"I shall wear this like a medal."

Sevareid turned 65 Saturday. Under CBS' mandatory retirement policy, this was his last day of regular work.

Sevareid mixed journalistic philosophy with some praise for "the man who invented me, (former CBS news chief) Ed Murrow," and some amazement at his own longevity in a tough field — "I have gone the normal span of a man's working life, rather abnormal in this calling and it's a happy surprise."

THE SELF-IMPOSED rules he worked under as a commentator, Sevareid said, included "not to underestimate the intelligence of the audience and not to overestimate its information," "to elucidate, when one can, more than to advocate" and "to retain the courage of one's doubts as well as one's convictions."

Antther rule was "to comfort oneself, in times of error, with the knowledge that the saving grace of the press, print or broadcast is its self-correcting nature."

He departed from his usual format only to say, "This was Eric Sevareid in Washington. Thank you and goodbye."

"Our aim: To fear God, tell the truth and make money."

Harper's first steps good

The Harper College board of trustees has started on the right road in the two weeks since the departure of college Pres. Robert E. Lahti.

The board is preparing to name a search committee to help with the task of finding Lahti's replacement. In addition, board members are studying six proposals from firms for the college's new master plan and are expected to select one in January.

The actions so far on the search committee and master plan indicate that the new board has a firm sense of the needed direction for the college. If the board can maintain this balanced sense of purpose the school will be well served in the coming months.

Most heartening is the board's action ensuring that the new master plan, which will replace the plan developed in 1966, will include an objective look at many of the college's philosophies.

Last April, the plan was for the board to hire an architectural firm to help revise the master plan, but the board majority headed off that action, fearing that hiring an architect would bias the plan in favor of construction of a second campus.

The present master plan proposals have been submitted by educational consultants — not architects — and the board hopes the shift will result in an unbiased look at both the need for a second campus and at the over-all growth pattern at Harper.

The choice of the search committee to aid in selection of a new president will be crucial to the future direction being set by the board. The committee must represent as many constituencies as possible and must also be composed of persons who are willing to work for Harper's future without indulging in recriminations about past disagreements.

The Harper board so far has provided the leadership the college needs in this difficult transitional period. Continued effort will give Harper a firm foundation for the future.

Macomb can use Wheeling's help

Wheeling Village Trustee John Cole has the right idea in proposing that Wheeling lend its support to the western Illinois city of Macomb in its efforts to get stop signs at a dangerous intersection.

The intersection of U.S. Rts. 136 and 67 was the site of an accident which killed Jeffrey Broxham, 22, of Wheeling, a student at Western Illinois University. The accident which killed the youth is one of 17 which have occurred at the intersection since Jan. 1.

While traffic problems around Macomb may seem remote to many Wheeling residents, Cole, who has two children in school there, has pointed out that many Wheeling youngsters attend the university.

The Macomb City Council and the university have supported police requests for better lighting and four-way stop signs at the intersection. The Illinois Department of Transportation must act on the request.

Northwest suburban officials know how hard it can be to get the transportation department to act on hazardous intersections.

Support for Macomb's efforts to improve their hazardous intersection is appropriate. If Wheeling can help save any lives, a village board resolution will be worth the trouble.

Sadat's obvious lessons on the way to find peace

Paul Greenberg

Peace has its victories as well as war, and they should be studied as intently. Anwar Sadat's journey to Jerusalem was a great victory for peace and some of its lessons, many of them obvious but too long ignored, might be noted for future reference:

- The essence of peace is good will. Without it, the most ingenious diplomatic solutions may not avail. See Vietnam. With it, ingenious diplomatic solutions may not be necessary. On this trip, Anwar Sadat did not seem to care on which side of Jerusalem he slept or whom he might offend by praying in a mosque now under the jurisdiction of the infidel. He rose above all that; he had a more important victory in mind. He felt no need to talk of who "won" this meeting and by how many points of protocol. Peace is the victory of all. There is much the president of Egypt might be able to teach our own State Department, including the name of the real capital of Israel. (Hint. It is not Tel Aviv.)

- Direct negotiations offer the most promising path to peace. Compare the atmosphere of Anwar Sadat's visit to Jerusalem with the general murk of proximity talks and negotiations through third parties like Henry Kissinger. Indirect negotiations tend to filter out the good will and the interests of the go-between may even be substituted for those of the negotiating parties.

CAUTION: HISTORY HAS determined that forcing a nation into negotiations with a party bent on its destruction may be dangerous to its health. Again, see Vietnam. And note the official position of the Palestine Liberation Organization on the illegitimacy of the state of Israel.

- Peace in the Middle East cannot be divorced from the need for a strong Israel. Contrast the tone of Anwar Sadat's speech to the Knesset Sunday with the one he gave the Egyptian parliament in the first days of the Yom Kippur War, when the Israelis were still reeling under the Egyptian assault. If Anwar Sadat's visit to Israel this past week had a dreamlike quality, it could not have been even the stuff of dreams if Israel had been broken in that war, or had not been heavily rearmed since.

The Carter Administration deserves considerable credit for having absorbed and acted on this important lesson. It may have angered and dismayed the Israelis with some of its words, but unlike its predecessor, this Administration never choked off Israel's arms supplies and called that a reassessment of foreign policy.

SOME OF THE credit for that should be shared with Israel's steadfast friends in Congress, who at crucial moments made it clear that they would not go along with pushing the Israelis into a corner — a position not conducive to generous compromise. It might be remembered that the vast majority of American senators signed a letter in support of Israel at the height of the Kissinger Reassessment.

- The momentum toward peace must be maintained. Anwar Sadat now has broken through the psychological barriers erected by this modern Thirty Years War. That act took great courage and vision. Now the Israelis should respond as generously and as publicly, not only to reward the Egyptian leader but to induce other Arab leaders to make the same hegira from war to peace.

The essential challenge of Middle Eastern diplomacy is not how to divide territory as such, but how to reconcile Israel's understandable obsession with security with the need to restore Arab pride. It was gracious of Anwar Sadat to welcome Israel to the Middle East after 30 years of unremitting war (". . . in sincerity I tell you that we welcome you among us with all security and safety.") But the words lose some of their sheen when one realizes, as the Israelis surely do, that Anwar Sadat cannot guarantee his own security from death threats, let alone Israel's.

Formally, Sadat contends that the solution is to push Israel back to its shaky old borders and to plant a Palestinian state on the West Bank. Between the lines, he seemed to recognize the dangers in that scheme. He may be prepared to compromise, perhaps by adopting two sets of Israeli borders — one formal, one for security's sake. For their part, Israelis like Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan have opposed annexing the West Bank if Israel's security and its access to the area could be assured. Where there is a (good) will, there can be many ways.

- THE UNITED STATES should support the forces of war. Elementary? Of course, given this country's desire for plenty of oil and no confrontation between superpowers. But the State Department seems to have a problem differentiating the forces for peace in the Mideast from the forces for war. Note its recent flirtation with the PLO.

The range of reactions to Anwar Sadat's peace mission offers a pretty good way to tell the players apart in the Middle East. It might be noted that Saudi Arabia, which this Administration has showered with words of praise beyond belief and weapons systems beyond the Saudis' capacity to absorb them, showed up among those opposing the Sadat initiative — along with Syria, the PLO, Iraq, Libya and the Soviet Union. Whether Saudi Arabia's stand was dictated by fanaticism or fear, its foreign policy turns out to be about as moderate as its oil prices.

- Beware the Bear. While men of good will cheered Anwar Sadat's journey for peace, the Soviets led the propaganda barrage against it. So much for all this Administration gained by its joint Soviet-American communique on the Mideast. Arab fanatics may have excuses for their stand — like pride and vengeance. Soviet opposition to peace in the Middle East seems to be a matter of cool calculation. Once again its policy there boils down to: Make mischief. The longest running principle of Middle East watching — Beware the Bear — remains valid.

'Creeping increments may be fatal'

America is suffering from a severe case of the "increments!" It has reached epidemic proportions and in some cases is considered terminal! Increments are really horrible nasty little things. I shudder whenever I think of them. They affect everyone, rich and poor, black and white, young and old. You see them all over the place.

Increments are the vicious little units used in raising prices. The niggling creepy slimy 1 and 2 and 5 and 10 cent, and sometimes 50 cent rises you see in prices every time you go to the store. We find them slithering and lurking most around the shelves in food stores. Beware of them! They are deadly and disfiguring but the're here to stay. So far no vaccine, antibiotic or any other wonder drug has been devised to combat them or even keep them under control, and like other bacteria or virus when allowed to multiply unchecked, they have grown and grown and now are incurable.

Back in the '60s when this deadly plague was first isolated the "physicians" who are supposed to observe this sort of thing mentioned that a three per cent per year inflation rate would be very difficult to live with, but apparently no one took the increments seriously in those days and they were allowed to thrive. And in their underhanded insidious way they did, little by little. When people began to notice them more and more and finally sounded the alarm, it was too late. The patient was very ill with the increments and tried to shake them off but it was hopeless. Soon the increments will overwhelm us all.

They doubled and tripled and quadrupled in the '70's and by then every one was screaming — tax increments, food price increments, gasoline price increments. Along with cancer, multiple sclerosis and arthritis increments are seemingly invincible, and it's a disaster.

Webster says increments are "amounts of increase." Increase! It doesn't say anything about decrease, so I guess we know in what direction the increments are taking us. Shouldn't someone be searching desperately for a cure for this scourge? After all they have the American Cancer Society, American Lung Association, foundations for this disease, that ailment.

I propose someone start an American Anti-Increment Society before we all get incremented to death. I know of only one thing worse in the economy than the increments: the people who employ them!

'No need for abortion clinic'

I'm convinced an abortion clinic is not needed in Elk Grove.

Northwest Community Hospital already performs this surgical procedure both on an in-patient and outpatient basis.

There already exists an ambulatory surgical unit next to this hospital.

The Daily Herald reported one Elk Grove resident as saying if the service were personally needed, she would not use a local facility. My friends and acquaintances state the same.

I believe local government should be able to determine for itself what types of health care its people want and need. Ordinances should reflect what we the people need and want.

This out-of-town firm will be using our resources and should be giving us health services the majority wants and will use.

It is difficult, to put it mildly, to picture ultra-conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., on the cutting edge of political change.

But when it comes to campaign financing, Helms is blazing a trail which others may very well try to follow in the years ahead.

A full year before he must face the North Carolina voters in his bid for a second term, Helms has raised an astounding $1.7 million in campaign contributions — roughly five times as much as any other candidate for the Senate next year.

ONLY THREE 1976 senatorial contenders spent that much money for the primary and general elections combined, and they were running in states far bigger than North Carolina.

Sen. John H. Heinz III, R-Pa., shelled out $3 million, of which $2.5 million was his own money, while former Sens. James Buckley, R-N.Y., and John V. Tunney, D-Calif., spent $2.1 million and $1.9 million respectively on losing efforts to retain their seats.

Unlike these and other big spenders of yesteryear, Helms has built up his war chest almost entirely from small contributions averaging about $13 per donation.

His secret weapon? Direct mail wizard Richard Viguerie, who has targeted fund-raising appeals at conservative true-believers all over the nation.

VIGUERIE'S "prospecting" operation for Helms didn't come cheap. The senator has spent almost as much money as he has raised, and at least 40 per cent has gone right to Viguerie.

But Helms now has accumulated a list of more than 100,000 sure-fire contributors who will be tapped again and again in the coming year, at minimal cost to the campaign.

In some respects, Helms is uniquely positioned to capitalize on a direct mail fund-raising scheme. Over the past couple of years, he has gradually emerged as a hero to the far right.

He has traveled widely, speaking to conservative groups all across the nation, and has lent his name to a variety of issue-oriented crusades by organizations opposing big labor and big government.

NONETHELESS, the direct mail technique Helms is using to finance his re-election campaign is likely to be employed by more and more candidates in years ahead, regardless of whether they have a readily identifiable pool of potential contributors to target.

The reason is simple. Campaign reform laws of the past few years have clamped strict limits on the amount both individuals and organizations may legally contribute to political candidates.

Other senators and House members, especially those who are not personally wealthy, must rely on small donations to survive. The day of the fat cat is over.

Direct mail, despite the enormous start-up costs, pays tremendous dividends. His Senate colleagues may sneer at Helms' hide-bound political views and his utterly predictable voting pattern, but they are gazing with awe at his campaign bankroll.

Harper's first steps good

The Harper College board of trustees has started on the right road in the two weeks since the departure of college Pres. Robert E. Lahti.

The board is preparing to name a search committee to help with the task of finding Lahti's replacement. In addition, board members are studying six proposals from firms for the college's new master plan and are expected to select one in January.

The actions so far on the search committee and master plan indicate that the new board has a firm sense of the needed direction for the college. If the board can maintain this balanced sense of purpose the school will be well served in the coming months.

Most heartening is the board's action ensuring that the new master plan, which will replace the plan developed in 1966, will include an objective look at many of the college's philosophies.

Last April, the plan was for the board to hire an architectural firm to help revise the master plan, but the board majority headed off that action, fearing that hiring an architect would bias the plan in favor of construction of a second campus.

The present master plan proposals have been submitted by educational consultants — not architects — and the board hopes the shift will result in an unbiased look at both the need for a second campus and at the over-all growth pattern at Harper.

The choice of the search committee to aid in selection of a new president will be crucial to the future direction being set by the board. The committee must represent as many constituencies as possible and must also be composed of persons who are willing to work for Harper's future without indulging in recriminations about past disagreements.

The Harper board so far has provided the leadership the college needs in this difficult transitional period. Continued effort will give Harper a firm foundation for the future.

Macomb can use Wheeling's help

Wheeling Village Trustee John Cole has the right idea in proposing that Wheeling lend its support to the western Illinois city of Macomb in its efforts to get stop signs at a dangerous intersection.

The intersection of U.S. Rts. 136 and 67 was the site of an accident which killed Jeffrey Broxham, 22, of Wheeling, a student at Western Illinois University. The accident which killed the youth is one of 17 which have occurred at the intersection since Jan. 1.

While traffic problems around Macomb may seem remote to many Wheeling residents, Cole, who has two children in school there, has pointed out that many Wheeling youngsters attend the university.

The Macomb City Council and the university have supported police requests for better lighting and four-way stop signs at the intersection. The Illinois Department of Transportation must act on the request.

Northwest suburban officials know how hard it can be to get the transportation department to act on hazardous intersections.

Support for Macomb's efforts to improve their hazardous intersection is appropriate. If Wheeling can help save any lives, a village board resolution will be worth the trouble.

Sadat's obvious lessons on the way to find peace

Paul Greenberg

Peace has its victories as well as war, and they should be studied as intently. Anwar Sadat's journey to Jerusalem was a great victory for peace and some of its lessons, many of them obvious but too long ignored, might be noted for future reference:

- The essence of peace is good will. Without it, the most ingenious diplomatic solutions may not avail. See Vietnam. With it, ingenious diplomatic solutions may not be necessary. On this trip, Anwar Sadat did not seem to care on which side of Jerusalem he slept or whom he might offend by praying in a mosque now under the jurisdiction of the infidel. He rose above all that; he had a more important victory in mind. He felt no need to talk of who "won" this meeting and by how many points of protocol. Peace is the victory of all. There is much the president of Egypt might be able to teach our own State Department, including the name of the real capital of Israel. (Hint. It is not Tel Aviv.)

- Direct negotiations offer the most promising path to peace. Compare the atmosphere of Anwar Sadat's visit to Jerusalem with the general murk of proximity talks and negotiations through third parties like Henry Kissinger. Indirect negotiations tend to filter out the good will and the interests of the go-between may even be substituted for those of the negotiating parties.

CAUTION: HISTORY HAS determined that forcing a nation into negotiations with a party bent on its destruction may be dangerous to its health. Again, see Vietnam. And note the official position of the Palestine Liberation Organization on the illegitimacy of the state of Israel.

- Peace in the Middle East cannot be divorced from the need for a strong Israel. Contrast the tone of Anwar Sadat's speech to the Knesset Sunday with the one he gave the Egyptian parliament in the first days of the Yom Kippur War, when the Israelis were still reeling under the Egyptian assault. If Anwar Sadat's visit to Israel this past week had a dreamlike quality, it could not have been even the stuff of dreams if Israel had been broken in that war, or had not been heavily rearmed since.

The Carter Administration deserves considerable credit for having absorbed and acted on this important lesson. It may have angered and dismayed the Israelis with some of its words, but unlike its predecessor, this Administration never choked off Israel's arms supplies and called that a reassessment of foreign policy.

SOME OF THE credit for that should be shared with Israel's steadfast friends in Congress, who at crucial moments made it clear that they would not go along with pushing the Israelis into a corner — a position not conducive to generous compromise. It might be remembered that the vast majority of American senators signed a letter in support of Israel at the height of the Kissinger Reassessment.

- The momentum toward peace must be maintained. Anwar Sadat now has broken through the psychological barriers erected by this modern Thirty Years War. That act took great courage and vision. Now the Israelis should respond as generously and as publicly, not only to reward the Egyptian leader but to induce other Arab leaders to make the same hegira from war to peace.

The essential challenge of Middle Eastern diplomacy is not how to divide territory as such, but how to reconcile Israel's understandable obsession with security with the need to restore Arab pride. It was gracious of Anwar Sadat to welcome Israel to the Middle East after 30 years of unremitting war (". . . in sincerity I tell you that we welcome you among us with all security and safety.") But the words lose some of their sheen when one realizes, as the Israelis surely do, that Anwar Sadat cannot guarantee his own security from death threats, let alone Israel's.

Formally, Sadat contends that the solution is to push Israel back to its shaky old borders and to plant a Palestinian state on the West Bank. Between the lines, he seemed to recognize the dangers in that scheme. He may be prepared to compromise, perhaps by adopting two sets of Israeli borders — one formal, one for security's sake. For their part, Israelis like Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan have opposed annexing the West Bank if Israel's security and its access to the area could be assured. Where there is a (good) will, there can be many ways.

- THE UNITED STATES should support the forces of war. Elementary? Of course, given this country's desire for plenty of oil and no confrontation between superpowers. But the State Department seems to have a problem differentiating the forces for peace in the Mideast from the forces for war. Note its recent flirtation with the PLO.

The range of reactions to Anwar Sadat's peace mission offers a pretty good way to tell the players apart in the Middle East. It might be noted that Saudi Arabia, which this Administration has showered with words of praise beyond belief and weapons systems beyond the Saudis' capacity to absorb them, showed up among those opposing the Sadat initiative — along with Syria, the PLO, Iraq, Libya and the Soviet Union. Whether Saudi Arabia's stand was dictated by fanaticism or fear, its foreign policy turns out to be about as moderate as its oil prices.

- Beware the Bear. While men of good will cheered Anwar Sadat's journey for peace, the Soviets led the propaganda barrage against it. So much for all this Administration gained by its joint Soviet-American communique on the Mideast. Arab fanatics may have excuses for their stand — like pride and vengeance. Soviet opposition to peace in the Middle East seems to be a matter of cool calculation. Once again its policy there boils down to: Make mischief. The longest running principle of Middle East watching — Beware the Bear — remains valid.

Dist. 59 promotion plan requires dialogue between sides not hysteria

Commentary

Pam Thomas

Byline report

A promotion policy designed to make sure children in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 learn basic academic skills has swept the district into hysteria.

A circus atmosphere at board of education meetings has been building for months, ever since the district became embroiled in a drive to forma unit school district in Elk Grove Township.

But it has reached crisis proportions over a well-intentioned but badly worked promotion policy that is drawing hundreds of parents to board meetings to find out what the policy means.

THE PROMOTION POLICY, which weighs standardized test scores heavily in deciding whether to promote a child, was approved by the same 4-3 board vote that has marked many other decisions in Dist. 59 since the board election last April.

The board minority, frustrated by its lack of power in decision-making, has resorted childishly to "getting back" at the majority members by constantly insulting them during board meetings.

Board member Judy Zanca even plays to the audience by making faces, rolling her eyes, clapping and hooting at remarks made by audience or other board members.

THE BOARD majority, on the other hand, headed by Pres. Harold Harvey, has become arrogant and stubborn in the face of parents' concern, rejecting pleas to spell out what will determine the sensitive issue of whether a child passes or fails.

The audience, not surprisingly, has little respect for the serious business of board meetings and turns them into contests to see who can make the most outrageous statement and garner the most applause.

It's ridiculous that in a district where scores on the Iowa Test of Basic Skills, a national standardized test, frequently dip below the national average, a promising attempt to remedy the situation has gotten so out of hand.

The promotion policy plainly states that a student scoring more than a year below his grade level on the math and reading portions of the Iowa test "will not be promoted." The policy also states that other factors will be taken into consideration and the board insists this will be so.

PARENTS, however, have grasped that one line — "will not be promoted" — as the overriding factor in the policy. Whether the board really intends the Iowa scores to be the bottom line, that's the way the policy sounds.

The board majority has been unclear why it will not change the policy to eliminate what seems to be a contradiction. It is apparent, however, that they are worried the policy won't be taken seriously if there is not a real threat built into it.

The district's administrators will be the ones to see that the policy works. If the board doesn't trust them to follow the spirit of the policy, with or without its present harsh language, the board should get employes it can trust, instead of riling the community over internal politics.

The furor over this policy is likely to continue until a method of enforcing it is worked out, and there are many unanswered questions. Still to be decided is when and how many times the Iowa test will be given and how much more remedial help the district can provide to children who are below grade level.

WHATEVER methods are used, the important point is that there seems to be many children in Dist. 59 whose math and reading skills are below the national average — and far lower than those in surrounding school districts. This policy is intended to find those children and help them.

It would be refreshing to see both factions on the board shed their adversary roles and work together to find a way of enforcing this policy so children who need extra help aren't thrust year after year into classes where they don't have the skills to compete.

Parents have said they are protesting a specific aspect of this policy, not the general idea of promotion guidelines. If, as the board majority has insisted, the enforcement of the policy shows promotion will not be based solely on Iowa test scores, parents would be greatly relieved to have the policy rewritten so everyone knows what it means.

Senate still spawning presidents?

by STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Is the Senate still a spawning ground for presidential candidates now that a former one-term governor now occupies the White House?

Yes.

It is already virtually certain that a number of Republican senators will seek the GOP nomination in 1980.

AND SHOULD A challenge to President Carter arise within his own party, that also could come from the Senate.

The Senate as the natural springboard for a presidential nomination is a modern political development that has taken roots.

Until Carter broke the streak by whiplashing a number of senators and others in the primaries, the Democrats had picked four straight candidates with a background in the Senate and since 1944, presidential nominees plucked members of Congress for vice-president.

There is a similar track record among the Republicans, although GOP senators have not been picked as often for the vice presidential nomination.

DWIGHT D. Eisenhower plucked Richard Nixon from the Senate in 1952 and kept him in 1956.

Nixon then won the nomination but lost the election in 1960 before winning in 1968 and 1972. In between, Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater won the nomination in 1964.

With that kind of history, it is not surprising that a number of Republican senators are giving very serious consideration to making the race for the GOP nomination in 1980.

Although he has not announced, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, last year's vice presidential candidate, is off and running.

ALREADY WELL-KNOWN throughout the party and even nationally as Gerald Ford's running-mate and as the fast-quipping former national chairman, Dole has moved to position himself as a credible candidate.

Another probable candidate from the Senate is Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee who has never bothered to conceal his long-range ambitions. He is up for re-election in 1978 but is spending as much — if not more — time on the stump in other states.

A third name that crops up is Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut who is not as well-known and comes from the smaller liberal wing of the party.

ALTHOUGH IT APPEARS certain that two or more senators will mount a campaign, there is no certainty the GOP candidate will come from the Senate.

Neither Ford nor Ronald Reagan have counted themselves out and many are counting Illinois Gov. Jim Thompson and former Treasury Sec. John Connally in.

The furor over this policy is likely to continue until a method of enforcing it is worked out, and there are many unanswered questions. Still to be decided is when and how many times the Iowa test will be given and how much more remedial help the district can provide to children who are below grade level.

WHATEVER methods are used, the important point is that there seems to be many children in Dist. 59 whose math and reading skills are below the national average – and far lower than those in surrounding school districts. This policy is intended to find those children and help them.

It would be refreshing to see both factions on the board shed their adversary roles and work together to find a way of enforcing this policy so children who need extra help aren't thrust year after year into classes where they don't have the skills to compete.

Parents have said they are protesting a specific aspect of this policy, not the general idea of promotion guidelines. If, as the board majority has insisted, the enforcement of the policy shows promotion will not be based solely on Iowa test scores, parents would be greatly relieved to have the policy rewritten so everyone knows what it means.

Senate still spawning presidents?

by STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Is the Senate still a spawning ground for presidential candidates now that a former one-term governor now occupies the White House?

Yes.

It is already virtually certain that a number of Republican senators will seek the GOP nomination in 1980.

AND SHOULD A challenge to President Carter arise within his own party, that also could come from the Senate.

The Senate as the natural springboard for a presidential nomination is a modern political development that has taken roots.

Until Carter broke the streak by whiplashing a number of senators and others in the primaries, the Democrats had picked four straight candidates with a background in the Senate and since 1944, presidential nominees plucked members of Congress for vice-president.

There is a similar track record among the Republicans, although GOP senators have not been picked as often for the vice presidential nomination.

DWIGHT D. Eisenhower plucked Richard Nixon from the Senate in 1952 and kept him in 1956.

Nixon then won the nomination but lost the election in 1960 before winning in 1968 and 1972. In between, Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater won the nomination in 1964.

With that kind of history, it is not surprising that a number of Republican senators are giving very serious consideration to making the race for the GOP nomination in 1980.

Although he has not announced, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, last year's vice presidential candidate, is off and running.

ALREADY WELL-KNOWN throughout the party and even nationally as Gerald Ford's running-mate and as the fast-quipping former national chairman, Dole has moved to position himself as a credible candidate.

Another probable candidate from the Senate is Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee who has never bothered to conceal his long-range ambitions. He is up for re-election in 1978 but is spending as much — if not more — time on the stump in other states.

A third name that crops up is Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut who is not as well-known and comes from the smaller liberal wing of the party.

ALTHOUGH IT APPEARS certain that two or more senators will mount a campaign, there is no certainty the GOP candidate will come from the Senate.

Neither Ford nor Ronald Reagan have counted themselves out and many are counting Illinois Gov. Jim Thompson and former Treasury Sec. John Connally in.

CAN YOU PICTURE IT? Here's Dave Kingman swinging for the snug Wrigley Field fences. Notice the Mets uniform. For years, the slugger has put terror into Cub pitchers, but all of that changed Wednesday when he signed a five-year contract with the Cubs. The terms were believed to be $1 million. Kingman, a Prospect High School graduate, has finally come home after playing for five teams, four during the last season.

Cubs sign Kingman to five-year contract

by JIM COOK

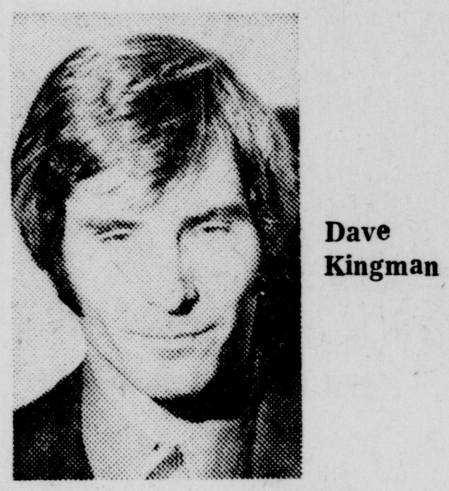
There probably are Chicagoans who are unhappy the Cubs signed home-grown cannon Dave Kingman to a five-year contract estimated at more than $1 million. And they're not South Siders.

They're the landlords of the apartment buildings across from intimate Wrigley Field. Insurance premiums undoubtedly will increase. "Kong" Kingman vandalized windows, loosened bricks and rearranged the ivy that borders Waveland Ave., with his tape-measure home run swing as a Cub opponent on three National League clubs.

In another transaction Wednesday night, outfielder Elliott Maddox, 28, troubled with injuries since a brilliant 1975 season with the New York Yankees, signed with the New York Mets to a five-year package estimated at about $800,000.

"IT'S GREAT coming back. It's like a homecoming for me," Kingman, 28, said from his mother's Mount Prospect home Wednesday night. "It's exciting to be back with my friends and relatives. And it's particularly exciting to think about hitting in Wrigley Field. I love it."

By signing the 6-foot-6 righthander to a five-year pact, the Cubs temporarily have anchored Kingman's nomad career. The temperamental slugger called the New York Mets, San Diego Padres, California Angels and New York Yankees teammates last year alone.



Dave Kingman

"It's nice to know he's on our side for a while," Cub Gen. Mgr. Bob Kennedy said between bites of a later dinner. "It kind of gives me chills up my spine to think about him hitting among guys like Bill Buckner, Bobby Murcer, Jerry Morales, Steve Ontiveros and Manny Trillo."

Kennedy explained the Cubs' surprising participation in the reentry draft. "I know it's out first action in the draft and who knows, it might be our last. But I think we left an impression."

Ironically, it was Kennedy who was quoted as saying Kingman would never wear a Chicago Cubs uniform after a spectacular collision and ensuing fight with second baseman Mick Kelleher last August.

"I DID SAY, that, but I couldn't very well say that we would have loved to have him playing for the Cubs. They call that tampering, and the league office doesn't look at that too lightly.

"I know that Dave took considerably less than the other ball clubs were offering to play for the Cubs, so I know that he is happy here. He made some severe concessions."

Kingman was drafted by just six teams in the reentry draft. The Cubs selected him second, behind Larry Hisle who has signed with the Milwaukee Brewers.

"There were a lot of pros and cons to consider," Kingman said, after a 3½-hour negotiating session with the Cubs' brass Wednesday. "I'm happy with the terms of the contract. There was a lot of give and take."

KINGMAN, WHO accepts a lion's share of strikeouts as a part of being a home-run hitter, enjoyed his best seasons with the Mets in 1975 and 1976. In the former, he hit 36 homers, drove in 88 runs while hitting .231. In 1976, he blasted 37 homers, drove in 86 runs and hit .238.

"I really think he can help us," Kennedy said. "He's not close to hitting his potential as far as we're concerned. I'm going to leave the managing up to Herman (Franks), but I think Dave will be playing left field for us."

That would leave Jerry Morales in center and Murcer in right and give the Cubs a slow, but powerful outfield.

Kingman, whose fielding has received as much publicity as his titanic home runs, had the dubious distinction of leading the league in 1974 with 25 errors.

"The secret to any winniig club is its pitching," Kingman said. "I think the Cubs have the ability to produce runs, but their pitching has to hold them down. They were a contender last year and I don't know why we can't do it again this year. . .but all the way."

Kingman's rollercoaster career, in which he has a lifetime average under .250 is surging again. Cubs hearts are pounding, too, even in the dead of winter.

Play ball!

Hawks get no hometown help in loss to Buffalo

by JEFF NORDLUND

Chicago Stadium ice was no more friendly to the Black Hawks Wednesday night than other rinks have been lately.

The Buffalo Sabres welcomed the Hawks back home from a disastrous road trip by beating the slumping Chicagoans, 3-2.

After falling behind 2-0, the Hawks battled back with goals by Bob Kelly in the first period and Jim Harrison in the third period to tie the game. But rookie Ric Seiling, the Sabres' No. 1 draft pick this season, spoiled the homecoming with his fourth goal of the year later in the final period.

FOR THE HAWKS, the game marked their fourth loss in seven games — the first three setbacks coming on their 1-3-2 road trip.

"I think the Hawks skated a good game," winning coach Marcel Pronovost said later. "They'll win their share of games playing like that. They're disciplined."

"They won't overpower you with speed," the Buffalo coach said. "They have to play their brand of hockey. In three games with the Hawks this season we're dead even at 1-1-1."

Despite Pronovost's compliments, the Hawks continued to display their tendency of falling behind after committing defensive lapses.

Before all of the crowd of 12,153 had settled in their seats the Hawks fell behind 2-0 in the first six and a half minutes.

GIL PERREAULT, the Sabres' leading scorer, picked up his 15th goal of the season after he broke across the Hawks' blue line and skated in on goalie Tony Esposito. His weak backhand trickled in at 4:05, assisted by Jim Lorentz and Rene Robert.

Ten seconds after Russell had served his slashing penalty, Buffalo scored again when Danny Gare launched a slap shot past Esposito from the left faceoff circle. The goal was his 12th of the season and was assisted by Craig Ramsay and Lee Fogolin.

The Hawks pulled to within one later in the period when Kelly tipped in a rebound shot at 13:41. Russell started the scoring play by taking the puck around the Sabres' net and centering to Kelly and Cliff Koroll, who waited in front of the crease. After Koroll's shot was blocked by goalie Don Edwards, Kelly flicked in his third goal of the year.

The scoreless second period was marked by three sets of coincidental penalties. Buffalo's Andre Savard and the Hawks' Ted Bulley were both tagged with five-minute fighting penalties midway through the period when they dropped their gloves to do battle in front of the Buffalo net.

HARRISON CAUGHT Edwards by surprise for his sizzling 60-foot slap shot at the start of a Hawks' power play early in the third period. The goal, Harrison's second of the season, at 2:20 of the third period gave the Hawks a 2-2 tie — one that lasted less than two minutes.

Seiling broke in on Esposito's right on a breakaway moments after Harrison's goal and flipped a shot past the goalie for the eventual winner. It was the right wing's fourth score of the season.

"We were loaded on the left side, and Seiling made a good play as Esposito came out," Pronovost said. "The big thing on the goal was the alertness on the part of Seiling."

Hawks' coach Bob Pulford lamented over his team's growing inability to win the close ones.

"The games are there that should be won, but we're just not taking advantage of it," he said. "We didn't play well tonight. We made three mistakes, and it cost us three goals.

Celtic veteran Dave Bing hands Bulls 98-92 loss

BOSTON — Relying on the hot shooting of veteran Dave Bing, the struggling Celtics defeated the Bulls, 98-92, here Wednesday night.

It was only the seventh victory in 19 tries for the once-perennial world champions this season, and the Celtics reminisced for an evening as Bing led the team with 21 points.

For the Bulls, they closed out the month of November with a 6-7 record, 10-9 for the season. Twelve of their games, however, have been on the rough NBA road. They will begin December action Friday night at Indiana before returning to the Chicago Stadium, where they will open a five-game home stand against Cleveland.

BING AND company broke a modest two-game Bulls win streak. The veteran guard was replacing Charlie Scott, who was out of the Celtic lineup with an injured hand.

The Bulls were without starting guard Norm Van Lier. After sparking the 95-87 victory over New Orleans Tuesday night, Van Lier became ill on the plane trip to Boston and was sent back to Chicago.

That loss did not stop the Bulls from breaking out to a 31-23 lead early in the second quarter, their biggest advantage of the game. A few minutes later, the Celtics scored eight streight points, the last four by substitute John Javlicek, to take a 37-35 lead.

The score was tied five times for the rest of the opening half until Boston took command when Curtis Rowe made a three-point play with one second on the clock. It gave the Celtics a 50-45 lead at the half.

THEY EXTENDED that margin to eight points, 54-46, at the start of the third quarter before the Bulls started to fight back. The visitors put together a streak of 11 points to regain a 57-54 lead.

The Bulls opened the final period with two quick baskets to take their last lead of the contest at 75-73. Though they tied the score two times in the closing minutes, the Bulls could not gain another advantage over on the Celtics, who maintained the controlling factor through the services of yet another veteran.

Center Dave Cowens, who did not make his first field goal until only 4:58 remained in the game, socred a string of six points and had an interception to provide his team with a 92-86 lead. It came with just over two minutes left in the game.

Artis Gilmore, Cowens' defensive opponent, was the game's leading scorer with 30 points as he continued to dominate the Bulls' offensive output. He has led the attack for the Bulls in almost every game this season. Scott May added 19 points.

The game marked the first time this season that Boston has held an opponent under 100 points.

District volleyball titles to Bison and Mustangs

Buffalo Grove and Rolling Meadows came up with district volleyball titles Wednesday night, earning the right to advance to the Barrington sectional Dec. 6-8.

The Bison defeated Fremd 20-16, 20-11 at their own district as coach Paula Von Gerichton watched a team effort down the Vikings.

"In all honesty, all of my kids played well tonight," Von Gerichton said. "We hit well."

BUFFALO GROVE improved its over-all record to 8-13 after spotting Fremd with a 6-2 lead in the second game. But the Bison came back strong to handle the Vikings.

Rolling Meadows lost the opening match to Forest View, 20-16, at the Falcon district before coming back to edge the hosts 20-17 and winning the title with a 20-12 victory.

"That was a real shot in the arm. We were ready to play again after losing the first game," said coach Elaine Wissen. "We picked up some momentum and thank goodness we capitalized on it."

Wissen said her Mustangs were a bit down after losing the Mid-Suburban League title to Barrington and then dropping three straight at the Maine South Tournament. The Mustang coach said her players learned a lot from the tough competition at Maine South.

"Our kids are real enthused right now," Wissen said.

Glenbrook North defeated Wheeling 20-5, 18-20, 20-18, at the Wildcat district.

"It's nice to know he's on our side for a while," Cub Gen. Mgr. Bob Kennedy said between bites of a later dinner. "It kind of gives me chills up my spine to think about him hitting among guys like Bill Buckner, Bobby Murcer, Jerry Morales, Steve Ontiveros and Manny Trillo."

Kennedy explained the Cubs' surprising participation in the reentry draft. "I know it's out first action in the draft and who knows, it might be our last. But I think we left an impression."

Ironically, it was Kennedy who was quoted as saying Kingman would never wear a Chicago Cubs uniform after a spectacular collision and ensuing fight with second baseman Mick Kelleher last August.

"I DID SAY, that, but I couldn't very well say that we would have loved to have him playing for the Cubs. They call that tampering, and the league office doesn't look at that too lightly.

"I know that Dave took considerably less than the other ball clubs were offering to play for the Cubs, so I know that he is happy here. He made some severe concessions."

Kingman was drafted by just six teams in the reentry draft. The Cubs selected him second, behind Larry Hisle who has signed with the Milwaukee Brewers.

"There were a lot of pros and cons to consider," Kingman said, after a 3½-hour negotiating session with the Cubs' brass Wednesday. "I'm happy with the terms of the contract. There was a lot of give and take."

KINGMAN, WHO accepts a lion's share of strikeouts as a part of being a home-run hitter, enjoyed his best seasons with the Mets in 1975 and 1976. In the former, he hit 36 homers, drove in 88 runs while hitting .231. In 1976, he blasted 37 homers, drove in 86 runs and hit .238.

"I really think he can help us," Kennedy said. "He's not close to hitting his potential as far as we're concerned. I'm going to leave the managing up to Herman (Franks), but I think Dave will be playing left field for us."

That would leave Jerry Morales in center and Murcer in right and give the Cubs a slow, but powerful outfield.

Kingman, whose fielding has received as much publicity as his titanic home runs, had the dubious distinction of leading the league in 1974 with 25 errors.

"The secret to any winniig club is its pitching," Kingman said. "I think the Cubs have the ability to produce runs, but their pitching has to hold them down. They were a contender last year and I don't know why we can't do it again this year. . .but all the way."

Kingman's rollercoaster career, in which he has a lifetime average under .250 is surging again. Cubs hearts are pounding, too, even in the dead of winter.

Hawks get no hometown help in loss to Buffalo

by JEFF NORDLUND

Chicago Stadium ice was no more friendly to the Black Hawks Wednesday night than other rinks have been lately.

The Buffalo Sabres welcomed the Hawks back home from a disastrous road trip by beating the slumping Chicagoans, 3-2.

After falling behind 2-0, the Hawks battled back with goals by Bob Kelly in the first period and Jim Harrison in the third period to tie the game. But rookie Ric Seiling, the Sabres' No. 1 draft pick this season, spoiled the homecoming with his fourth goal of the year later in the final period.

FOR THE HAWKS, the game marked their fourth loss in seven games — the first three setbacks coming on their 1-3-2 road trip.

"I think the Hawks skated a good game," winning coach Marcel Pronovost said later. "They'll win their share of games playing like that. They're disciplined."

"They won't overpower you with speed," the Buffalo coach said. "They have to play their brand of hockey. In three games with the Hawks this season we're dead even at 1-1-1."

Despite Pronovost's compliments, the Hawks continued to display their tendency of falling behind after committing defensive lapses.

Before all of the crowd of 12,153 had settled in their seats the Hawks fell behind 2-0 in the first six and a half minutes.

GIL PERREAULT, the Sabres' leading scorer, picked up his 15th goal of the season after he broke across the Hawks' blue line and skated in on goalie Tony Esposito. His weak backhand trickled in at 4:05, assisted by Jim Lorentz and Rene Robert.

Ten seconds after Russell had served his slashing penalty, Buffalo scored again when Danny Gare launched a slap shot past Esposito from the left faceoff circle. The goal was his 12th of the season and was assisted by Craig Ramsay and Lee Fogolin.

The Hawks pulled to within one later in the period when Kelly tipped in a rebound shot at 13:41. Russell started the scoring play by taking the puck around the Sabres' net and centering to Kelly and Cliff Koroll, who waited in front of the crease. After Koroll's shot was blocked by goalie Don Edwards, Kelly flicked in his third goal of the year.

The scoreless second period was marked by three sets of coincidental penalties. Buffalo's Andre Savard and the Hawks' Ted Bulley were both tagged with five-minute fighting penalties midway through the period when they dropped their gloves to do battle in front of the Buffalo net.

HARRISON CAUGHT Edwards by surprise for his sizzling 60-foot slap shot at the start of a Hawks' power play early in the third period. The goal, Harrison's second of the season, at 2:20 of the third period gave the Hawks a 2-2 tie — one that lasted less than two minutes.

Seiling broke in on Esposito's right on a breakaway moments after Harrison's goal and flipped a shot past the goalie for the eventual winner. It was the right wing's fourth score of the season.

"We were loaded on the left side, and Seiling made a good play as Esposito came out," Pronovost said. "The big thing on the goal was the alertness on the part of Seiling."

Hawks' coach Bob Pulford lamented over his team's growing inability to win the close ones.

"The games are there that should be won, but we're just not taking advantage of it," he said. "We didn't play well tonight. We made three mistakes, and it cost us three goals.

Celtic veteran Dave Bing hands Bulls 98-92 loss

BOSTON — Relying on the hot shooting of veteran Dave Bing, the struggling Celtics defeated the Bulls, 98-92, here Wednesday night.

It was only the seventh victory in 19 tries for the once-perennial world champions this season, and the Celtics reminisced for an evening as Bing led the team with 21 points.

For the Bulls, they closed out the month of November with a 6-7 record, 10-9 for the season. Twelve of their games, however, have been on the rough NBA road. They will begin December action Friday night at Indiana before returning to the Chicago Stadium, where they will open a five-game home stand against Cleveland.

BING AND company broke a modest two-game Bulls win streak. The veteran guard was replacing Charlie Scott, who was out of the Celtic lineup with an injured hand.

The Bulls were without starting guard Norm Van Lier. After sparking the 95-87 victory over New Orleans Tuesday night, Van Lier became ill on the plane trip to Boston and was sent back to Chicago.

That loss did not stop the Bulls from breaking out to a 31-23 lead early in the second quarter, their biggest advantage of the game. A few minutes later, the Celtics scored eight streight points, the last four by substitute John Javlicek, to take a 37-35 lead.

The score was tied five times for the rest of the opening half until Boston took command when Curtis Rowe made a three-point play with one second on the clock. It gave the Celtics a 50-45 lead at the half.

THEY EXTENDED that margin to eight points, 54-46, at the start of the third quarter before the Bulls started to fight back. The visitors put together a streak of 11 points to regain a 57-54 lead.

The Bulls opened the final period with two quick baskets to take their last lead of the contest at 75-73. Though they tied the score two times in the closing minutes, the Bulls could not gain another advantage over on the Celtics, who maintained the controlling factor through the services of yet another veteran.

Center Dave Cowens, who did not make his first field goal until only 4:58 remained in the game, socred a string of six points and had an interception to provide his team with a 92-86 lead. It came with just over two minutes left in the game.

Artis Gilmore, Cowens' defensive opponent, was the game's leading scorer with 30 points as he continued to dominate the Bulls' offensive output. He has led the attack for the Bulls in almost every game this season. Scott May added 19 points.

The game marked the first time this season that Boston has held an opponent under 100 points.

District volleyball titles to Bison and Mustangs

Buffalo Grove and Rolling Meadows came up with district volleyball titles Wednesday night, earning the right to advance to the Barrington sectional Dec. 6-8.

The Bison defeated Fremd 20-16, 20-11 at their own district as coach Paula Von Gerichton watched a team effort down the Vikings.

"In all honesty, all of my kids played well tonight," Von Gerichton said. "We hit well."

BUFFALO GROVE improved its over-all record to 8-13 after spotting Fremd with a 6-2 lead in the second game. But the Bison came back strong to handle the Vikings.

Rolling Meadows lost the opening match to Forest View, 20-16, at the Falcon district before coming back to edge the hosts 20-17 and winning the title with a 20-12 victory.

"That was a real shot in the arm. We were ready to play again after losing the first game," said coach Elaine Wissen. "We picked up some momentum and thank goodness we capitalized on it."

Wissen said her Mustangs were a bit down after losing the Mid-Suburban League title to Barrington and then dropping three straight at the Maine South Tournament. The Mustang coach said her players learned a lot from the tough competition at Maine South.

"Our kids are real enthused right now," Wissen said.

Glenbrook North defeated Wheeling 20-5, 18-20, 20-18, at the Wildcat district.

5 new teams plunge into Mid-Suburban girls swim

Bigger and, hopefully, better, will be the motto this year as girls swimming gets under way in the Mid-Suburgan League.

A total of five new teams will venture into MSL swimming for the first time. Conant, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Palatine and Fremd, all High School Dist. 211 schools with new pools, will join the eight Dist. 214 schools as action starts in earnest today with a full slate of action.

Wheeling is at Conant, Rolling Meadows hosts Fremd, Palatine is at Schaumburg, Forest View visits Buffalo Grove, Hersey is at Elk Grove and Hoffman ventures to Arlington. All begin at 4:30 p.m.

There are two league champions to be pursued this year as co-champions Arlington and Prospect will be defending their title. Prospect handed Arlington its only loss in conference action last year but the Cards got their revenge by winning the conference meet, giving the league title to both squads.

Even the season will have a new look this year as girls swimming begins its first season as a winter sport, after several seasons as a fall sport.

Boys swimming has been moved from winter to spring this year.

BILL MANLOVE

'White Shoes' gone now but Widener still winning

CHESTER, Pa. (UPI) — No one heard of Widener College until Billy "White Shoes" Johnson dashed off its small campus in 1974 and onto the Houston Oilers as one of the NFL's premier big play performers.

Now the Pioneers are looking to make a name for themselves again as they prepare for Saturday's game with Wabash in the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl for the NCAA Division III championship.

But Widener Coach Bill Manlove, who turned a faltering program into one of the finest small college teams in the nation, says that while the title is nice, he doesn't believe Widener will earn a national reputation a la Oklahoma or Texas by winning it.

"WELL, WE'VE got to win first and Wabash is a fine football team," he said. "I don't think that many people will remember that we've won a championship too long after we've won it. I'm sure most people can't give last year's Division III winner.

"But a win will have a great impact on the players who are here. It's something they'll always remember."

Manlove's nine-year record at Widener is 65-20 — 9-1 this year — and his teams have lost just six games in the last six seasons. He's done it for a school that does not give Athletic scholarships and has an annual recruiting budget of $650.

Ask him for the secret of his success and he'll point to his players.

"Every year we get the good players who have the attitude that they can do the job," Manlove said. "They have great confidence in their ability.

"OUR RECRUITING isn't really that extensive. We go for the local kids. Winning has helped bring the kids here. We always seem to get a lot of the so-called 'sleeper' players and they help us.

"As for our philosophy, we think it's a game. We play the game for fun. But we realize that it comes down to win, lose or tie and the last two are bad. I now I put plenty of pressure on myself to win. But it's not a matter of winning at every cost."

The road to Widener's first-ever championship game was quite a rocky one. The Pioneers suffered a 19-14 loss to Fordham on Sept. 24 at home and concern over that setback deepened in the next three weeks when Widener pulled out narrow wins against competition it wasn't supposed to have too much trouble with.

But on Oct. 22, the Pioneers got it together with a 42-12 victory over nationally ranked Franklin & Marshall to enter the playoff picture. Even after that win, however, the playoffs weren't a certainty.

"The fact that we weren't rated until the seventh game (after F&M), we didn't have the playoffs on our mind," Manlove said. "But the players were expecting the playoff bid since Day 1. We were left out last year with what we thought was a very good football team and we weren't optimistic this year."

But the playoff bid came and the Pioneers have defeated Central College of Iowa, 19-0, and Albany State, 33-15, to advance to the finals.

5 new teams plunge into Mid-Suburban girls swim

Bigger and, hopefully, better, will be the motto this year as girls swimming gets under way in the Mid-Suburgan League.

A total of five new teams will venture into MSL swimming for the first time. Conant, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Palatine and Fremd, all High School Dist. 211 schools with new pools, will join the eight Dist. 214 schools as action starts in earnest today with a full slate of action.

Wheeling is at Conant, Rolling Meadows hosts Fremd, Palatine is at Schaumburg, Forest View visits Buffalo Grove, Hersey is at Elk Grove and Hoffman ventures to Arlington. All begin at 4:30 p.m.

There are two league champions to be pursued this year as co-champions Arlington and Prospect will be defending their title. Prospect handed Arlington its only loss in conference action last year but the Cards got their revenge by winning the conference meet, giving the league title to both squads.

Even the season will have a new look this year as girls swimming begins its first season as a winter sport, after several seasons as a fall sport.

Boys swimming has been moved from winter to spring this year.

BILL MANLOVE

'White Shoes' gone now but Widener still winning

CHESTER, Pa. (UPI) — No one heard of Widener College until Billy "White Shoes" Johnson dashed off its small campus in 1974 and onto the Houston Oilers as one of the NFL's premier big play performers.

Now the Pioneers are looking to make a name for themselves again as they prepare for Saturday's game with Wabash in the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl for the NCAA Division III championship.

But Widener Coach Bill Manlove, who turned a faltering program into one of the finest small college teams in the nation, says that while the title is nice, he doesn't believe Widener will earn a national reputation a la Oklahoma or Texas by winning it.

"WELL, WE'VE got to win first and Wabash is a fine football team," he said. "I don't think that many people will remember that we've won a championship too long after we've won it. I'm sure most people can't give last year's Division III winner.

"But a win will have a great impact on the players who are here. It's something they'll always remember."

Manlove's nine-year record at Widener is 65-20 — 9-1 this year — and his teams have lost just six games in the last six seasons. He's done it for a school that does not give Athletic scholarships and has an annual recruiting budget of $650.

Ask him for the secret of his success and he'll point to his players.

"Every year we get the good players who have the attitude that they can do the job," Manlove said. "They have great confidence in their ability.

"OUR RECRUITING isn't really that extensive. We go for the local kids. Winning has helped bring the kids here. We always seem to get a lot of the so-called 'sleeper' players and they help us.

"As for our philosophy, we think it's a game. We play the game for fun. But we realize that it comes down to win, lose or tie and the last two are bad. I now I put plenty of pressure on myself to win. But it's not a matter of winning at every cost."

The road to Widener's first-ever championship game was quite a rocky one. The Pioneers suffered a 19-14 loss to Fordham on Sept. 24 at home and concern over that setback deepened in the next three weeks when Widener pulled out narrow wins against competition it wasn't supposed to have too much trouble with.

But on Oct. 22, the Pioneers got it together with a 42-12 victory over nationally ranked Franklin & Marshall to enter the playoff picture. Even after that win, however, the playoffs weren't a certainty.

"The fact that we weren't rated until the seventh game (after F&M), we didn't have the playoffs on our mind," Manlove said. "But the players were expecting the playoff bid since Day 1. We were left out last year with what we thought was a very good football team and we weren't optimistic this year."

But the playoff bid came and the Pioneers have defeated Central College of Iowa, 19-0, and Albany State, 33-15, to advance to the finals.

California Bears fire coach White

BERKELEY, Calif. — Milke White, the California Bears' head football coach for the past six years, was fired Wednesday by the universty's athletic director.

Director Dave Maggard said he decided to terminate White's contract after evaluating the total direction of the school's football program.

"I am making the decision based on what I feel is best for the future of California football," said Maggard.

White's 1977 team finished with an overall record of 7-4. The Bears were 4-0 in non-conference play but dropped to a 3-4 mark in Pacific 8 competition.

"Obviously, I am disappointed," said White of his dismissal after compiling a 34-31-1 mark over six seasons, the longest tenure of any Pac-8 head coach.

"I have been around the coaching ranks long enough to know that this is one of the hazards of the trade. I am more disappointed for my players and the assistant coaches, including my previous assistants and players who had helped us lay the foundation of the football program here at Cal."

In a related move Wednesday, University of Mississippi football coach Ken Cooper resigned and Texas Tech head coach Steve Sloan was offered the post hours later.

Cagers sue school for $72 million

ROCKVILLE, Md. — Six University of Maryland basketball players have sued the Washington Star and the campus newspaper, The Diamondback, for $72 million for articles concerning the players' academic difficulties.

The suit, filed last week in Prince George's County Circuit Court, asked for damages for "invasion of privacy" and "intentional infliction of mental distress." The players are John Bilney, Bill Bryant, Larry Gibson, JoJo Hunter, Lawrence Boston and Mike Davis.

Their attorney, Walter H. Madden, said the academic records in question were protected by the Buckley Amendment. which specifies a student's grades cannot be released without his consent.

Madden said the six players filed the suit on their own, and that it did not involve the university or its athletic department.

Vilas tops Grand Prix net circuit

NEW YORK — U.S. Open champion Guillermo Vilas has captured the $300,000 first prize in this year's Grand Prix tennis circuit of 76 tournaments, it was announced Wednesday.

The 25-year-old Argentinian who also won the French Open title, estabished a match record of 51 consecutive wins, the longest in the 10-year history of open tennis. He racked up a total of 1,947 Grand Prix performance points and is guaranteed top seeding in the Grand Prix Masters at Madison Square Garden Jan. 4-8.

Vilas will receive his $300,000 first prize check on the eve of the Masters, in which the top eight point winners of the 1977 Grand Prix circuit will compete for the playoff title. Vilas has already earned over $400,000 this year in tournament prize money.

Sonics sack Hopkins, hire Wilkens

SEATTLE — Bob Hopkins was fired Wednesday as coach of the Seattle SuperSonics of the NBA and replaced by Lenny Wilkens, director of player personnel and a former coach of the team.

Wilkens will remain as coach of the team until at least the end of the season at which time a further determination will be made, according to a club spokesman.

Executive vice president and general manager Zollie Volchok said Hopkins will be retained as director of scouting.

Hopkins, a graduate of Grambling, was drafted by the Syracuse Nationals of the NBA in the fourth round of the 1956 draft and played four seasons with the Nationals.

Norton pushes WBC for Ali fight

MADRID — No. 1 heavyweight contender Ken Norton Wednesday asked the World Boxing Council to force world champion Muhammad Ali to give him another shot at the title.

Norton appeared before the annual convention of the WBC when it started hearings on the matter which, WBC president Jose Sulaiman said, might result in Ali being stripped of his title.

The WBC earlier gave Ali until Dec. 31 to agree to fight Norton. Ali countered with a request to extend the deadline to February. The question now before the WBC is whether to use every means at its disposal — such as a threat of taking away the title — to force Ali to agree.

Jabbar to see action Sunday

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — The Los Angeles Lakers reported Wednesday that Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, whose total contribution this season has been one rebound, has been given medical clearance to play in a home game Sunday night against the Denver Nuggets.

Abdul-Jabbar was given a green light to return to the lineup after being examined by Dr. Robert Kerlan's orthopedic staff.

"There is no longer any tenderness or feeling of pain in the hand," a spokesman for Kerlan said. "We feel that Kareem can now return to action without impeding the healing process. However, he will still have to wear a protective device when he plays for the next two to three weeks."

NBC to extend Olympic coverage

NEW YORK — After already acquiring the rights to the 1980 Summer Olympic Games at Moscow, the National Broadcasting Company added an appealing appetizer to its menu Wednesday when it announced it also will telecast the final Olympic trials.

Chester R. Simmons, president of NBC Sports, and William E. Simon, treasurer of the U.S. Olympic Committee, made the joint announcement of NBC's exclusive rights for both the Summer and Winter Games trials. The 1980 Winter Olympics will be held at Lake Placid, N.Y.

The Olympic trials will consist of 28 sports, from which the U.S. teams will be chosen.

Bears 'sweating out' Tampa Bay

by BOB GALLAS

TAMPA, Fla. — The Bears got back to work after a five-day holiday here Wednesday and immediately had to adjust to some strange conditions — sunny skies, temperatures in the 80s and a stiff but warm wind.

After coach Jack Pardee had put the team through one of its most strenuous workouts in weeks most of the players agreed that the early trip to Tampa will pay off.

"We would have been dead Sunday if we had just come down here the Saturday before the game," said tight end Greg Latta, as he ordered the air conditioning turned on full blast in the car taking him from practice back to the hotel. "It's much harder to adjust from the cold to the heat than the other way around. It was really hard to breathe out there today."

"IF THIS HAD BEEN game day, I don't think we could have gotten through the whole game," said Pardee. "This will give us a chance to get used to the heat and get our receivers going.

"It's nice just to be able to stay out after practice to throw the football," he said. "It's hard to improve at this time of the year because you're all bundled up against the cold and the footing is so bad."

"If we had come down here Saturday, we'd be in bad shape," said guard Noah Jackson, who is dragging after a two and one-half hour workout at Jesuit High School, a boys school which is within sight of Tampa Stadium. Jackson said he didn't feel the trip down to the sunshine state will be a distraction.

"There's no distraction in my mind," Jackson said. "I hope there is none in anyone else's mind."

"I THINK WE HAD a very serious practice today," said safety Gary Fencik. "I think the guys have come to the realization that there's money involved now. The playoffs are at stake."

"I think we all realize what's at stake," Pardee said. "The players have had a taste of playoff hopes. They do know we can't afford any down weeks."

Pardee said fullback Roland Harper will probably return to the starting lineup Sunday for the first time since sustaining a knee injury in the Green Bay game Oct. 30. Robin Earl had been filling in well for Harper but Earl is bothered by a badly bruised shoulder. Pardee said the rookie fullback may not be able to play at all Sunday.

Jeff Sevy, Doug Buffone and Walter Payton were all listed as "probable" on the Bear injury report because they are ill, though all practiced Wednesday. Buffone is also expected to start Sunday, his first since he came down with viral pneumonia before the Houston game almost a month ago.

OF THE THREE, Payton is perhaps the worst off. He's suffering from a cold.

"It's not the same thing like the flu he had two weeks ago," Pardee explained. "But I hope it affects him the same."

Payton, after fighting the flu all week, went out and gained an NFL record 275 yards against the Vikings two weeks ago.

The only other Bear ailing is wide receiver Steve Schubert, with a pulled thigh muscle. If Schubert is not able to play, Pardee said newcomer Steve Rivera is being readied to fill in. Rivera, formerly of the 49ers, is a second-year wide receiver picked up by the Bears last week as a free agent.

"HE (RIVERA) IS certainly worth working with," Pardee said. "He's learned what we're doing very quickly. We'll just have to wait and see what kind of player he is."

The Bears also will give a tryout to former Detroit wide receiver Larry Walton today. Walton, a seven-year veteran, was at practice Wednesday.

The Bears are preparing to face a team that is winless and loaded with controversy right now. The Buccaneers have lost 25 games in a row since coming into the league last year. The fans are beginning to let their frustration out.

Signs like "Send McKay back to LA" and "Dropkick McKay into Tampa Bay" popped up in the stadium last Sunday and one frustrated fan doused McKay with a soft drink.

PART OF THE Bucs' problem has been injuries, especially at quarterback. In the 25 games of the team's history, the Bucs have changed quarterbacks 12 times, five times this year.

This week, it's up for grabs again as McKay says either former Bear Gary Huff or Randy Hedberg will start.

The Bucs have several key injuries this week. Noseguard Mike Pear, a key to the tough Tampa defense is in traction with a back injury suffered last Sunday. Running back Anthony Davis is listed as a "questionable" starter with a shoulder injury. Running back Ricky Bell and Louis Carter are hurting, but are expected to play.

The Tampa players have been instructed by team officials to wear their helmets on sidelines at all times because of the danger of thrown objects from the stands. The players have also been told not to get into any confrontations with fans like that which happened late in the game Sunday.

All that doesn't sound too bad to the Bears, who were the targets of full beer cans thrown by the fans in the Thanksgiving game in Detroit.

MEN'S STANDINGS

American League: Dog and Suds 1-0, Pacers 1-0, Conex 0-1, Ben Franklin 0-1. National League: Penncraft 1-0, D. P. News Agency 1-0, Romano's 0-1, Weiler Eng. 0-1. Scoring: M. Abraham (Pacers) 24, Franzen (Romano's) 18, Fininis (Dog and Suds) 17, B. Abraham (Pacers) 16, McAndrews (Weilers) 16.

Dog and Suds opened its 77-78 season by knocking off Romano's 68-58. D&S led at the half by two when Dick Eilken, Geherdt and Henk exploded for 28 points while Fininis threw in nine during the second half. Franzen led Romano's with 18, and Ecfort helped out with 15. Penncraft destroyed Conex 76-48 in Thursday's second game. All Pencraft players reached double figures, as Christensen and Wolfgram scored 14, Bouchee picked up 13, Heist and Ackerman tossed in a dozen and Vail collected 10. West collected 14 for Conex and controlled as much of the boards as one man could against the five from Penncraft. The Pacers jumped out to a 50-35 lead with five minutes left and then Weilers came storming back. Finally, with eight seconds left Bill Abraham fired a 10-footer that gave the Pacers a 58-54 lead. Mike Abraham lead all scorers with 24, and Bill Abraham ended up with 16. Dome led the Weiler comeback with some key rebounds and 16 points. Yip collected 11. Dome's final bucket came at the buzzer and ended the 58-56 Pacer victory. D.P. News Agency won by forfeit over Ben Franklin.

BERKELEY, Calif. — Milke White, the California Bears' head football coach for the past six years, was fired Wednesday by the universty's athletic director.

Director Dave Maggard said he decided to terminate White's contract after evaluating the total direction of the school's football program.

"I am making the decision based on what I feel is best for the future of California football," said Maggard.

White's 1977 team finished with an overall record of 7-4. The Bears were 4-0 in non-conference play but dropped to a 3-4 mark in Pacific 8 competition.

"Obviously, I am disappointed," said White of his dismissal after compiling a 34-31-1 mark over six seasons, the longest tenure of any Pac-8 head coach.

"I have been around the coaching ranks long enough to know that this is one of the hazards of the trade. I am more disappointed for my players and the assistant coaches, including my previous assistants and players who had helped us lay the foundation of the football program here at Cal."

In a related move Wednesday, University of Mississippi football coach Ken Cooper resigned and Texas Tech head coach Steve Sloan was offered the post hours later.

Cagers sue school for $72 million

ROCKVILLE, Md. — Six University of Maryland basketball players have sued the Washington Star and the campus newspaper, The Diamondback, for $72 million for articles concerning the players' academic difficulties.

The suit, filed last week in Prince George's County Circuit Court, asked for damages for "invasion of privacy" and "intentional infliction of mental distress." The players are John Bilney, Bill Bryant, Larry Gibson, JoJo Hunter, Lawrence Boston and Mike Davis.

Their attorney, Walter H. Madden, said the academic records in question were protected by the Buckley Amendment. which specifies a student's grades cannot be released without his [illegible]nsent.

Madden said the six players filed the suit on their own, and that it did not involve the university or its athletic department.

Vilas tops Grand Prix net circuit

NEW YORK — U.S. Open champion Guillermo Vilas has captured the $300,000 first prize in this year's Grand Prix tennis circuit of 76 tournaments, it was announced Wednesday.

The 25-year-old Argentinian who also won the French Open title, estabished a match record of 51 consecutive wins, the longest in the 10-year history of open tennis. He racked up a total of 1,947 Grand Prix performance points and is guaranteed top seeding in the Grand Prix Masters at Madison Square Garden Jan. 4-8.

Vilas will receive his $300,000 first prize check on the eve of the Masters, in which the top eight point winners of the 1977 Grand Prix circuit will compete for the playoff title. Vilas has already earned over $400,000 this year in tournament prize money.

Sonics sack Hopkins, hire Wilkens

SEATTLE — Bob Hopkins was fired Wednesday as coach of the Seattle SuperSonics of the NBA and replaced by Lenny Wilkens, director of player personnel and a former coach of the team.

Wilkens will remain as coach of the team until at least the end of the season at which time a further determination will be made, according to a club spokesman.

Executive vice president and general manager Zollie Volchok said Hopkins will be retained as director of scouting.

Hopkins, a graduate of Grambling, was drafted by the Syracuse Nationals of the NBA in the fourth round of the 1956 draft and played four seasons with the Nationals.

Norton pushes WBC for Ali fight

MADRID — No. 1 heavyweight contender Ken Norton Wednesday asked the World Boxing Council to force world champion Muhammad Ali to give him another shot at the title.

Norton appeared before the annual convention of the WBC when it started hearings on the matter which, WBC president Jose Sulaiman said, might result in Ali being stripped of his title.

The WBC earlier gave Ali until Dec. 31 to agree to fight Norton. Ali countered with a request to extend the deadline to February. The question now before the WBC is whether to use every means at its disposal — such as a threat of taking away the title — to force Ali to agree.

Jabbar to see action Sunday

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — The Los Angeles Lakers reported Wednesday that Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, whose total contribution this season has been one rebound, has been given medical clearance to play in a home game Sunday night against the Denver Nuggets.

Abdul-Jabbar was given a green light to return to the lineup after being examined by Dr. Robert Kerlan's orthopedic staff.

"There is no longer any tenderness or feeling of pain in the hand," a spokesman for Kerlan said. "We feel that Kareem can now return to action without impeding the healing process. However, he will still have to wear a protective device when he plays for the next two to three weeks."

NBC to extend Olympic coverage

NEW YORK — After already acquiring the rights to the 1980 Summer Olympic Games at Moscow, the National Broadcasting Company added an appealing appetizer to its menu Wednesday when it announced it also will telecast the final Olympic trials.

Chester R. Simmons, president of NBC Sports, and William E. Simon, treasurer of the U.S. Olympic Committee, made the joint announcement of NBC's exclusive rights for both the Summer and Winter Games trials. The 1980 Winter Olympics will be held at Lake Placid, N.Y.

The Olympic trials will consist of 28 sports, from which the U.S. teams will be chosen.

Bears 'sweating out' Tampa Bay

by BOB GALLAS

TAMPA, Fla. — The Bears got back to work after a five-day holiday here Wednesday and immediately had to adjust to some strange conditions — sunny skies, temperatures in the 80s and a stiff but warm wind.

After coach Jack Pardee had put the team through one of its most strenuous workouts in weeks most of the players agreed that the early trip to Tampa will pay off.

"We would have been dead Sunday if we had just come down here the Saturday before the game," said tight end Greg Latta, as he ordered the air conditioning turned on full blast in the car taking him from practice back to the hotel. "It's much harder to adjust from the cold to the heat than the other way around. It was really hard to breathe out there today."

"IF THIS HAD BEEN game day, I don't think we could have gotten through the whole game," said Pardee. "This will give us a chance to get used to the heat and get our receivers going.

"It's nice just to be able to stay out after practice to throw the football," he said. "It's hard to improve at this time of the year because you're all bundled up against the cold and the footing is so bad."

"If we had come down here Saturday, we'd be in bad shape," said guard Noah Jackson, who is dragging after a two and one-half hour workout at Jesuit High School, a boys school which is within sight of Tampa Stadium. Jackson said he didn't feel the trip down to the sunshine state will be a distraction.

"There's no distraction in my mind," Jackson said. "I hope there is none in anyone else's mind."

"I THINK WE HAD a very serious practice today," said safety Gary Fencik. "I think the guys have come to the realization that there's money involved now. The playoffs are at stake."

"I think we all realize what's at stake," Pardee said. "The players have had a taste of playoff hopes. They do know we can't afford any down weeks."

Pardee said fullback Roland Harper will probably return to the starting lineup Sunday for the first time since sustaining a knee injury in the Green Bay game Oct. 30. Robin Earl had been filling in well for Harper but Earl is bothered by a badly bruised shoulder. Pardee said the rookie fullback may not be able to play at all Sunday.

Jeff Sevy, Doug Buffone and Walter Payton were all listed as "probable" on the Bear injury report because they are ill, though all practiced Wednesday. Buffone is also expected to start Sunday, his first since he came down with viral pneumonia before the Houston game almost a month ago.

OF THE THREE, Payton is perhaps the worst off. He's suffering from a cold.

"It's not the same thing like the flu he had two weeks ago," Pardee explained. "But I hope it affects him the same."

Payton, after fighting the flu all week, went out and gained an NFL record 275 yards against the Vikings two weeks ago.

The only other Bear ailing is wide receiver Steve Schubert, with a pulled thigh muscle. If Schubert is not able to play, Pardee said newcomer Steve Rivera is being readied to fill in. Rivera, formerly of the 49ers, is a second-year wide receiver picked up by the Bears last week as a free agent.

"HE (RIVERA) IS certainly worth working with," Pardee said. "He's learned what we're doing very quickly. We'll just have to wait and see what kind of player he is."

The Bears also will give a tryout to former Detroit wide receiver Larry Walton today. Walton, a seven-year veteran, was at practice Wednesday.

The Bears are preparing to face a team that is winless and loaded with controversy right now. The Buccaneers have lost 25 games in a row since coming into the league last year. The fans are beginning to let their frustration out.

Signs like "Send McKay back to LA" and "Dropkick McKay into Tampa Bay" popped up in the stadium last Sunday and one frustrated fan doused McKay with a soft drink.

PART OF THE Bucs' problem has been injuries, especially at quarterback. In the 25 games of the team's history, the Bucs have changed quarterbacks 12 times, five times this year.

This week, it's up for grabs again as McKay says either former Bear Gary Huff or Randy Hedberg will start.

The Bucs have several key injuries this week. Noseguard Mike Pear, a key to the tough Tampa defense is in traction with a back injury suffered last Sunday. Running back Anthony Davis is listed as a "questionable" starter with a shoulder injury. Running back Ricky Bell and Louis Carter are hurting, but are expected to play.

The Tampa players have been instructed by team officials to wear their helmets on sidelines at all times because of the danger of thrown objects from the stands. The players have also been told not to get into any confrontations with fans like that which happened late in the game Sunday.

All that doesn't sound too bad to the Bears, who were the targets of full beer cans thrown by the fans in the Thanksgiving game in Detroit.

MEN'S STANDINGS

American League: Dog and Suds 1-0, Pacers 1-0, Conex 0-1, Ben Franklin 0-1. National League: Penncraft 1-0, D. P. News Agency 1-0, Romano's 0-1, Weiler Eng. 0-1. Scoring: M. Abraham (Pacers) 24, Franzen (Romano's) 18, Fininis (Dog and Suds) 17, B. Abraham (Pacers) 16, McAndrews (Weilers) 16.

Dog and Suds opened its 77-78 season by knocking off Romano's 68-58. D&S led at the half by two when Dick Eilken, Geherdt and Henk exploded for 28 points while Fininis threw in nine during the second half. Franzen led Romano's with 18, and Ecfort helped out with 15. Penncraft destroyed Conex 76-48 in Thursday's second game. All Pencraft players reached double figures, as Christensen and Wolfgram scored 14, Bouchee picked up 13, Heist and Ackerman tossed in a dozen and Vail collected 10. West collected 14 for Conex and controlled as much of the boards as one man could against the five from Penncraft. The Pacers jumped out to a 50-35 lead with five minutes left and then Weilers came storming back. Finally, with eight seconds left Bill Abraham fired a 10-footer that gave the Pacers a 58-54 lead. Mike Abraham lead all scorers with 24, and Bill Abraham ended up with 16. Dome led the Weiler comeback with some key rebounds and 16 points. Yip collected 11. Dome's final bucket came at the buzzer and ended the 58-56 Pacer victory. D.P. News Agency won by forfeit over Ben Franklin.

Phil Esposito's hat trick puts him on all-time list

Phil Esposito, becoming the second-highest scoring player in the history of the National Hockey League, Wednesday night scored a hat trick to give the New York Rangers a 4-0 win over the St. Louis Blues.

Pittsburgh topped Detroit and Cleveland bettered Toronto in other NHL action Wednesday.

Esposito scored his ninth, 10th and 11th goals of the season for a total of 607, three higher than Bobby Hull. Only Gordie Howe with 786 goals in his NHL career has scored more than Esposito.

NHL report

ESPOSITO'S FIRST two goals came on power plays in the first period, on a deflection of a shot from the point and on a wrist shot from the slot. His goal in the second period was from 15 feet and inside the faceoff circle in the left of St. Louis goalie Ed Staniowski.

Pete Mahovlich, acquired only the day before, scored a hat trick to lead the Penguins to a 6-4 victory over the Red Wings.

Lowell MacDonald scored one goal and assisted on three others for Pittsburgh. Greg Malone and Rick Kehoe rounded out the Penguins' scoring.

DEFENSEMAN Reed Larson tallied one goal and assisted on two others for the Redwings. Andre St. Laurent, Dale McCourt and Pey Harper also scored for Detroit.

Mike Fidler scored the go-ahead goal from a faceoff late in the second period to lead the Barons to a 5-3 win over the Maple Leafs, snapping a three-game Baron losing streak.

Record NBA crowd sees 76ers beat New Orleans

Despite a heavy downpour, the New Orleans Jazz set a National Basketball Assn. attendance record Wednesday night in the Louisiana Superdome, topping the oud mark by almost 8,000.

Inside, meanwhile, it was raining more Philadelphia buckets than Jazz buckets and the huge crowd was not allowed an opportunity to see their home team win.

Other NBA games Wednesday saw Detroit beat Los Angeles, Washington top San Antonio, Buffalo outdistance Atlanta, Milwaukee dump Indiana and Seattle trim Kansas City.

DARRYL DAWKINS hit a 15-foot jump shot with three seconds remaining to give the 76ers a 117-114 come-from-behind win over New Orleans.

The attendance of 35,077 broke the oud record of 27,383, set one year ago against Philadelphia.

It was the fifth time in three years the Jazz have drawn more than 24,000 for a home game.

Leonard "Truck" Robinson led all scorers with 32 points for the Jazz, while guard Gail Goodrich — forced to play the whole game because of an injury to Pete Maravich — had a season high of 27 points.

Doug Collins led Philadelphia with 19 points, including two free throws in the final two seconds after Dawkins' winning basket.

MITCH KUPCHAK scored 26 points and Phil Chenier added 24 to pace a balanced Washington attack in a 116-105 victory by the Bullets over the Spurs.

Elvin Hayes had 21 points and Keven Grevey added 15 for Washington, which enjoyed a 25-5 margin over the Spurs on the offensive boards.

Billy Knight scored 32 points and logged six assists while two other American Basketball Association refugees — Chuck Williams and Wil Jones — hit their season highs to help the Braves coast to a 105-93 victory over the Hawks.

Williams tallied 22 points, his top output in the NBA, and Jones added 18, including the basket that gave Buffalo its biggest margin, 95-68, with 8:21 remaining in the game.

NBA report

BRIAN WINTERS and Marques Johnson scored 21 points each to offset 34 points by Indiana's Adrian Dantley to lead the Bucks to a 120-113 victory over the Pacers.

Dantley became involved in a shoving match with Milwaukee's Dave Meyers and was called for a technical late in the game. After the game he became involved in an exchange with Meyers near the Bucks' dressing room that three policemen broke up. A spokesman for the Bucks said the team would file a full report with the commissioner, noting Dantley "gets by with murder when he plays in Indiana."

Bob Lanier scored 30 points and the Pistons rallied in the final three minutes after squandering an 18-point lead to defeat the struggling Lakers, 104-98.

THE PISTONS, winning their second straight after dropping six in a row, had gone ahead 79-61 with two minutes left in the third period when the Lakers reeled off the final 11 points of the quarter and then added four more in a row to begin the fourth period.

Los Angeles then went on to pump in seven more in a row to pull in front 81-79 and led 93-92 with just under three minutes to go.

Gus Williams scored 24 points and Slick Watts hit two baskets in the final two minutes to give Seattle an 86-84 victory over the Kings in the first game of Lenny Wilkins' second term as the Supersonics coach.

Wilkins, Seattle's player personnel director, replaced Bob Hopkins as the Seattle coach earlier in the day and directed the Supersonics to just their second win on the road in 12 tries.

Brohamer to join Red Sox for reported $300,000 pay

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox, whose fans were worried before the major league reentry draft the team couldn't compete with the rest of the league, Wednesday came to terms with their third free agent — Jack Brohamer.

General Manager Haywood Sullivan announced the team came to terms with Brohamer's agent, Ed Kleven. The 27-year-old utility infielder was Boston's sixth selection in the Nov. 4 reentry draft.

Earlier this month the Red Sox signed pitchers Mike Torrez and Dick Drago to long-term contracts.

Brohamer hasn't signed the contract, but a Red Sox spokesman said his signature would be a formality. Terms of the pact were not announced, but it is reported Brohamer will sign a three-year pact for $300,000.

Brohamer was selected by four teams in the recent draft, Boston, the Milwaukee Brewers, New York Yankees and California Angels.

With two pitchers in the fold, the Red Sox front office concentrated on boosting its infield. It is reported Brohamer will play second base, a position held by 31-year-old veteran Denny Doyle.

Brohamer played four seasons as a regular second baseman with the Cleveland Indians before being traded to the White Sox for Larvell Blanks after the 1975 season.

In 59 games with Chicago last season, Brohamer hit .257 with 15 extra base hits, while seeing action at both second and third.

In 1976, he hit .251 in 119 games for Chicago and has a lifetime batting average of .241.

He was selected to the Sporting News all-rookie team in 1972.

Phil Esposito's hat trick puts him on all-time list

Phil Esposito, becoming the second-highest scoring player in the history of the National Hockey League, Wednesday night scored a hat trick to give the New York Rangers a 4-0 win over the St. Louis Blues.

Pittsburgh topped Detroit and Cleveland bettered Toronto in other NHL action Wednesday.

Esposito scored his ninth, 10th and 11th goals of the season for a total of 607, three higher than Bobby Hull. Only Gordie Howe with 786 goals in his NHL career has scored more than Esposito.

NHL report

ESPOSITO'S FIRST two goals came on power plays in the first period, on a deflection of a shot from the point and on a wrist shot from the slot. His goal in the second period was from 15 feet and inside the faceoff circle in the left of St. Louis goalie Ed Staniowski.

Pete Mahovlich, acquired only the day before, scored a hat trick to lead the Penguins to a 6-4 victory over the Red Wings.

Lowell MacDonald scored one goal and assisted on three others for Pittsburgh. Greg Malone and Rick Kehoe rounded out the Penguins' scoring.

DEFENSEMAN Reed Larson tallied one goal and assisted on two others for the Redwings. Andre St. Laurent, Dale McCourt and Pey Harper also scored for Detroit.

Mike Fidler scored the go-ahead goal from a faceoff late in the second period to lead the Barons to a 5-3 win over the Maple Leafs, snapping a three-game Baron losing streak.

Record NBA crowd sees 76ers beat New Orleans

Despite a heavy downpour, the New Orleans Jazz set a National Basketball Assn. attendance record Wednesday night in the Louisiana Superdome, topping the oud mark by almost 8,000.

Inside, meanwhile, it was raining more Philadelphia buckets than Jazz buckets and the huge crowd was not allowed an opportunity to see their home team win.

Other NBA games Wednesday saw Detroit beat Los Angeles, Washington top San Antonio, Buffalo outdistance Atlanta, Milwaukee dump Indiana and Seattle trim Kansas City.

DARRYL DAWKINS hit a 15-foot jump shot with three seconds remaining to give the 76ers a 117-114 come-from-behind win over New Orleans.

The attendance of 35,077 broke the oud record of 27,383, set one year ago against Philadelphia.

It was the fifth time in three years the Jazz have drawn more than 24,000 for a home game.

Leonard "Truck" Robinson led all scorers with 32 points for the Jazz, while guard Gail Goodrich — forced to play the whole game because of an injury to Pete Maravich — had a season high of 27 points.

Doug Collins led Philadelphia with 19 points, including two free throws in the final two seconds after Dawkins' winning basket.

MITCH KUPCHAK scored 26 points and Phil Chenier added 24 to pace a balanced Washington attack in a 116-105 victory by the Bullets over the Spurs.

Elvin Hayes had 21 points and Keven Grevey added 15 for Washington, which enjoyed a 25-5 margin over the Spurs on the offensive boards.

Billy Knight scored 32 points and logged six assists while two other American Basketball Association refugees — Chuck Williams and Wil Jones — hit their season highs to help the Braves coast to a 105-93 victory over the Hawks.

Williams tallied 22 points, his top output in the NBA, and Jones added 18, including the basket that gave Buffalo its biggest margin, 95-68, with 8:21 remaining in the game.

NBA report

BRIAN WINTERS and Marques Johnson scored 21 points each to offset 34 points by Indiana's Adrian Dantley to lead the Bucks to a 120-113 victory over the Pacers.

Dantley became involved in a shoving match with Milwaukee's Dave Meyers and was called for a technical late in the game. After the game he became involved in an exchange with Meyers near the Bucks' dressing room that three policemen broke up. A spokesman for the Bucks said the team would file a full report with the commissioner, noting Dantley "gets by with murder when he plays in Indiana."

Bob Lanier scored 30 points and the Pistons rallied in the final three minutes after squandering an 18-point lead to defeat the struggling Lakers, 104-98.

THE PISTONS, winning their second straight after dropping six in a row, had gone ahead 79-61 with two minutes left in the third period when the Lakers reeled off the final 11 points of the quarter and then added four more in a row to begin the fourth period.

Los Angeles then went on to pump in seven more in a row to pull in front 81-79 and led 93-92 with just under three minutes to go.

Gus Williams scored 24 points and Slick Watts hit two baskets in the final two minutes to give Seattle an 86-84 victory over the Kings in the first game of Lenny Wilkins' second term as the Supersonics coach.

Wilkins, Seattle's player personnel director, replaced Bob Hopkins as the Seattle coach earlier in the day and directed the Supersonics to just their second win on the road in 12 tries.

Brohamer to join Red Sox for reported $300,000 pay

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox, whose fans were worried before the major league reentry draft the team couldn't compete with the rest of the league, Wednesday came to terms with their third free agent — Jack Brohamer.

General Manager Haywood Sullivan announced the team came to terms with Brohamer's agent, Ed Kleven. The 27-year-old utility infielder was Boston's sixth selection in the Nov. 4 reentry draft.

Earlier this month the Red Sox signed pitchers Mike Torrez and Dick Drago to long-term contracts.

Brohamer hasn't signed the contract, but a Red Sox spokesman said his signature would be a formality. Terms of the pact were not announced, but it is reported Brohamer will sign a three-year pact for $300,000.

Brohamer was selected by four teams in the recent draft, Boston, the Milwaukee Brewers, New York Yankees and California Angels.

Farmers feeling pinch; profits continue decline

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The current asking price for an acre of Illinois corn land that will yield 150 to 200 bushels ranges up to $4,000.

"If a farmer has to finance most of that at today's 10 per cent interest cost there's no way he's going to make it pay," says Raid Thorp, who handles farmland price statistics for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. Thorp is a native of the central Illinois corn belt.

> 'In spite of their current high living standards and their big cash intake, many farmers say their current prosperity is ephemeral and they are worse off than their grandfathers . . .'

He points out that prices of farmland in the United States spurted by 17 per cent in the year ended last Feb. 1 and the farmland price index more than doubled between 1967 and 1974 when calculated in 1967 dollars.

THE COMPETITION to buy American land — farming or industrial land — comes from all over the world because land that seems expensive to Americans may look dirt cheap to investors from crowded countries with inadequate food production.

Indeed, foreigners have been buying up so much U.S. land, either idle or currently in use, that several states, Nebraska for example, have passed laws to restrict foreign ownership of land or are considering doing so.

The dramatic rise in the price of American farmland takes on a forbidding aspect when it is coupled with recent predictions by Chicago's Continental Bank and Moody's Investors Service in New York that, although farm income likely will reach an all-time high this year, farm profit in real terms may plunge next year to the lowest level since 1934.

That was the first full year of the New Deal farm policies and subsidies put together by Franklin D. Roosevelt and Henry A. Wallace after the Hoover depression ruined hundreds of thousands of farmers.

Grain and livestock farmers will be most severely squeezed next year, Continental Bank said, because their operating costs and financial costs are likely to keep right on rising in spite of falling prices.

CONTINENTAL BANK said the squeeze will not be felt uniformly. How it affects the individual farmer will depend largely on when he bought his land and how much he owes on it and on his farm machinery. And of course local weather will play a big role.

Borrowing too much to pay too high a price for land to grow grain or cotton or feed for hogs, beef cattle or dairy cows is an old story. Optimism seems to rise eternally in the breast of the sodbuster; he always hopes the next two crops will make him rich. As long as the banks and the seed and feed stores and the farm machinery equipment manufacturers will extend him credit, he is inclined to give large rein to his optimistic vision.

Many years ago a northern baker wandered into an emergency meeting of planters in Memphis called to consider one of the recurrent financial crises in cotton production.

"How much does it really cost to grow cotton?" the northerner asked a local banker.

THE SOUTHERNER laughed and said, "Invariably it costs one to two cents a pound more than the previous year's crop fetched."

A considerable part of that increased cost reflected the willingness of the planter to borrow to buy more cotton land at higher prices. And at least half the time, the gamble resulted in a big loss.

That is what is happening to many farmers all over America right now.

"The farmer is harder pressed to make a speculative investment pay off than investor-managers in other businesses," Thorp said, "because he can't shift gears and change his marketing strategy to create new markets where markets don't yet exist, as leaders of some other businesses can."

IN SPITE OF their current high living standards and their big cash intake, many farmers say their current prosperity is ephemeral and they are worse off in reality than their grandfathers, who produced less, lived much more frugally but often had considerably more security. At a recent protest meeting of grain farmers, one little fact was raised to dramatize this situation. It was stated — and government statistics bear it out — that in 1914 a farmer could exchange one bushel of wheat for a pair of shoes. Today it takes 10 bushels.

Moody's Investors Service, while agreeing that farm income probably will take a drastic nosedive in 1978, is more optimistic about the American farmers' long-range financial outlook.

Moody's said that for the long view, considering the help they can count on from government and the growing world demand for American farm products, the farm industry is basically sound and most individual farmers look like a good risk to financial institutions.

But that may prove cold comfort to the farmer who has paid too much for too much land at a too high interest cost if the price of his crops plummets next year, because already many bankers are showing a reluctance to expand or extend farm loans.

Young farmer banking on his education to make it

by RICHARD J. CATTANI

To young Ron Krupicka, the lure of the land is so strong he's willing to take on the purchase of a 640-acre farm in northeast Nebraska even though he doesn't foresee the operation paying for itself for a decade, if ever.

In his dogged back-to-the-land motivation, and in the financial problems he faces, Krupicka reflects two basic and apparently contradictory trends in American agriculture today:

- A surge in the number of young farmers, under 35, occurring in all parts of the United States since 1970, but most noticeably in the U.S. corn and wheat belt.
- And the growing difficulty — due to dipping farm income and soaring land, equipment, and energy costs — of getting a start in farming.

TO KRUPICKA and his wife, both under 30, the farm ownership venture is a long-term project. At present they live and work in a town.

"It was always my idea to go back to the farm," says Krupicka, who grew up on a small farm near Niobrara, Neb. He is purchasing half of a larger farm from relatives with the understanding he will acquire the rest later.

The livestock farm the Krupickas are about to buy is mostly pasture land with some hayfields for feed. It is rented out currently though crop prices are such this year that the rent may return only enough for taxes and not enough to help reduce the mortgage.

"The key to my plan is giving up any idea of paying for the farm from the land itself," Krupicka says. "I'm banking on my education to enable me to purchase the life-style I like."

The education he is counting on includes two nearly completed master's degrees — in natural resources and rural community development.

HARD WORK on weekends, salvaging buildings on the property, federal grant help to revive overgrazed terrain, a loan from his father, and income from his job as co-director of a federal farm energy conservation project should in five to 10 years, Krupicka estimates, enable his family to move onto their spread.

Krupicka is not alone, particularly among younger farmers, in having to subsidize his venture.

Nationally, on farms with less than $20,000 in annual sales (70 per cent of all farms) farm families earn more nonfarm income than they do from the farm, says Steven Guebert, an Agriculture Dept. economist.

In Nebraska as elsewhere farm costs have risen while returns have dropped in recent years.

Between 1972 and early 1977 the average value of land and buildings climbed 139 per cent, rising from $110,300 to $273,600 for a farm the size of Krupicka's, which is about the average here. Over the same period, average net farm income fell from $8,977 to $6,991 in Nebraska.

"Farm crop price pressures this year may dampen the trend to younger farmers this year, but it won't end it," says Calvin Beale, Census Bureau expert on rural population trends. "Young farmers don't have the assets of the middle-aged farmers to help them weather price shifts. But most seem to be hanging in there anyway."

The recent trend to younger farmers is significant, says Beale, because it reverses the steady aging of the farm population from World War I to the Vietnam war.

Between 1970 and 1975 the percentage of farmers 16 to 34 rose from 14.6 per cent to 20.9 per cent. Over the same period the number of middle-aged farmers held steady at 52.2 per cent while the proportion of 60 and over farmers fell from 33.2 per cent to 26.9 per cent.

Good wheat, corn, and soybean prices in 1972 and 1973 lured many young operators onto Great Plains farms. Most of these new entries came with financial or equipment help from fathers or fathers-in-law, Beale says.

BUT ELSEWHERE — in West Virginia's Blue Ridge area, Northern Wisconsin, and Minnesota, the Ozarks of Southern Missouri and Arkansas, Northern New England, and New Mexico — other youths, often from cities, were attracted to marginal farmland for philosophical rather than enonomic reasons, Beale says.

The return of young farmers to the land is heartening to those who have been concerned about American agriculture's future.

"The typical way for any occupation to dwindle is through lack of entry of young operators," Beale says. "This trend, not anticipated five years ago, has broken a two-generation cycle in declining numbers of young farmers.

"Farmers are delighted and relieved to see their sons taking over and not having to sell out," he adds, concluding, "The young are bringing more vitality to rural life."

"Young farmers don't have the assets of the middle-aged farmers to help them weather price shifts. But most seem to be hanging in there anyway."

The recent trend to younger farmers is significant, says Beale, because it reverses the steady aging of the farm population from World War I to the Vietnam war.

Between 1970 and 1975 the percentage of farmers 16 to 34 rose from 14.6 per cent to 20.9 per cent. Over the same period the number of middle-aged farmers held steady at 52.2 per cent while the proportion of 60 and over farmers fell from 33.2 per cent to 26.9 per cent.

Good wheat, corn, and soybean prices in 1972 and 1973 lured many young operators onto Great Plains farms. Most of these new entries came with financial or equipment help from fathers or fathers-in-law, Beale says.

BUT ELSEWHERE — in West Virginia's Blue Ridge area, Northern Wisconsin, and Minnesota, the Ozarks of Southern Missouri and Arkansas, Northern New England, and New Mexico — other youths, often from cities, were attracted to marginal farmland for philosophical rather than enonomic reasons, Beale says.

The return of young farmers to the land is heartening to those who have been concerned about American agriculture's future.

"The typical way for any occupation to dwindle is through lack of entry of young operators," Beale says. "This trend, not anticipated five years ago, has broken a two-generation cycle in declining numbers of young farmers.

"Farmers are delighted and relieved to see their sons taking over and not having to sell out," he adds, concluding, "The young are bringing more vitality to rural life."

More single women buying homes: executive

One out of every 14 homes sold in 1977 will be bought by a single woman, and such persons could account for 10 per cent of all shelter purchases by 1980, a mortgage insurance official has predicted.

Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of the Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston, said single women — including those divorced, widowed or never married — are entering the homeowning arena.

He said professionals and teachers are leaders among single, female home buyers, followed by flight attendants, para-professionals and self-employed women.

Average age for the single, female buyer is 34; almost 80 per cent are younger than 45, Goss said. Top choice for buyers include townhomes, followed by high-rise condominium apartments, he said. More than three-fifths say they prefer single-family detached houses, but only one in five actually buys one, he said.

ABOUT 20 PER CENT of single women are undertaking rehabilitation-renovation projects, while 50 per cent indicate a willingness to do likewise, Goss said.

Most of the home buying activity by single women is found in urban areas of more than 250,000 population on the East and West coasts, Goss said.

Another study by Investors Mortgage showed the "typical" American home buyer in 1977 was between 25 and 30 years old, earned about $15,500 as a professional or skilled laborer, lived in the suburbs and was married but had no children.

Another trend indicated by the study, Goss said, is that families in which both husband and wife work compose half of all home buyers, while 10 years ago such families represented 25 per cent.

GOSS SAID unmarried buyers now number close to 20 per cent, while in 1967 single buyers were virtually unknown to the housing market.

Sixty per cent of current purchasers have no children, Goss said, while in 1967 only 35 per cent of home buyers were childless.

Homes have more floor space, up 15 per cent to an average of 1,720 square feet, but lots are smaller as cluster housing becomes more prevalent, Goss said.

He said the traditional, single-family detached dwelling is still the most popular.

On real estate

Because some people are not as knowledgeable as they should be when it comes to real estate, very often they find themselves in hot water. This letter is a sad example.

I really had a ghastly experience — and an expensive one. I hope many people who read this can benefit from my horrendous experience.

I signed an exclusive listing with a real estate broker. Not long after he secured a buyer, but the downpayment he offered was unusually small. The broker urged me to accept it and sign the agreement of sale because he said the buyer was temporarily a little short of funds. He assured me that when settlement time arrived, the buyer would have the necessary money.

As you probably guessed, the buyer didn't have the necessary money when settlement date arrived. I was furious and told the broker to cancel my listing agreement with him. I went to another broker who sold my house almost immediately.

I nearly died when the first broker sued me for his commission. I couldn't believe it. We went to court and he won! I wound up paying two commissions, to say nothing of the outrageous sum my lawyer charged. — A poor slob.

Yes, I agree that your experience was horrendous. But it could have been avoided. You know, when you sign an agreement you must be aware that you will be obliged to pay a commission. Therefore, it's reasonable that the minimum downpayment should be equal, at least, to what the commission would be.

It happens often that a buyer is not able to complete settlement. When this occurs, the broker will usually find another buyer and accept one commission. You should not have canceled your agreement with him. The important lesson you learned is that you are not the only person who has rights.

Can you tell me if industrial property mortgages differ from ordinary mortgages? There's so much to know that it makes my poor head throb. — Where's the aspirin?

Yes, it does differ. In industrial property, the mortgage covers the real estate, plus the fixtures and equipment it contains. Also, it's important to know that equipment and fixtures that are added after the execution of the mortgage also are covered, such as equipment that might be necessary for a plant to function.

Even if the equipment is installed a long while after the mortgage is given, it is still additional security for the benefit of the mortgagee.

We are buying our first house and my husband wants to go to a savings and loan association to get a mortgage. I am a little nervous about this. Being a woman, I don't have a really legitimate reason — just a feeling.

You're the expert. What do you say? We'll abide by your suggestions. — Wives are silly.

Your woman's intuition is wrong, in this case. Hour husband is very sensible. Savings and loan associations are major factors in mortgage lending, since this is the reason for their existence.

Contrary to what many people believe, savings and loan associations do not cater primarily to investors with large sums of money.

Consider yourself a lucky lady. You have an intelligent husband.

I've been living in the same apartment for five years, yet suddenly my door key doesn't go in smoothly. The first couple of times it happened I checked to see if I was trying to open someone else's door.

Do you think I need a new lock? — Need security.

Usually when a key does not insert properly, the keyway and tumbler area can be dirty. Try scraping a lead pencil onto the teeth of the key. Also, there may be a foreign object in the keyway. With a long needle, try to dislodge it, if that be the case.

On real estate

Because some people are not as knowledgeable as they should be when it comes to real estate, very often they find themselves in hot water. This letter is a sad example.

I really had a ghastly experience — and an expensive one. I hope many people who read this can benefit from my horrendous experience.

I signed an exclusive listing with a real estate broker. Not long after he secured a buyer, but the downpayment he offered was unusually small. The broker urged me to accept it and sign the agreement of sale because he said the buyer was temporarily a little short of funds. He assured me that when settlement time arrived, the buyer would have the necessary money.

As you probably guessed, the buyer didn't have the necessary money when settlement date arrived. I was furious and told the broker to cancel my listing agreement with him. I went to another broker who sold my house almost immediately.

I nearly died when the first broker sued me for his commission. I couldn't believe it. We went to court and he won! I wound up paying two commissions, to say nothing of the outrageous sum my lawyer charged. — A poor slob.

Can you tell me if industrial property mortgages differ from ordinary mortgages? There's so much to know that it makes my poor head throb. — Where's the aspirin?

Yes, it does differ. In industrial property, the mortgage covers the real estate, plus the fixtures and equipment it contains. Also, it's important to know that equipment and fixtures that are added after the execution of the mortgage also are covered, such as equipment that might be necessary for a plant to function.

Even if the equipment is installed a long while after the mortgage is given, it is still additional security for the benefit of the mortgagee.

We are buying our first house and my husband wants to go to a savings and loan association to get a mortgage. I am a little nervous about this. Being a woman, I don't have a really legitimate reason — just a feeling.

Tips for efficient heat

Energy-saving tips provided by the Better Heating-Cooling Council give the apartment dweller a better balance of heat and reduced fuel consumption, with but little effort and no discomfort.

For apartments with baseboard heat, if one room consistently overheats, the heat output can be reduced, if it is hot-water baseboard, by closing the damper along the top. If it is electric baseboard do not block the air outlet; adjust the thermostat instead.

Dust inside baseboard heaters reduces their effectiveness. Running the vacuum cleaner wand along the top twice a year will remove loose dust. If it is electric baseboard do not remove the cover from the junction boxes at either end as they contain high voltage wires.

ALL HOT-WATER radiators or baseboard heaters should be about the same temperature. If any units seem noticeably cooler they may be air-bound. Notify management to 'bleed' the heaters.

Tall, cast iron radiators are sometimes blocked by decorative covers. These covers reduce radiator output, and cause long delay during morning heat-up. They shold be removed, or a grille or large holes provided in the top to let the heat out.

For apartments with forced hot air ducts, do not block air registers with furniture. Choking off the air flow makes the heating unit run longer without warming the room.

If the air blowing from registers is uncomfortably hot, report it to management. The air temperature should be moderate, and blowing mildly during cold weather, not short-cycling on and off.

If there is an individual hot air furnace for your apartment, make sure the filter is clean. The extra resistance of a dirty filter reduces the air flow, causes the furnace to work longer and blows some of the accumulated dirt into the rooms.

BLOWING HOT air causes a feeling of dryness because of rapid evaporation of skin moisture. During the 'off' cycle this creates a chilly sensation. Make sure the humidifier is not gummed up with slime.

If your furnace sounds noisy ask management to service it immediately, rather than wait until it stops operating.

If the furnace is enclosed in a closet, do not block air inlets. Air is essential for combustion.

All apartment occupants should keep drapes and blinds open during the day if they face south or west. Any available sunshine will be absorbed indoors.

At night keep drapes and blinds closed. They form an added insulator, keeping heat from being lost to the outside, and helping to keep chilly drafts off the occupants.

IF YOU PREFER sleeping in a cool room, close the bedroom door and turn off the heat. You will have sufficient air for the room without chilling the rest of the apartment.

Turn off kitchen exhaust fans when not needed. Exhausting the heated air pulls in cold air around the window frames and doors.

Do not open windows in cold weather, except to let out objectionable odors. Sufficient air seeps into the rooms by natural infiltration.

Do not use gas appliances for heat unless the fumes are vented to the outside. It is extremely dangerous. Over a period of hours there is a build-up of noxious gases, and at the same time, the oxygen in the room is being consumed.

Portable electric heaters are very expensive to operate — consuming 1300 watts or more per hour — and 2½ times as much natural fuel is burned at the power plant for the amount of heat produced by the electricity.

Don't let the hot water run unnecessarily. It takes a lot of energy to heat it — 1000 BTU's (British thermal units) per gallon.

Tips for efficient heat

Energy-saving tips provided by the Better Heating-Cooling Council give the apartment dweller a better balance of heat and reduced fuel consumption, with but little effort and no discomfort.

For apartments with baseboard heat, if one room consistently overheats, the heat output can be reduced, if it is hot-water baseboard, by closing the damper along the top. If it is electric baseboard do not block the air outlet; adjust the thermostat instead.

Dust inside baseboard heaters reduces their effectiveness. Running the vacuum cleaner wand along the top twice a year will remove loose dust. If it is electric baseboard do not remove the cover from the junction boxes at either end as they contain high voltage wires.

ALL HOT-WATER radiators or baseboard heaters should be about the same temperature. If any units seem noticeably cooler they may be air-bound. Notify management to 'bleed' the heaters.

Tall, cast iron radiators are sometimes blocked by decorative covers. These covers reduce radiator output, and cause long delay during morning heat-up. They shold be removed, or a grille or large holes provided in the top to let the heat out.

For apartments with forced hot air ducts, do not block air registers with furniture. Choking off the air flow makes the heating unit run longer without warming the room.

If the air blowing from registers is uncomfortably hot, report it to management. The air temperature should be moderate, and blowing mildly during cold weather, not short-cycling on and off.

If there is an individual hot air furnace for your apartment, make sure the filter is clean. The extra resistance of a dirty filter reduces the air flow, causes the furnace to work longer and blows some of the accumulated dirt into the rooms.

BLOWING HOT air causes a feeling of dryness because of rapid evaporation of skin moisture. During the 'off' cycle this creates a chilly sensation. Make sure the humidifier is not gummed up with slime.

If your furnace sounds noisy ask management to service it immediately, rather than wait until it stops operating.

If the furnace is enclosed in a closet, do not block air inlets. Air is essential for combustion.

All apartment occupants should keep drapes and blinds open during the day if they face south or west. Any available sunshine will be absorbed indoors.

At night keep drapes and blinds closed. They form an added insulator, keeping heat from being lost to the outside, and helping to keep chilly drafts off the occupants.

IF YOU PREFER sleeping in a cool room, close the bedroom door and turn off the heat. You will have sufficient air for the room without chilling the rest of the apartment.

Turn off kitchen exhaust fans when not needed. Exhausting the heated air pulls in cold air around the window frames and doors.

Do not open windows in cold weather, except to let out objectionable odors. Sufficient air seeps into the rooms by natural infiltration.

Do not use gas appliances for heat unless the fumes are vented to the outside. It is extremely dangerous. Over a period of hours there is a build-up of noxious gases, and at the same time, the oxygen in the room is being consumed.

Portable electric heaters are very expensive to operate — consuming 1300 watts or more per hour — and 2½ times as much natural fuel is burned at the power plant for the amount of heat produced by the electricity.

Don't let the hot water run unnecessarily. It takes a lot of energy to heat it — 1000 BTU's (British thermal units) per gallon.

Plastic storm windows save heat

My wife and I are renting our present home until we can save enough to buy one. The house does not have storm windows, and the owner says he cannot install them unless he increases the rent. If I take plastic over the windows, will it help reduce the heating cost this winter?—P.F.

Plastic can be used to seal the windows, but the method you propose will not be attractive and there is little chance that the plastic will remain in place all winter. If you have full-length screens in the windows, tape the plastic over the outside of the screens. That way, wind will press the plastic against the screen and there is little chance it will be blown off.

Since you are saving to buy a house, you will probably be renting for more than one winter. You can make inexpensive plastic storm windows that can be removed at the end of the heating season and saved for next year. The wood frame for these windows is made of 1-by-2-inch furring strips. Be sure the ones you buy are completely straight. The over-all dimensions of the frame will be 1/8-inch less in each dimension than the window opening into which it will fit.

The use of lap joints or angle irons are the easy ways to fasten the corners, but you can use dowel or mortise and tenon connections. The cross member at the center of the frame should be slightly recessed into the sides. Paint the frame before proceeding further.

Herman Baum

The house doctor

A special clear, heavy plastic is preferred for covering the frames. This type often is used as a cover for tablecloths to prevent staining. It is attached to the side of the frame that will face outdoors. Secure it with staples spaced no more than 1½ inches apart and ¼ inch from the inner edge. Add screen molding to hide the staples and provide additional security to the plastic. Paint the molding first. Attach foam weatherstrip ribbon with an adhesive back along the inner edge of the frame.

Hardware is available for a hinging storm sash at the top. A tighter fit can be made by using wood screws, but you will not be able to open the windows on mild days.

Outpatients' clinic

Mrs. L.A.A. — An electronic device that the manufacturer claims will remove iron and iron rust from well water is available.

MRS. F. C. — A wax buildup on your furniture can be removed by using a cleaning wax recommended especially for cleaning kitchen cabinets. Most furniture requires waxing only two or three times a year.

R.M.S. — The non-skid decorations on the bottom of your bathtub can be removed with trichlorethylene. You may have to get this from a store that sells chemicals.

How can I get rid of a ring in my bathtub? I have tried everything, including scraping with a razor blade. — K.D.G.

The glaze in the tub probably has been destroyed by the frequent use of harsh scouring powders. You may try covering the stain with paper towels soaked with laundry bleach, but usually such stains are impossible to remove.

The outside of my sandstone fireplace is discolored by smoke. How can this area be cleaned? — Mrs. A.M.O.

A mechanics' paste hand soap, applied with a scrubbing brush, will do a good job. Another method is to mix three rounded tablespoons of trisodium-phosphate with a gallon of warm water and apply this with a scrubbing brush. Wear rubber gloves with this method.

Soneone placed a glass of cold water on a varnished table and it left a ring I have not been able to remove. — J.M.

Spot refinishing may be necessary, but try these methods first:

Sprinkle cigar ash over the stain and rub this with a soft cloth dampened with cooking oil. If this does not work, use the cloth with a fine abrasive called rottenstone. If still no luck, use grade FFF powdered pumice. If this removes the stain but dulls the finish, polish with the rottenstone. All rubbing must be done in the direction of the wood grain. The last two products are sold by paint stores.

The ceilings in my bedrooms and bath, close to the outside walls, are beginning to turn black from mildew. The ceilings were insulated when the house was built. — K.O'B.

My guess is that the insulation above the ceiling stops short of the outside walls and the plaster in these areas become so cold that moisture in the air condenses on the surface and is reponsible for the mildew. If you find you should add insulation, be sure not to extend it out so far as to cover any ventilating openings in the roof overhang.

After purchasing an older home covered with aluminum siding, we are considering painting it. What is the proper procedure? — T.C

Most aluminum siding is finished with heat-dried paint. and this can be repainted with any good-quality outside house paint. The surface should be rubbed lightly with steel wool to loosen dusting paint and then wiped with cloths to remove the dust.

New Arab city a blend of tradition, U.S. know-how

by LASZLO DONJAN

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — American architects with respect for Arab culture are designing a new city that will rise on vacant desert land 7,000 miles from the American Midwest.

The designers are convinced their attention to Saudi Arabian tradition played a major role in winning a planning contract in international competition.

The new city will be built five miles from the center of the Saudi Arabian capital of Riyadh at a cost of more than $500 million. An estimated $5 million will go in fees to two St. Louis architectural firms — Sverdrup & Parcel and Associates Inc. and Eugene J. Mackey III & Associates.

"MUCH OF WHAT has been done (by outsiders) in Saudi Arabia has been unfeeling for the Saudis' preferences," said John I. Never, a Sverdrup vice president.

"At the same time throughout the Middle East there is much desire for western technology. They have a tremendous admiration for the West. There was a risk of making the plan too traditional."

Architect Seth H. Langton of the Mackey firm said the plan — which was a winner over nine others submitted by U.S., Japanese, German, French and British firms — combines Arab traditions with modern technology.

Langton and William L. Awodey of Severdrup are chief architects of the winning design. Both prepared for the work by researching Saudi tradition as well as today's rapidly changing society in a land that is prospering because of its wealth of oil.

"WE HAD TO DO virtually all our own informational gathering," Awodey said. "Most available figures were 1970 United Nations figures, and figures more than three years old are no good. It's the petrodollars that are building this project."

Designing a Saudi home begins with privacy. A detached, one-family house is enclosed by a wall, usually with only one entryway, Awodey said.

A Saudi family, he said, "likely will include a grandmother and servants, and the house must be designed to keep the women's quarters separate from the men's quarters. This means also that you must provide separate living rooms in which to entertain guests — the women guests and the men guests."

The companies' researchers found another side to Saudi Arabaian tradition, as noted in a Sverdrup memo: "One bedroom is always required per couple. If the husband is polygamous, one bedroom per wife is required."

A SAUDI MAY have as many as four wives and a single household with two or three wives is not uncommon, although polygamy appears to be on its way out. The situation made it more difficult to decide how many bedrooms should be included in home designs.

Another consideration was that women are not allowed to drive cars in the male-dominated society. Therefore, homes must be close to market places.

Plans are to house 8,000 persons in the 100-acre town, which will include 540,000 square feet of commercial space.

Houses and commercial buildings likely will be made of concrete — "anything you can mix on the site and pour into place," said Awodey, who noted there are no steel mills in Saudi Arabia.

HE SAID glass areas are minimized because of the sun: "You'd blind people passing by or inside because of the glare, regardless of the reflective quality of the glass."

The project will be operated by the Saudi Real Estate Co., a private land developer that is 50 per cent government financed.

"The average developer charges what the market will bear," Meyer said. "Saudi Real Estate wants to provide good housing for people at reasonable prices. They figure they will set an example for others and this will force the competition to follow suit."

Another vice president at Sverdrup, Ital Veron, said his firm's records of having worked in 70 countries was a factor in winning the design.

"WE'VE BEEN involved in Saudi Arabia for 30 years," Veron said. "We were one of the first U.S. firms there."

Awodey, who is of Lebanese ancestry, said the "boomtown situation" in Saudi Arabia appears to be leveling off and the Saudis are increasingly selective about how their money is spent.

"It's just too bad," he said, "so much of the Arab culture is being lost by their rapid entry into the 20th century."

He worries about selling property when he's gone

Don G. Campbell

About real estate

You can't take it with you — and that applies to money, securities and comfortable homes. In leaving real estate behind though, you have at least one assurance: the land is going to be there a long time after the money, the securities and the comfortable home have all dried away to dust. That gives it a special cause for worry.

I have far passed the three-score-and-10-year mark and have made my will leaving everything to my sons. I have $8,500 invested in property that should bring about $30,000 at public auction. What steps should be taken to dispose of it as quickly as possible when I am gone? And what about the tax? — Mr. T. W. R.

Your sons are big boys, now. Why don't you leave it up to them? Your worry about something that is going to be out of your hands is not doing your present mental and emotional condition a bit of good.

When you are gone, your sons should put the property in the hands of a good real estate broker who will sell it for them conventionally — not at auction. What made you think of selling it at auction, incidentally?

The tax, if any? Here again it's your sons' problem, not yours.

Here's one I'll bet you've never heard before: about six months ago I rented a very nice two-bedroom apartment in a complex I own to a very presentable man, a bachelor. The rent was $250 a month and he didn't argue about it.

Since that time the rent has appeared right on time every month in an envelope with a local postmark. I don't think the man has ever lived there. The neighbors say they have never seen him and while the apartment is furnished nobody ever saw him move in any personal stuff. And there are never any lights at night and no noise at all. What do you think I should do about this? — Mrs. W. S.

Don't knock it. He sounds like the perfect tenant.

As the landlord, of course, you have the right to inspect the place and make sure that he, for instance, didn't leave a burner on on the stove. But, if the apartment's in good condition and the rent is paid promptly, there's not much youu can do about it. For that matter, there isn't much you would want to do about it — he isn't depreciating the place to any extent.

Our son and his new bride are living in a small guest cottage at the back of our property, rent-free. A friend has suggested that we could get into trouble with the tax people over this. Is this possible? — Mrs. T. T.

When the Internal Revenue Service is involved, anything is possible. The point could be made that your son should be reporting a fair rental on the cottage as income. But if you won't tell, I won't either.

My lot and my neighbor's are divided by a small stream — about 10 feet wide and maybe knee-high most of the time. We're not arguing about it, but who does the stream really belong to? — Mr. G. H. N.

This all has to do with "riparian rights," and while there are some pretty kinky state laws still on the books going back to old English custom, the boundary line in a case like this is normally regarded as being right smack in the middle of the stream.

If it were navigable, of course, neither one of you would own it — the state would.

He worries about selling property when he's gone

Don G. Campbell

About real estate

You can't take it with you — and that applies to money, securities and comfortable homes. In leaving real estate behind though, you have at least one assurance: the land is going to be there a long time after the money, the securities and the comfortable home have all dried away to dust. That gives it a special cause for worry.

I have far passed the three-score-and-10-year mark and have made my will leaving everything to my sons. I have $8,500 invested in property that should bring about $30,000 at public auction. What steps should be taken to dispose of it as quickly as possible when I am gone? And what about the tax? — Mr. T. W. R.

Your sons are big boys, now. Why don't you leave it up to them? Your worry about something that is going to be out of your hands is not doing your present mental and emotional condition a bit of good.

When you are gone, your sons should put the property in the hands of a good real estate broker who will sell it for them conventionally — not at auction. What made you think of selling it at auction, incidentally?

The tax, if any? Here again it's your sons' problem, not yours.

Here's one I'll bet you've never heard before: about six months ago I rented a very nice two-bedroom apartment in a complex I own to a very presentable man, a bachelor. The rent was $250 a month and he didn't argue about it.

Since that time the rent has appeared right on time every month in an envelope with a local postmark. I don't think the man has ever lived there. The neighbors say they have never seen him and while the apartment is furnished nobody ever saw him move in any personal stuff. And there are never any lights at night and no noise at all. What do you think I should do about this? — Mrs. W. S.

Don't knock it. He sounds like the perfect tenant.

As the landlord, of course, you have the right to inspect the place and make sure that he, for instance, didn't leave a burner on on the stove. But, if the apartment's in good condition and the rent is paid promptly, there's not much youu can do about it. For that matter, there isn't much you would want to do about it — he isn't depreciating the place to any extent.

Our son and his new bride are living in a small guest cottage at the back of our property, rent-free. A friend has suggested that we could get into trouble with the tax people over this. Is this possible? — Mrs. T. T.

When the Internal Revenue Service is involved, anything is possible. The point could be made that your son should be reporting a fair rental on the cottage as income. But if you won't tell, I won't either.

My lot and my neighbor's are divided by a small stream — about 10 feet wide and maybe knee-high most of the time. We're not arguing about it, but who does the stream really belong to? — Mr. G. H. N.

This all has to do with "riparian rights," and while there are some pretty kinky state laws still on the books going back to old English custom, the boundary line in a case like this is normally regarded as being right smack in the middle of the stream.

If it were navigable, of course, neither one of you would own it — the state would.

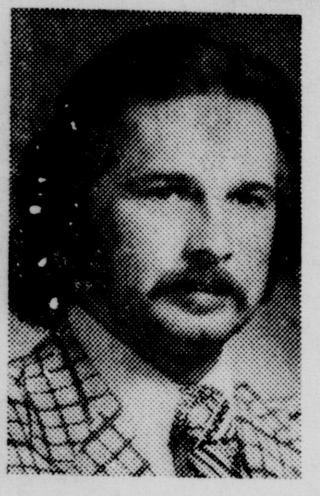
Million dollar club



Ken Dubs

Annen & Busse, Inc. announded that Ken Dubs, manager of their Schaumburg office, reached his $2 million sales goal during October.

Dubs joined Annen & Busse in the spring of 1972 and reached his million dollar sales goal for five consecutive years. He is a lifetime member of the MAP Multiple Listing Service and the Illinois Assn. of Realtors' Million Dollar Sales Club. He attained his Broker's license in 1974 and his G.R.I. designation in 1975.

Dubs and his bride of one year, Debra, live in South Barrington. He grew up in the Northwest suburban area and graduated from Forest View High School in Arlington Heights. He spent three years as a Navy Corpsman during the Vietnam War.

Sammie Koryta

Annen & Busse Inc. announced that Sammie Koryta of their Palatine office has reached her million dollar sales goal.

She, her husband George and their five children have been residents of Palatine for three years. She is a member of the Vets Group (alumni) of Welcome Wagon in Palatine. Her free time is spent playing bridge with one of several groups.

BUFFALO GROVE

Sandi Stortz

Joan Cvitkovich

Home Town Real Estate recently announced the appointments of two assistant sales managers.

Sandi Stortz, a broker with Home Town for three years, will be the assistant manager for the Hoffman Estates office. She lives in Hoffman Estates with her husband Ken and their two children. A member of the Million Dollar Club, she recently completed her first year of GRI.

Joan Cvitkovich was appointed assistant manager of Home Town's Schaumburg office. She resides in Schaumburg with her husband Joe and their three children. She has been a broker with Home Town for two years and is also a member of the Million Dollar Club.

Barbara Noor

d the appointment of Barbara Noor as office manager of the Palatine office.

Ms. Noor has been active in residential sales for four years in the MAP area. She is a member of MAP Million Dollar Sales Club. She has just completed extensive studies pertaining to the real estate industry.

Linda Keenan

Coe Meyer

Linda Keenan, sales associate in Baird & Warner's Des Plaines office, has been cited for her outstanding sales production.

Miss Keenan was named to the 1977 club on the basis of participating in more than $1 million of completed real estate sales.

Miss Keenan joined the company in 1976. She is a member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors and the Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines.

MADL Homes, Realtors announced that Coe D. Meyer surpassed the million dollar mark in real estate sales the first six months of 1977. Coe is a former Mount Prospect resident. He graduated from Wheeling High school plus Orange Coast College in Southern California. He currently resides in Rolling Meadows with his wife Kristin and two sons.

October S&L gains lag behind last year's figures

Savings gains at the nation's savings and loan associations during October ran well behind October of 1976, according to estimates released by the U.S. League of Savings Assn.

The league estimated there was a net savings gain of $2.5 billion during October, 27 per cent below the $3.45 billion savings gain in October a year ago.

The league's estimate for October was based on reports from 448 associations, which hold 20 per cent of savings and loan assets.

The league said that for the first 10 months of the year there had been an estimated gain of $43.8 billion, or 4.7 per cent ahead of the $41.8 billion for the first 10 months of 1976.

Norman Strunk, executive vice president of the league, said the October results suggest that savings institutions have begun to feel the effects of the rise in short-term interest rates of recent months.

"If short-term interest rates continue to rise, the adverse impact on savings flows will be greater," Strunk said. "Already the slowdown in savings flows has begun to result in some slight tightening in the supply of mortgage credit and slight firming in mortgage rates."

Trunk said that although savings have begun to slow down, the volume of mortgage lending by savings associations continues at a record pace, with an estimated increase in October of $9 billion, 32 per cent more than the $6.8 billion for October 1976.

For the first 10 months of the year, mortgage loans totaled an estimated $88.9 billion, 36 per cent above the $64.9 billion for the first 10 months of last year.

Sandi Stortz

Joan Cvitkovich

Home Town Real Estate recently announced the appointments of two assistant sales managers.

Sandi Stortz, a broker with Home Town for three years, will be the assistant manager for the Hoffman Estates office. She lives in Hoffman Estates with her husband Ken and their two children. A member of the Million Dollar Club, she recently completed her first year of GRI.

Joan Cvitkovich was appointed assistant manager of Home Town's Schaumburg office. She resides in Schaumburg with her husband Joe and their three children. She has been a broker with Home Town for two years and is also a member of the Million Dollar Club.

Barbara Noor

d the appointment of Barbara Noor as office manager of the Palatine office.

Ms. Noor has been active in residential sales for four years in the MAP area. She is a member of MAP Million Dollar Sales Club. She has just completed extensive studies pertaining to the real estate industry.

Linda Keenan

Coe Meyer

Linda Keenan, sales associate in Baird & Warner's Des Plaines office, has been cited for her outstanding sales production.

Miss Keenan was named to the 1977 club on the basis of participating in more than $1 million of completed real estate sales.

Miss Keenan joined the company in 1976. She is a member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors and the Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines.

MADL Homes, Realtors announced that Coe D. Meyer surpassed the million dollar mark in real estate sales the first six months of 1977. Coe is a former Mount Prospect resident. He graduated from Wheeling High school plus Orange Coast College in Southern California. He currently resides in Rolling Meadows with his wife Kristin and two sons.

October S&L gains lag behind last year's figures

Savings gains at the nation's savings and loan associations during October ran well behind October of 1976, according to estimates released by the U.S. League of Savings Assn.

The league estimated there was a net savings gain of $2.5 billion during October, 27 per cent below the $3.45 billion savings gain in October a year ago.

The league's estimate for October was based on reports from 448 associations, which hold 20 per cent of savings and loan assets.

The league said that for the first 10 months of the year there had been an estimated gain of $43.8 billion, or 4.7 per cent ahead of the $41.8 billion for the first 10 months of 1976.

Norman Strunk, executive vice president of the league, said the October results suggest that savings institutions have begun to feel the effects of the rise in short-term interest rates of recent months.

"If short-term interest rates continue to rise, the adverse impact on savings flows will be greater," Strunk said. "Already the slowdown in savings flows has begun to result in some slight tightening in the supply of mortgage credit and slight firming in mortgage rates."

Trunk said that although savings have begun to slow down, the volume of mortgage lending by savings associations continues at a record pace, with an estimated increase in October of $9 billion, 32 per cent more than the $6.8 billion for October 1976.

For the first 10 months of the year, mortgage loans totaled an estimated $88.9 billion, 36 per cent above the $64.9 billion for the first 10 months of last year.

Hearing Dec. 13 for rules on mortgage bankers

Timothy E. Griffin, Illinois commissioner of savings and loan associations, has announced proposed rules and regulations to implement an act to provide for the regulation of mortgage bankers.

The rules and regulations have been filed with the Secretary of State for publication in the Illinois Register. A hearing is scheduled Dec. 13.

The proposed rules and regulations implement H.B. 1096 (Public Act 80-676), which was signed by Gov. James R. Thompson Sept. 15.

The filing of the rules and regulations commences a 45-day period during which Griffin will receive comments from persons regarding suggested amendments or additions in the proposed rules and regulations. Final form will be filed with the Secretary of State on Jan. 6, 1978 and will become effective on Jan. 16, 1978.

GRIFFIN ANNOUNCED persons may testify at a public hearing concerning the proposed rules and regulations to be held at 9:30 a.m. Dec. 13 in Room 525, State of Illinois Building, 160 N. LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.

Those persons desiring to orally present their views, comments, data and arguments must submit a notice of intention to participate in writing to the Office of Savings and Loan Commissioner, no later than 5 p.m. Dec. 9.

This notice may be filed with the commissioner's Chicago office, located at 160 N. LaSalle St., Chicago, or the commissioner's Springfield office, 701 William G. Stratton Building. Those persons who fail to file timely notice of intention to testify may be permitted to testify as time permits.

As a supplement to oral testimony or in lieu of oral testimony, persons may submit their views, comments, data or arguments to the commissioner's office at either address before Dec. 13.

Keep concrete sidewalk clear of winter's woe

Concrete steps and sidewalks can be maintained in safe condition this winter by following a few practices.

If your concrete is new, it is probably advisable to refrain from using any deicers the first winter. Clean off loose snow and use sand or other gritty material to assure firm footing.

"Well cured, air-entrained concrete is durable against salt scaling," said Ralph Spears of the Portland Cement Assn., "but if new concrete has not had a chance to cure fully it can be damaged by early applications of salt."

The most used and least expensive deicer is common rock salt. Spears said salt should be used liberally. This reduces alternate freezing and thawing of the moisture on the concrete.

For example, a 3 per cent salt solution freezes at 29 degrees Fahrenheit, while a 10 per cent solutuion does not freeze until 20 degrees. If the daytime temperature hovers around freezing and only a light application of salt is applied, ice may still form when the temperature hovers around freezing and only a light application of salt is applied, ice may still form when the temperature drops at night causing a hazardous condition.

Be cautious of the deicers sold as beneficial to lawns While they will melt snow and ice, many of these contain ammonium nitrate and ammonium sulfate fertilizers which can damage the concrete surface.

When planning a concrete project, be sure to specify air-entrained concrete. Ready mix producers can provide air-entrained concrete at no extra cost. The millions of tiny air bubbles in the concrete give assurance of increased rurability against scaling when salts are used as deicers.

Don't forget the primer

Are you getting ready to start your first big painting project? The manufacturer's directions probably tell you to "prime first," but you may be wondering if you can save some time and money by skipping the primer.

The answer is a very emphatic NO, especially for previously unpainted surfaces.

Whether you're painting the living room walls, a piece of furniture or your son's toy wagon, priming can be the most important part of your project. To understand the importance of priming you need to know exactly what a primer does.

The prime coat serves two very important functions: it seals porous surface materials, preventing the topcoat from soaking in and drying to an uneven appearance, and it helps to form a tight bond between the topcoat and the underlying surface material.

Previously painted surfaces only need to be primed when the paint has peeled or been scraped off and the bare surface is exposed. Even then you only need to spot prime the exposed areas.

Before spot priming you must remove any loose or cracked paint up to the point where the paint is still tightly adhering to the surface. Smooth the edges of the undamaged paint by sanding, wipe away dust and prime. Always let the primer dry thoroughly before proceeding.

Check the manufacturer's label for suggested primers or ask your paint dealer to recommend one. In many cases the topcoat is used as the prime coat, too.

Century 21 convention in January

Approximately 500 affiliated brokers and sales persons from the Chicago area are expected to attend the Century 21 Annual Convention Jan. 3-6, 1978, in New Orleans.

Because approximately 12,000 Century 21 persons from the United States and Canada have registered for the convention, an identical second session has been scheduled for Jan. 17-20.

The convention will be held at the Rivergate Convention Center.

The keynote address will be delivered by sports author George Plimpton, who will speak on "Outperform Yourself in '78."

Century 21 consists of more than 4,700 independent real estate offices with 40,000 sales persons in the United States and Canada. Century 21 Real Estate Corp. of Northern Illinois includes 235 independent-owned and operated offices in 45 counties.

Barrington Square almost filled

Three recent transactions have pushed development to 90 per cent at the Barrington Square Center for Industry in Hoffman Estates, Nardi and Co. has announced.

The industrial real estate developer said Telemed Corp. has leased 5,026 square feet in the Century Industrial Plaza on Stonington Avenue. Telemed and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Health Technology Laboratories Inc., provide services and equipment to hospitals and physicians.

Glass Unlimited, a division of Crescent Corp., has leased 2,513 square feet of space in the plaza, while the Lewis Corp. purchased 61,783 square feet for its corporate headquarters.

The Lewis Corp. manufactures and distributes advertising specialties.

Nardi and Co. also announced the third-stage completion of space for the Xonics Corp., manufacturers of medical X-ray equipment. Xonics now occupies 75,000 square feet of space in Barrington Square.

Barrington Square, a Kaufman and Broad Inc. project, is one of 11 centers developed by Nardi and Co., of Hillside.

Home building permits for October drop 13.4%

Home building permits issued in October in the Northwest suburbs plunged 13.4 per cent below that of October 1976, compared with an overall gain of 2 per cent in the Chicago metropolitan area, a savings and loan survey reported.

However, several Northwest suburbs in October continued to lead the Chicago area in the number of permits issued, despite declines, according to the November survey by Bell Federal Savings and Loan Assn., Chicago.

Leading Chicago-area suburbs included Bartlett, which ranked third in the number of permits issued; Hoffman Estates, fourth; Schaumburg, fifth; and Hanover Park, eighth, Bell said.

THE SURVEY REPORTED that permits issued for single-family homes in 13 Northwest suburbs dropped from 614 issued in October 1976 to 532 in October 1977.

Dollar value for the Northwest area, however, rose slightly, from $25,415,028 to $25,491,241 between October 1976 and October 1977.

Changes in the number of permits issued ranged from a decline of 224 to 99 in Schaumburg, 47 to 5 in Palatine and 31 to none in Elk Grove Village, to a gain of from 51 to 121 in Bartlett.

Most dramatic change in dollar value, despite a relatively small numerical change, was reported by Hanover Park. Permits in the village rose from 73 to 82, but value soared from $3.3 million to $7.4 million, according to the survey.

THE BELL SURVEY covered permits issued in the seven-county metropolitan area. All housing, including single-family and apartments, rose from 4,459 to 4,507 in October, Bell reported.

Single-family units increased 12 per cent, from 2,798 to 3,140, but multi-family units declined 18 per cent, from 1,661 to 1,367, Bell reported.

During the first 10 months of 1977, total new housing activity increased 36 per cent over the same period in 1976. Single-family units increased from 20,962 to 28,166, a 34 per cent gain. Apartment activity rose from 10,692 to 14,863, a 39 per cent gain.

Total building permit values for all types of construction, including residential, commercial and industrial, totaled $361,972,014 in October, an increase of 58 per cent from $228,400,141 in October 1976. Total building permit values increased 104 per cent in Chicago, 50 per cent in the suburbs and 69 per cent in unincorporated areas.

Don't forget the primer

Are you getting ready to start your first big painting project? The manufacturer's directions probably tell you to "prime first," but you may be wondering if you can save some time and money by skipping the primer.

The answer is a very emphatic NO, especially for previously unpainted surfaces.

Whether you're painting the living room walls, a piece of furniture or your son's toy wagon, priming can be the most important part of your project. To understand the importance of priming you need to know exactly what a primer does.

The prime coat serves two very important functions: it seals porous surface materials, preventing the topcoat from soaking in and drying to an uneven appearance, and it helps to form a tight bond between the topcoat and the underlying surface material.

Previously painted surfaces only need to be primed when the paint has peeled or been scraped off and the bare surface is exposed. Even then you only need to spot prime the exposed areas.

Before spot priming you must remove any loose or cracked paint up to the point where the paint is still tightly adhering to the surface. Smooth the edges of the undamaged paint by sanding, wipe away dust and prime. Always let the primer dry thoroughly before proceeding.

Check the manufacturer's label for suggested primers or ask your paint dealer to recommend one. In many cases the topcoat is used as the prime coat, too.

Century 21 convention in January

Approximately 500 affiliated brokers and sales persons from the Chicago area are expected to attend the Century 21 Annual Convention Jan. 3-6, 1978, in New Orleans.

Because approximately 12,000 Century 21 persons from the United States and Canada have registered for the convention, an identical second session has been scheduled for Jan. 17-20.

The convention will be held at the Rivergate Convention Center.

The keynote address will be delivered by sports author George Plimpton, who will speak on "Outperform Yourself in '78."

Century 21 consists of more than 4,700 independent real estate offices with 40,000 sales persons in the United States and Canada. Century 21 Real Estate Corp. of Northern Illinois includes 235 independent-owned and operated offices in 45 counties.

Barrington Square almost filled

Three recent transactions have pushed development to 90 per cent at the Barrington Square Center for Industry in Hoffman Estates, Nardi and Co. has announced.

The industrial real estate developer said Telemed Corp. has leased 5,026 square feet in the Century Industrial Plaza on Stonington Avenue. Telemed and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Health Technology Laboratories Inc., provide services and equipment to hospitals and physicians.

Glass Unlimited, a division of Crescent Corp., has leased 2,513 square feet of space in the plaza, while the Lewis Corp. purchased 61,783 square feet for its corporate headquarters.

The Lewis Corp. manufactures and distributes advertising specialties.

Nardi and Co. also announced the third-stage completion of space for the Xonics Corp., manufacturers of medical X-ray equipment. Xonics now occupies 75,000 square feet of space in Barrington Square.

Barrington Square, a Kaufman and Broad Inc. project, is one of 11 centers developed by Nardi and Co., of Hillside.

Real estate group finds rent controls are detrimental

Citing the opinions of economists and other data, the National Assn. of Realtors has concluded that apartment rent controls are detrimental to renters, landlords and the communities in which they have been imposed.

In a study, the association lists as some of the adverse effects of rent controls diminished maintenance and repair; increased demolition and abandonment of building; reduced valuation of rent-controlled properties; erosion of the municipal tax base and a retarding influence on the construction of new rental properties.

The study was conducted by the association's Dept. of Economics and Research under the direction of Kenneth J. Kerin, research director.

The report also contains case histories of the impact of rent control on several U.S. cities. Such cities, the report notes, included more than 200 communities in mid-1976, mostly on the East Coast, housing about 14 per cent of the nation's urban population.

THE REPORT cites the rationale for rent control as a belief that the limited fixed income of some households needs to be protected during a period of housing shortage.

Proponents of rent control argue that housing is such a unique commodity that prices must be controlled because there are no substitutes for basic shelter. For example, they say, if the price of food or clothing rises, straining the household budget, less expensive foods and clothing are available. However, the same is not true of rental housing in a shortage period.

The report says that rent controls in communities in which only a limited portion of expenses may be passed Long to tenants discourage routine maintenance and repairs. This is because of the low return owners are likely to realize because rental housing must offer a rate of return that is cometitive with investments of comparable risk.

The report backs this up with some statistics. For the eight-year period ended in 1975, the percentage of gross income spent for maintenance and repairs for elevator buildings in Baltimore, Chicago and San Francisco, where there was no rent control, averaged 8 per cent, 7.7 per cent and 9 per cent respectively.

By contrast, the figure for New York for the same period was 6.3 per cent. And, during the six years ending in 1975 when Boston had rent controls, 7 per cent of income was so expended.

EVIDENCE OF DECAYING housing stock from rent controls can be seen from the experience in Lynn, Mass., the study reports. In that city, after controls were adopted, "the number of demolitions and abandonments of rental housing increased and the tax base eroded. The number of subsidized rental units constructed increased, while private construction virtually halted."

Not only is there an increase in demolitions and abandonments, the report says, but the value of remaining rental properties diminishes sharply. The report cites the ratio of property value to rental income as a good indicator of the desirability of rental property.

"Prior to the enactment of strict rent controls in New York," thereport says, " a typical rental complex sold for five to seven times the annual rent rolls. Currently, the ratio is two to three times rent rolls, and in some cases the price is equal to one year's rent."

An erosion in the tax base also is listed as one of the casualties of rent control, a prime example of which is the experience of Cambridge, Mass.

In his report of October 1976, the principal tax assessor of that city stated that Cambridge has seen its "first decrease in the tax base since the depression." He attributed the drop, at least in part, to rent control, saying that the fair market value of certain rental projects dropped from 5 per cent to 25 per cent during the 1972-74 period.

The report cites even greater declines in the market value of rent-controlled properties in New York during the same period.

A corollary of the decline in value for tax purposes, according to the report, is the increase in tax delinquencies.

Rent control, the report says, "creates a general atmosphere in which the collection of property taxes becomes much more difficult, where abandonments and demolitions became more commonplace, and where there is a growing number of appeals for tax abatements."

IN BOSTON IN 1973, the City Finance Commission said that, of a total of $341 million that was committed for collection, 13.6 per cent was uncollected at year-end. By mid-1974, nearly $1 of every $6 levied was uncollected.

In rent control areas, return on investment is too low to attract all but the most speculative capital, the report says. In fact, in some areas, investors can receive a better return at lower risk in the bond market.

Where owners of new units set rents significantly above those of controlled units, reflecting higher construction costs, the report says, the noncontrolled must compete with the controlled existing stock, making price competition almost impossible until all existing units are absorbed.

The difficulty of such competition, the report says, leads to an inevitably higher vacancy rate among the new units. In Boston, for example, the vacancy rate among elevator building units built from 1968 to 1975 was 10 per cent, while for units built during the previous eight years, the rate was 1.1 per cent.

"In an indirect way," the report concludes, "the federal government has said, in effect, that rent controls do not work. The Dept. of Housing and Urban Development has fought successfully in court to preempt from local rent controls units financed through some HUD programs to protect the economic interests of the United States:

"Obviously, HUD felt this action was necessary to avoid foreclosures on their properties due to artificial income constraints," the report says. "If the government feels preemption is necessary to protect its intersts, should this not extend to private ownership?"

Fireplace, chimney data available

Booklets on fireplaces and chimneys, wood-frame houses and solar heating are available from the Consumer Information Center of the U.S. General Services Administration.

The booklet, "Fireplaces and Chimneys," offers the following tips to homeowners:

- Fireplaces are not the most economical means of heating and usually are only one-third as efficient as a good stove.
- Chimneys must produce enough draft to supply fresh air to the fire and expel smoke and gases. Chimneys should rise at least three feet above a flat roof and at least two feet above a roof ridge or raised portion of a roof. Flue linings must be fireproof, and preferably made of vitrified fire clay at least 5/8 inches thick.
- Never connect a range, stove, fireplace or other heating equipment to the flue for the central heating unit. Each piece of heating equipment must have its own flue, because two or more connections to the same flue can cause fires due to sparks passing from one flue opening to another.
- Wooden beams or joists should be at least two inches from a chimney wall. The space can be filled with porous, non-metal lic, non-combustible material. Do not use brick work, mortar or concrete.

The booklet, "Wood-Frame House Construction" (Item 063E), contains 33 chapters telling the homeowner about building and home repairs.

"Buying Solar" (Item 114E) describes solar heating systems, and how homeowners can save dollars by using the sun for heating.

"Fireplaces and Chimneys" is available for 40 cents; "Wood-Frame House Construction," for $3.40; and "Buying Solar," for $1.85.

To order, write to the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009

A free Consumer Information Catalog also is available by writing the center. The catalog lists more than 200 federal consumer publications, half of which are free.

Real estate group finds rent controls are detrimental

Citing the opinions of economists and other data, the National Assn. of Realtors has concluded that apartment rent controls are detrimental to renters, landlords and the communities in which they have been imposed.

In a study, the association lists as some of the adverse effects of rent controls diminished maintenance and repair; increased demolition and abandonment of building; reduced valuation of rent-controlled properties; erosion of the municipal tax base and a retarding influence on the construction of new rental properties.

The study was conducted by the association's Dept. of Economics and Research under the direction of Kenneth J. Kerin, research director.

The report also contains case histories of the impact of rent control on several U.S. cities. Such cities, the report notes, included more than 200 communities in mid-1976, mostly on the East Coast, housing about 14 per cent of the nation's urban population.

THE REPORT cites the rationale for rent control as a belief that the limited fixed income of some households needs to be protected during a period of housing shortage.

Proponents of rent control argue that housing is such a unique commodity that prices must be controlled because there are no substitutes for basic shelter. For example, they say, if the price of food or clothing rises, straining the household budget, less expensive foods and clothing are available. However, the same is not true of rental housing in a shortage period.

The report says that rent controls in communities in which only a limited portion of expenses may be passed Long to tenants discourage routine maintenance and repairs. This is because of the low return owners are likely to realize because rental housing must offer a rate of return that is cometitive with investments of comparable risk.

The report backs this up with some statistics. For the eight-year period ended in 1975, the percentage of gross income spent for maintenance and repairs for elevator buildings in Baltimore, Chicago and San Francisco, where there was no rent control, averaged 8 per cent, 7.7 per cent and 9 per cent respectively.

By contrast, the figure for New York for the same period was 6.3 per cent. And, during the six years ending in 1975 when Boston had rent controls, 7 per cent of income was so expended.

EVIDENCE OF DECAYING housing stock from rent controls can be seen from the experience in Lynn, Mass., the study reports. In that city, after controls were adopted, "the number of demolitions and abandonments of rental housing increased and the tax base eroded. The number of subsidized rental units constructed increased, while private construction virtually halted."

Not only is there an increase in demolitions and abandonments, the report says, but the value of remaining rental properties diminishes sharply. The report cites the ratio of property value to rental income as a good indicator of the desirability of rental property.

"Prior to the enactment of strict rent controls in New York," thereport says, " a typical rental complex sold for five to seven times the annual rent rolls. Currently, the ratio is two to three times rent rolls, and in some cases the price is equal to one year's rent."

An erosion in the tax base also is listed as one of the casualties of rent control, a prime example of which is the experience of Cambridge, Mass.

In his report of October 1976, the principal tax assessor of that city stated that Cambridge has seen its "first decrease in the tax base since the depression." He attributed the drop, at least in part, to rent control, saying that the fair market value of certain rental projects dropped from 5 per cent to 25 per cent during the 1972-74 period.

The report cites even greater declines in the market value of rent-controlled properties in New York during the same period.

A corollary of the decline in value for tax purposes, according to the report, is the increase in tax delinquencies.

Rent control, the report says, "creates a general atmosphere in which the collection of property taxes becomes much more difficult, where abandonments and demolitions became more commonplace, and where there is a growing number of appeals for tax abatements."

IN BOSTON IN 1973, the City Finance Commission said that, of a total of $341 million that was committed for collection, 13.6 per cent was uncollected at year-end. By mid-1974, nearly $1 of every $6 levied was uncollected.

In rent control areas, return on investment is too low to attract all but the most speculative capital, the report says. In fact, in some areas, investors can receive a better return at lower risk in the bond market.

Where owners of new units set rents significantly above those of controlled units, reflecting higher construction costs, the report says, the noncontrolled must compete with the controlled existing stock, making price competition almost impossible until all existing units are absorbed.

The difficulty of such competition, the report says, leads to an inevitably higher vacancy rate among the new units. In Boston, for example, the vacancy rate among elevator building units built from 1968 to 1975 was 10 per cent, while for units built during the previous eight years, the rate was 1.1 per cent.

"In an indirect way," the report concludes, "the federal government has said, in effect, that rent controls do not work. The Dept. of Housing and Urban Development has fought successfully in court to preempt from local rent controls units financed through some HUD programs to protect the economic interests of the United States:

"Obviously, HUD felt this action was necessary to avoid foreclosures on their properties due to artificial income constraints," the report says. "If the government feels preemption is necessary to protect its intersts, should this not extend to private ownership?"

Fireplace, chimney data available

Booklets on fireplaces and chimneys, wood-frame houses and solar heating are available from the Consumer Information Center of the U.S. General Services Administration.

The booklet, "Fireplaces and Chimneys," offers the following tips to homeowners:

- Fireplaces are not the most economical means of heating and usually are only one-third as efficient as a good stove.
- Chimneys must produce enough draft to supply fresh air to the fire and expel smoke and gases. Chimneys should rise at least three feet above a flat roof and at least two feet above a roof ridge or raised portion of a roof. Flue linings must be fireproof, and preferably made of vitrified fire clay at least 5/8 inches thick.
- Never connect a range, stove, fireplace or other heating equipment to the flue for the central heating unit. Each piece of heating equipment must have its own flue, because two or more connections to the same flue can cause fires due to sparks passing from one flue opening to another.
- Wooden beams or joists should be at least two inches from a chimney wall. The space can be filled with porous, non-metal lic, non-combustible material. Do not use brick work, mortar or concrete.

The booklet, "Wood-Frame House Construction" (Item 063E), contains 33 chapters telling the homeowner about building and home repairs.

"Buying Solar" (Item 114E) describes solar heating systems, and how homeowners can save dollars by using the sun for heating.

"Fireplaces and Chimneys" is available for 40 cents; "Wood-Frame House Construction," for $3.40; and "Buying Solar," for $1.85.

To order, write to the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009

A free Consumer Information Catalog also is available by writing the center. The catalog lists more than 200 federal consumer publications, half of which are free.

2 review sessions for real estate exam

Two all-day review sessions have been scheduled in Palatine and the Northwest Side of Chicago for persons taking the Illinois real estate salesman's or broker's exam in December.

The exams are scheduled for Dec. 13, 14 and 15.

The Center for Real Estate Education at Harper College, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine, will conduct a review session at 8:30 a.m. Dec. 10. Tuition is $25, and includes lunch and materials.

To register, call 397-3000, ext. 410 or 412.

The Real Estate Education Co. will conduct a review Dec. 10 at the Howard Johnson's-O'Hare Motor Inn, 8201 W. Higgins Rd., Chicago.

The review begins at 9:30 a.m. Tuition for the salesman's review is $35, and for the broker's review, $40. Tuition includes materials. Graduates of the company pre-license courses are eligible for a $10 discount.

Pre-registration is required. For further information, call the Real Estate Education Co., 836-4444, or write them at 500 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, 60610.

Million dollar club

Faye Hoch

Ralph Molinelli

John Richey

Three more sales associates in Baird & Warner's Arlington Heights office have been named to the 1977 Million Dollar Club.

The three are Fay Hoch, Ralph Molinelli and John "Buzz" Richey.

This is the second consecutive year Mrs. Hoch has been named to the club. She joined Baird & Warner in 1974 after moving to the area from Syracuse, N.Y., where she was active in real estate for four years.

Molinelli has been a Million Dollar Club member eight times, seven years consecutively. He has been in real estate sales in the Northwest Suburbs for 21 years, is an associate member of the Northwest Suburban Board and holds a GRI designation.

This is Richey's second consecutive year in the Million Dollar Club and three years total. He is a licensed broker and has been active in real estate sales in the northwest suburbs for 10 years.

Carol Johnson

Carol Johnson of Thorsen Realtors' Schaumburg sales team aided clients in over $2,500,000 combined sales and listings thus far in 1977.

Coming to Thorsen with extensive real estate sales expertise, she was awarded membership in the $2 Million Sales Club for 1976 by the Illinois State Board of Realtors. She completed Thorsen's 40-hour professional sales associate course.

Ms. Johnson's community involvement includes membership with the board of directors of the Salvation Army Community Counseling Center, secretary of the board of directors for the Lord of Life Lutheran Church and vice president of the Timbercrest Homeowners Association.

U.S. can cut taxes safely: Schultze

Charles Schultzs, chairman of of the Council of Economic Advisers, said Wednesday the federal government can reduce taxes and constrain spending without serious economic consequences. "There are no major distortions or imbalances in the domestic economy that might precipitate a downturn or prolonged pause in the expansion," Schultze said. In a speech prepared for delivery in New York to the annual meeting of the American Council of Life Insurance, Schultze also said federal regulation of business and U.S. dependence on imported oil must be reduced. The White House adviser said the administration can reduce taxes, hold spending within the range of 21 per cent of the gross national product and still initiate some new urban and energy research programs.

Greyhound reaches agreement

Negotiators for Greyhound Lines Inc. reached a tentative contract agreement Wednesday night with union representatives for 14,000 bus drivers, mechanics and clerks across the nation. The Greyhound employes have been working without a contract since the old one expired Oct. 31 and had set 12:01 a.m. today as the deadline for concluding negotiations. No strike deadline had been set, however.

Company spokesman Gene Teeling said the tentative settlement with the Amalgamated Transit Union's Greyhound Council was reached during a four-hour evening session at a Scottsdale hotel. Terms of the proposed settlement were not released pending ratification by the membership of the AFL-CIO union. The ratification process was expected to take a week to 10 days.

The union voted in mid-November to reject a Greyhound offer that included a $300 bonus, cost-of-living benefits and a profit-sharing plan. Under the old contract, Greyhound workers averaged $6.21 per hour or 25 cents a mile.

2 accused of securities fraud

The Securities and Exchange Commission Wednesday charged that a top Labor Dept. official operated a fraudulent financial scheme in cooperation with a federal prisoner working from jail. The SEC filed a complaint accusing John B. Mumford, deputy assistant secretary of labor for employment standards, and Cortes Randell, former head of National Student Marketing Corp., with securities violations including fraud, offer and sale of unregistered securities and improper accounting methods. According to affidavits the SEC filed with the complaint in U.S. District Court in Alexandria, Va. some individual investors lost more than $50,000 in the plan.

Rail workers to be laid off

Consolidated Rail Corp. said Wednesday it will lay off 2,100 track workers today and that by the end of the month the figure will rise to 5,900. A Conrail spokesman said the layoffs are seasonal because the weather prevents major track maintenance during the winter. The Conrail spokesman said the number of workers being laid off this year is about equal to the number laid off in 1976. The first layoffs will come in the northeastern part of the system, including New York and New England; in the northern area centered in Detroit; and in the western region of Chicago, where the weather already has made working difficult.

U.S. charged with protectionism

Latin America, upset over higher tariffs and duties on sugar exports to the U. S. market, is charging the Carter administration with protectionism at the expense of developing countries. The Organization of American States was to consider a declaration expected to be highly critical of Washington's decision to increase tariffs from 1.87 cents to 2.81 cents a pound of imported sugar, plus an added duty of 3.3 cents per pound. The new measures were considered by the OAS Tuesday during a special five-hour session in which the higher import charges were criticized for reflecting U.S. protectionism and neglect of Latin American neighbors.

Japan to meet on trade surplus

As prime minister Takeo Fukuda Wednesday announced he would send a special envoy to Washington with proposals for scaling down Japan's foreign trade earnings, two of Japan's top economic officials urged drastic measures if necessary to reduce the surplus. Japan will have an estimated $17 billion surplus from foreign trade for the current fiscal year ending next March 31. Fukuda said the task of negotiating with the U.S. government will be assigned to Nobuhiko Ushiba, former Japanese ambassador to Washington.

Profit outlook gloomy for workers in '78, but tidy for corporations

by JOHN N. FRANK

Next year will not be a profitable one for American workers as increases in salaries are eaten up by rising inflation and new taxes, a Chicago bank economist said Wednesday.

But the outlook is somewhat brighter for U.S. corporations whose profits should increase between 12 and 13 per cent during 1978, said Herbert E. Neil Jr., economist and vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings Bank in presenting the bank's 1978 economic outlook.

Neil also made the following predictions in presenting his report at a morning press conference:

- The economy will continue to expand at a rate of about 5 per cent during 1978.
- The federal budget deficit will climb to $60 billion from $45 billion this year, possibly causing interest rates to rise for nongovernment borrowers.
- The unemployment rate will decrease as output rises. Neil gave no exact figures on how much it would decline.
- The policies of the Federal Reserve Board will not change drastically if Arthur Burns is not reappointed as chairman. Burns still will sit on the board and be able to influence its actions.

The board oversees increases in the nation's money supply. Drastic increases or no increases can lead either to inflation or recession, economists say.

Burns has pursued a line of moderate increases despite pressure from the Carter administration to let more money flow into the economy.

- Mortgage rates in the Chicago area will climb over the 9 per cent mark.
- Housing starts and consumer spending will continue to be major factors in the nation's expanding economy.

"We will continue to have increased wages of about 8 per cent offset by greater inflation and taxes," Neil said.

"The real income of the average worker is up less than 10 per cent over 10 years ago. Aside from two tax cuts there has been no improvement in the average real wage of the average American worker," Neil said.

The main culprit has been inflation which ran between 80 and 85 per cent for the 10-year period of 1967 to 1977, Neil said.

But while inflation has hurt consumer buying power, it actually has led to increased consumer buying, he said.

"Now people have learned that inflation means something. People say it's a good time to buy because prices are going up, so this inflation psychology spurs consumer spending," Neil said.

Consumers will need $40 billion in credit during 1978, up from $35 billion in 1977, Neil said. But the federal government will need $60 billion to finance its deficit and business will need $80 billion to finance its operations, he said.

Economy index up fourth time

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government index intended to predict the direction of the national economy rose 0.7 per cent in October for its fourth consecutive monthly gain and hit the highest level in four years, the Commerce Dept. reported Wednesday.

Charles Schultze, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said in a New York speech "there are no major distortions or imbalances in the domestic economy that might precipitate a downturn or prolonged pause in the expansion."

The Commerce Dept. said the index of leading economic indicators climbed to 133.8 to surpass the 133.7 of June 1973 when the economy was at its peak. Beginning in July 1973, the index began to weaken to foreshadow the 1974-75 recession.

THE 0.7 PER CENT rise in October was solid, indicating current job and production conditions probably will improve in the months ahead.

The department said the two chief factors for the October rise in the index were building permits and the money supply.

The housing industry is building new homes and apartments at the fastest rate in four years. Contractors increased their requests for new building permits by 9 per cent in October to boost their anticipated construction 25 per cent higher than a year go.

The Federal Reserve Board has also adopted a moderate policy on money. This has had the effect of holding down interest rates by allowing enough money for business, mortgage and consumer loans.

Carter hints at Burns replacement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter indicated Wednesday the search may have started for a new chairman of the Federal Reserve Board to replace Arthur Burns.

Burns' second term as head of the nation's central bank expires Jan. 31. There has been widespread speculation that Carter would replace the 73-year-old Burns because of basic economic policy differences.

Carter told a press conference he did not believe the business community would react negatively if a new chairman was appointed.

"I don't believe anybody is indispensible, a president or a chairman of the Federal Reserve Board or anyone else," Carter said.

"I think that if I should decide to replace Dr. Burns as chairman of the Federal Reserve, it would be incumbent on me to get someone who is competent and who would arouse the confidence of the American people."

No final decision has been made on Burns' future, according to administration sources. But Carter's statements today may be an indication of his thinking on the matter.

During his press conference on Nov. 10, Carter appeared to defend Burns and attempted to knock down reports of a serious riff between the White House and the Federal Reserve Board.

He said he did not have "any inclination to criticize the actions that have been taken by Mr. Burns" and said reports about a war between the two men "are completely erroneous."

Economy improving, Great Britain still has troubles

Hobart Rowen

LONDON — In a government office building not far from Big Ben, civil servants and their ministers puff their way up 8 to 10 flights of stairs while electricians who maintain the elevators (lifts, that is) strike for a 130 per cent pay increase.

Last week, there were 42 government buildings in London without some or all of their lifts, and many private buildings were affected as well. It's yet another evidence, like the bitter and more serious firemen's strike, of labor unrest casting a shadow over the superficially improved British financial picture.

In a recent lecture here at Imperial College, Sir Arnold Weinstock, managing director of the General Electric Co., decried as "unreal" the notion that British people disdain financial reward in exchange for a higher quality of life.

HE COUNSELS harder work, an ethic that the Japanese would understand. One thing that would help would be some reform in a senselessly confiscatory tax system which has a marginal 83 per cent rate after about $35,000 in salary income, and a tax on investment income that runs to 98 per cent. The net effect is that few British executives can take home more than $17,000 to $20,000, and the best a very select few can do is something close to $40,000, no matter what the pre-tax salary is.

Right now, England is on the edge of a major set of decisions on how to divide the rewards of the North Sea oil bonanza, which has already put the British balance of payments in the black and bolstered the exchange rate of British currency. By 1980 it is estimated that North Sea oil will be worth $5 billion to $7 billion a year, and $9 billion in the mid-1980s.

The Callaghan government's dilemma is that the most attractive prospect is to relax capital controls, and pour additional money into foreign investment because that's where there is likely to be a high rate of return.

But hefty new foreign investments will do little to stimulate jobs at home, where the unemployment rate is still a depressing 6 per cent despite the better financial picture and slightly reduced inflationary pressures. The underlying British economy is just as sluggish as it was before the North Sea gusher began to pay off.

THERE ARE LIKELY to be some tax cuts, although there are political limitations on what the Labor government thinks it can safely propose in terms of reducing that marginal 83 per cent personal tax rate. Some personal tax cuts for lower-income families are bound to be included.

A compromise, doing a little bit of this and a little bit of that, is the most probable outcome. In financial circles, there is a good deal of skepticism that the choices will be wise. "Ten years ago," says a banker who knows the government well, "we had the money from the North Sea gas. True, it wasn't as much as North Sea oil, but we wasted it."

My impression is that the public understands that North Sea oil is a one-time windfall that won't last forever. Wise use of the money could help Britain stay even in the competitive race with the industrial countries, that is, if the country doesn't burn down in the meantime.

Raw farm product prices up 1%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prices for raw farm products moving into the consumer pipeline rose 1 per cent in the month ending Nov. 15 with grains and soybeans enjoying a brisk post-harvest recovery, the U.S. Agriculture Dept. reported Wednesday.

The gain followed a 1 per cent increase in October, leaving average crop and livestock prices 4 per cent above a year ago. Earlier, this year's bumper harvests sent the farm price index down 10.3 per cent in a four-month decline before the October and November recovery.

The November farm price report said wheat, which hit a harvest season low of $2 a bushel in June and July, rose from $2.26 in mid October to $2.48 with the help of improved export demand, slightly above its year-ago price of $2.46.

Corn, which reached a low of $1.59 a bushel Sept. 15 as farmers harvested a record crop, rose from $1.61 last month to $1.91 a bushel Nov. 15 compared with $2.02 a year earlier.

It's the Canon NP-50. For low-to-medium copying requirements. It's engineered with rugged solid state technology. It's compact, produces clear, legible copies in statement, letter and legal size, on plain paper that can be written on immediately. And copy onto transparencies, labeled stock and colored paper.

It will replace copiers like the Xerox 660 and old fashioned electrofax copiers that use coated paper to produce copies that are tough to write on and read.

The Canon NP-50 is so reliable it greatly reduces your operating costs. And our suggested retail price of $2975 includes a handsome rollaway stand. Another savings.

Find out more about a whole new generation in copiers, call or write us today.

For $2,975,* it's the biggest bargain in plain paper copier history.

New publication to list foreign investment bids

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK — Abroad as at home, the poverty game can be profitable. When governments spend megabucks to ease the lot of the poor, Rule One is that a hefty percentage is going to stick to the fingers of the nonpoor. And so, astute businessmen traditionally have been seeking their own bottom-line interest in programs with such lofty titles as "foreign aid."

Now it's going to be easier for American businessmen to get their share of programs financed overseas not by the United States alone but by the World Bank and the United Nations Development apparatus. The potential sales are not to be sneezed at, even by the most hay-feverish executive: More than $5 billion worth of heavy equipment, machinery, goods, services and construction projects for the world's have-not nations.

Starting early next year, a new publication called Development Forum Business Edition will be published every two weeks under the aegis of the U.N. and will list the opportunities available for international competitive bidding. The chance to get more of this huge business for U.S. firms could add significantly to profits, emplopment and exports.

YOU MIGHT wonder what kind of detailed information the eager American businessman might find in this publication. Well, does anyone want to sell 45 bulldozers or 15 farm tractors to Thailand?

That's the sort of opportunity he will discover in the new publication, which will gather together the procurement needs of most of the globe's "developing" countries.

Much of this information already may be familiar to the multi-national giants, but it should be particularly helpful to medium and smaller businessmen who may not previously have regarded the international arena as something within their profit-making capabilities.

The publication, whose aim is to obtain greater industry awareness of the overseas market, will be published by the U.N.'s center for Economic and Social Information and edited by Peter Stone, a veteran British journalist and television producer. It will be printed in Geneva, on a nonprofit basis, and sold for $150 a year. Subscriptions can be obtained from Business Edition, United Nations, New York, N.Y. 10017.

AMERICAN DOLLARS provide an important part of the financing of the World Bank and U.N. Development projects planned for more than 100 countries in Africa, Asia, Latin America, the Caribbean and parts of Europe. So there should be no hesitancy on the part of American businessmen in competing vigorously for the work available.

Development Forum Business Edition has set itself both narrow-gauged and broad-gauged goals. Its prime function will be to detail both immediate procurement needs and prospective major projects in such areas as agriculture, urban and rural development, education, tourism, telecommunications, nutrition, water supply and sewerage, electric power and transportation.

Stocks rally, gain 2.43 in active trade

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks aided by Carter administration tax-cut promises, rallied late Wednesday to register an irregular gain despite concern over the oil industry. Trading was active.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, down more than four points at the outset, rallied to gain 2.43 points to 829.70. It plunged 12.30 points Tuesday in the worst loss since a 19.75-point drop July 27.

President Carter, Council of Economic Advisers Chairman Charles Schultz and Deputy Treasury Sec. Robert Carswell all had a hand in the stock rebound by saving separately the administration favors tax breaks next year to stimulate the economy. Analysts said investors were encouraged Carter would not press for controversial tax reforms.

THE NEW YORK stock exchange common stock index jumped 0.12 to 52.36 and the average price of a share increased by eight cents.

Declines topped advances, 735 to 664, among the 1·867 issues crossing the composite tape at 3 p·m.

Big board volume totaled 22,670·000 shares, compared with 22,950,000 traded Tuesday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 3 p.m. totaled 23,712,460 shares, compared with 24,899,708 Tuesday.

Prices were mixed in active trading of American stock exchange issues and over-the-counter issues.

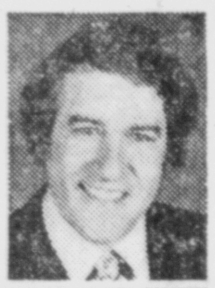
New publication to list foreign investment bids



Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK — Abroad as at home, the poverty game can be profitable. When governments spend megabucks to ease the lot of the poor, Rule One is that a hefty percentage is going to stick to the fingers of the nonpoor. And so, astute businessmen traditionally have been seeking their own bottom-line interest in programs with such lofty titles as "foreign aid."

Now it's going to be easier for American businessmen to get their share of programs financed overseas not by the United States alone but by the World Bank and the United Nations Development apparatus. The potential sales are not to be sneezed at, even by the most hay-feverish executive: More than $5 billion worth of heavy equipment, machinery, goods, services and construction projects for the world's have-not nations.

Starting early next year, a new publication called Development Forum Business Edition will be published every two weeks under the aegis of the U.N. and will list the opportunities available for international competitive bidding. The chance to get more of this huge business for U.S. firms could add significantly to profits, employment and exports.

YOU MIGHT wonder what kind of detailed information the eager American businessman might find in this publication. Well, does anyone want to sell 45 bulldozers or 15 farm tractors to Thailand?

That's the sort of opportunity he will discover in the new publication, which will gather together the procurement needs of most of the globe's "developing" countries.

Much of this information already may be familiar to the multi-national giants, but it should be particularly helpful to medium and smaller businessmen who may not previously have regarded the international arena as something within their profit-making capabilities.

The publication, whose aim is to obtain greater industry awareness of the overseas market, will be published by the U.N.'s center for Economic and Social Information and edited by Peter Stone, a veteran British journalist and television producer. It will be printed in Geneva, on a nonprofit basis, and sold for $150 a year. Subscriptions can be obtained from Business Edition, United Nations, New York, N.Y. 10017.

AMERICAN DOLLARS provide an important part of the financing of the World Bank and U.N. Development projects planned for more than 100 countries in Africa, Asia, Latin America, the Caribbean and parts of Europe. So there should be no hesitancy on the part of American businessmen in competing vigorously for the work available.

Development Forum Business Edition has set itself both narrow-gauged and broad-gauged goals. Its prime function will be to detail both immediate procurement needs and prospective major projects in such areas as agriculture, urban and rural development, education, tourism, telecommunications, nutrition, water supply and sewerage, electric power and transportation.

Brighten Your Table With Holiday Classics

The holidays are times of festivity and traditional foods across the world. When it comes to baking, holiday cooks find this season one of the merriest.

Whether for a Hanukkah party or a Christmas buffet, it seems the oven is always ready for the next batch of cookies or bread. So as you organize the recipes for the great bake-off in your kitchen, add an international flair with these desserts for December celebrations.

The Jewish feast of Hanukkah, known as the Feast of Lights, will be celebrated from Dec. 5 to Dec. 12 this year. The eight day festivities commemorate a moment from Jewish history. After rededication of the temple, the Jews found only a small bottle of oil to light the temple lamps. But the oil burned for eight days, an event remembered with the lighting of a candle each night of the holiday on the eight-stemmed candelabra known as the menorah.

These Hanukkah recipes are taken from "The Portal to Good Cooking," a cookbook published by the women's American ORT, midwest district VIII.

POPPY SEED COOKIES

1 cup vegetable oil
1 cup sugar
3½ cups flour
4 eggs, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
poppy seeds

Mix oil and sugar together. Stir in remaining ingredients. Roll dough on floured board. Cut into circles with cooky cutter. Arrange on cooky sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Makes 2 to 3 dozen.

HANUKKAH FRUIT BALLS

1 pound each: dates, candied red and green cherries, candied pineapple, cut up
1 pound nuts, chopped
¼ pound shredded coconut
1 can sweetened condensed milk

Combine all ingredients in mixing bowl. Wet hands and shape mixture into 1-inch balls. Arrange on a cookie sheet and bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 6 dozen.

STEAMED PUDDING

(from England)

2 cups milk
6 cups coarse soft bread crumbs
1 cup butter
1 cup molasses
2 cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons soda
2 teaspoons salt
4 teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon cloves
1 cup chopped candied citron
1 cup raisins
2 tablespoons grated lemon peel
Holiday Hard Sauce

Pour milk over bread crumbs in large mixing bowl. Melt butter, cool slightly; blend into bread mixture along with molasses. Combine flour, soda, salt, cinnamon, allspice and cloves; stir in citron, raisins and lemon peel. Add to bread crumb mixture; blend thoroughly. Pour into well-buttered 2-quart pudding mold with center post. Butter inside of cover to mold; cover; steam 3½ hours. Remove cover; let rest 10 minutes. Invert onto serving plate; serve very hot with Holiday Hard Sauce.

Holiday Hard Sauce: Cream ½ cup butter until fluffy. Gradually beat in 1½ cups sifted confectioners' sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1 tablespoon sherry. Cover and refrigerate. Let stand at room temperature 15 minutes before serving.

To steam: Pack rack in large kettle tall enough to accommodate mold. Place filled and covered mold on rack. Pour boiling water into kettle so that it comes halfway up height of mold. Cover kettle tightly. Keep water boiling over low heat to steam pudding recommended time or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean.

NOTE: Pudding may be made ahead and refrigerated or frozen. If frozen, completely defrost. To reheat, wrap pudding in heavy duty aluminum foil and heat in preheated 350 degree oven 1 hour. Serves 16 to 18.

CHRISTMAS STOLLEN

(from Germany)

2¾ to 3 cups all-purpose flour
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 package active dry yeast
1 cup milk
½ cup butter
1 egg
½ cup raisins
½ cup chopped candied cherries
½ cup chopped blanched almonds
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
Softened butter
Vanilla glaze
Candied cherries
Almonds

Thoroughly combine 1½ cups flour, sugar, salt and undissolved yeast in large mixing bowl. Heat together milk and butter until very warm (120-130 degrees). Gradally add to dry ingredients. Add egg. Beat ½ minute at low speed of mixer, scraping bowl occasionally, then 3 additional minutes at high speed. Mix raisins, cherries, almonds and lemon peel with ¼ cup of the flour. Add to yeast mixture. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn onto lightly floured surface. Knead until smooth and elastic, 5 to 10 minutes. Place in buttered bowl, turning to butter top. Cover; let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down. Divide in half. Roll out each half on lightly floured surface to form 8-inch circle. Spread with softened butter. Fold in half; press only folded edge firmly. Form into crescent. Place on cookie sheet. Cover; let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, about 30 minutes. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven 20 to 25 minutes. Remove from cookie sheet to wire rack to cool. Frost with vanilla glaze and decorate with almonds and candied cherries.

Vanilla Glaze: Combine 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar with 1½ tablespoons half and half or light cream and ½ teaspoon vanilla. Makes 2 coffee cakes.

BUCHE de NOEL

(from France)

CAKE ROLL:
¾ cup sifted cake flour
¼ cup cocoa
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
4 eggs, at room temperature
¾ cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon water
1 teaspoon vanilla
Confectioners' sugar

FILLING:
1 teaspoon unflavored gelatin
¼ cup water
1 cup whipping cream
½ teaspoon almond extract
2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar

FROSTING:
1½ squares (1½ ounces) unsweetened chocolate
1 teaspoon instant coffee
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup sifted confectioners' sugar
Dash of salt
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 egg white
¼ cup sifted confectioners' sugar

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. For cake roll, butter bottom of 15x10-inch jelly roll pan; line with waxed paper. Butter paper and sides; dust with flour. Sift together flour, cocoa, baking powder and salt; set aside. Beat eggs on highest speed of mixer until thick and lemon-colored. Add sugar, a little at a time, beating well after each addition. Beat until thick and fluffy. Fold in water and vanilla. Gradually fold in flour mixture until smooth. Spread evenly in prepared pan. Bake 12 to 15 minutes. While cake is baking, sprinkle a kitchen towel with sifted cake flour.

Immediately on taking cake from oven, loosen edges and turn out on prepared towel. Peel off waxed paper, trim edges. Roll up cake in towel, starting with narrow end. Let stand 20 minutes on cake rack.

While cake is standing, sprinkle gelatin over water to soften. Heat over low heat until dissolved, stirring constantly. Cool to room temperature. Beat cream in chilled bowl with chilled beaters until stiff peaks form. Fold in gelatin mixture then almond extract and confectioners' sugar. Cover and chill 5 to 10 minutes.

Unroll cake and spread with whipped cream filling. Roll up again. Cover and chill 1 hour or more.

Melt chocolate over low heat with instant coffee; cool slightly. Cream butter; gradually add ½ cup confectioners' sugar and cream until light and fluffy. Blend in chocolate coffee mixture, salt and vanilla. Beat egg white until soft peaks form, gradually beat in ¼ cup confectioners' sugar until stiff peaks form. Fold chocolate mixture into egg white, gently but thoroughly. Frost cake roll. Draw tines of fork lengthwise over top of log to resemble bark. Decorate with whole almonds and candied cherries. Chill thoroughly before serving. Or, freeze; thaw to serve but do not allow to become warm. Garnish platter with candy spearmint leaves and maraschino cherries, if desired. Serves 12.

SPRITZ

(from Sweden)

½ cup butter
¼ cup sugar
1 egg yolk
½ teaspoon almond extract
1 cup + 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Cream butter; add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. Beat in egg and almond extract. Gradually blend in flour. (Do not chill dough.) Fill cookie press. Use Christmas tree, camel, wreath plates to press out shapes on cool cookie sheets. Sprinkle with colored sugar, silver dragees or decorate with bits of candied cherries. Use star plate for "S" shape. Bake 8 to 10 minutes. Cool on wire racks. Store in tightly covered container. Makes 4 dozen cookies.

Olesons' holiday buffet— gourmet feast yule enjoy

Lois Seiler

Cook of the week

"So beautiful, it looks catered" is the way friends describe Lowell and Roberta Oleson's Christmas cocktail party.

A 13-foot Christmas tree graces the cathedral-ceilinged living room of their gaily decorated home, setting the stage for holiday festivities.

The center of attraction is Roberta's dining room table, laden with an elegant variety of hot and cold hors d'oeuvres. Between 80 and 100 guests attend this annual event, which has become a tradition in the 12 years the Olesons have lived in Arlington Heights. Roberta prepares all the food herself, with extra help to serve and keep the table replenished. Either wine punch and egg nog are available, or a hired bartender tends to mixed drinks in the kitchen.

Several of Roberta's specialties are so popular, she serves them year after year. However, she always adds a few new appetizers, and Lowell is her chief sampler. Their children, Sharon, 15, and Andrew, 12, help with some of the preparations for the party, usually held early in the evening on a Sunday.

One of Roberta's favorite recipes is a large Quiche Lorraine, which she makes in a jelly-roll pan. She prepares three of these for her party; they make a big hit with guests. The primary ingredients — bacon, Swiss cheese and green onion — are well-proportioned with no one dominant flavor. Layered in a rich crust and topped with an egg-milk mixture, the baked quiche is creamy and smooth in texture.

The quiche is cut into small squares for appetizers, but Roberta also recommends it as a dish for brunch or supper cut in larger slices. Then she serves it with fresh or smoked fish, ham or Canadian bacon, pumpernickel or French bread and a green or fruit salad.

A whole poached salmon makes an impressive appearance on the buffet,

THE HOLIDAY season is the time for entertaiinng at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Oleson in Arlington Heights. For the finishing touch to a shrimp appetizer, you can add a swirl of cheese as Mrs. Oleson suggests.

Olesons' holiday buffet— gourmet feast yule enjoy

Lois Seiler

Cook of the week

"So beautiful, it looks catered" is the way friends describe Lowell and Roberta Oleson's Christmas cocktail party.

A 13-foot Christmas tree graces the cathedral-ceilinged living room of their gaily decorated home, setting the stage for holiday festivities.

The center of attraction is Roberta's dining room table, laden with an elegant variety of hot and cold hors d'oeuvres. Between 80 and 100 guests attend this annual event, which has become a tradition in the 12 years the Olesons have lived in Arlington Heights. Roberta prepares all the food herself, with extra help to serve and keep the table replenished. Either wine punch and egg nog are available, or a hired bartender tends to mixed drinks in the kitchen.

Several of Roberta's specialties are so popular, she serves them year after year. However, she always adds a few new appetizers, and Lowell is her chief sampler. Their children, Sharon, 15, and Andrew, 12, help with some of the preparations for the party, usually held early in the evening on a Sunday.

One of Roberta's favorite recipes is a large Quiche Lorraine, which she makes in a jelly-roll pan. She prepares three of these for her party; they make a big hit with guests. The primary ingredients — bacon, Swiss cheese and green onion — are well-proportioned with no one dominant flavor. Layered in a rich crust and topped with an egg-milk mixture, the baked quiche is creamy and smooth in texture.

The quiche is cut into small squares for appetizers, but Roberta also recommends it as a dish for brunch or supper cut in larger slices. Then she serves it with fresh or smoked fish, ham or Canadian bacon, pumpernickel or French bread and a green or fruit salad.

A whole poached salmon makes an impressive appearance on the buffet,

THE HOLIDAY season is the time for entertaiinng at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Oleson in Arlington Heights. For the finishing touch to a shrimp appetizer, you can add a swirl of cheese as Mrs. Oleson suggests.

Colorful dishes for holidays

A good meal depends not only on flavor but also on texture and color. If you're looking for some traditional holiday go-alongs, these combinations will brighten your table with a taste even the little ones will want to try.

For a crunchier and firmer texture, use broccoli spears for the broccoli and cheese combination, accented with meringue-type covering broiled to a light brown. For the traditional, what better combination for a meal than an apple and yam casserole? Finish off the plate with a colorful spiced apple garnish.

BROCCOLI PARMESAN

Cooked broccoli spears or chopped broccoli
2 egg whites
½ teaspoon salt
1/3 cup mayonnaise
Parmesan cheese

Beat egg whites and salt until stiff. Fold in mayonnaise. Heap in center of arranged spears or spread over chopped broccoli. Sprinkle generously with Parmesan cheese. Broil 3 to 5 minutes or until golden brown.

YAM 'N APPLE CREATION

6 to 8 yams
6 to 8 firm cooking apples
1 cup sugar
¼ cup cornstarch
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups boiling water
½ cup butter

Parboil yams, peel and cut into pieces. Peel apples and slice. Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt in saucepan. Add boiling water and butter; stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Butter casserole dish and place yams and apples in casserole in layers. Pour sauce over. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Serves 12.

GINGERY APPLE RINGS

4 tablespoons butter or margarine
4 tablespoons honey
½ teaspoon ginger ground
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons lemon juice, freshly squeezed
4 medium apples, unpeeled (Golden, Delicious, Pippin)

In medium skillet, melt butter or margarine. Add honey, ginger, cinnamon and lemon juice. Cook for 3 to 5 minutes. Wash, core and slice apples in ½-inch rings. Cook in honey-butter mixture about 4 to 5 minutes, turning twice. Serve with roast turkey as garnish or accompaniment. Makes about 16 apple rings.

Salmon ideas stretch food budget

Joyce Lofstrom
Food editor

This is the era of stretching the food budget. So if salmon appeals, make it a salmon burger, a thick pattie filled with chopped carrots, onion and green peppers.

The oats act as an extender so this recipe will satisfy six hungry persons on one of these crisp December nights.

SEASIDE SALMON BURGERS

Salmon Burgers:

1 (15½ ounce) can salmon
1 cup quick oats, uncooked
2 eggs
1/3 cup chopped green pepper
1/3 cup shredded carrot
1/3 cup chopped onion
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Mustard Sauce:

1/3 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon prepared mustard

For salmon burgers, drain salmon. Stir in remaining ingredients and form into burgers. Fry in butter over medium heat until brown.

For mustard sauce, combine mayonnaise and mustard. Mix well. Serve mustard sauce with salmon burgers. Serves 6.

CHOOSE A nautical theme for tonight's short cut meal and serve a lump salmon pattie. No need to worry about leftovers with this protein packed burger delight.

Best buys

Stock up on your holiday baking supplies this week and take advantage of the specials in area stores. You'll find five pounds of flour for 68 to 66 cents; a 3-pound can of vegetable shortening for $1.39 and the 48-ounce bottle of vegetable oil for $1.69 to $1.79. If holiday quick breads are on your baking list, look for bananas at 20 cents a pound and 3 pounds of Jonathan apples at 69 to 89 cents.

Oranges are on sale this week, just in time for those colorful holiday centerpieces and gift baskets. Look for 4 and 5 pound bags in area stores. If you enjoy fresh grapefruit for breakfast, a 5-pound bag is priced at 89 cents to $1.

Several area stores offer specials on beef roast and steak this week. Advertised cuts include boneless and bone-in rump roast, sirloin tip roast, sirloin, T-bone, porterhouse, round and rib steaks. Whole fryers and pork loin, ribs and chops are also on sale.

Blue cheese tart a quick quiche for fresh fruit

Although dessert doesn't have to be an everyday occurrence, it's always wise to keep several choices ready when the mood strikes. If you have a supply of fresh fruits on hand, one half of tonight's dessert is ready to go.

To escort the fresh fruits to your dinner table, select a blue cheese tart, which is a miniature quiche baked in a small muffin tin. The muffin cups or tart molds can be purchased individually or as a single unit, like the larger muffin or cupcake pans. Elaborate as they may appear, the tarts can be made ahead of time and warmed for dessert.

As you press the pastry into the tins, make sure holes do not appear in the dough or the blue cheese filling will leak through. Form the pastry rim on each tart to get as much filling as possible in each shell.

BLUE CHEESE TARTS

Fruit 'sunshine' is good any time

Nutritious snacks are just as important for adults as they are for children. Instead of a box of chocolates or a fruit cake for a "Thank You" hostess gift, take along a holiday bag of mixed citrus fruit when you go visiting.

On days when the wintertime elements keep you house-bound, keep a little California and Arizona citrus sunshine on hand. It will brighten your day.

COOK WITH WINE

Good cooks the world over have been using wine to flavor their foods for hundreds of years. Many of the old recipes have become classics. They are worth every minute of the time it takes to chop innumerable ingredients, simmer slowly for hours and season intricately.

But a more imaginative approach to the use of wine with food is to experiment. Wine can turn any food into a dish that has sparkle and character. Frozen carrots simmered in sauterne and butter taste much better than carrots boiled in water. The addition of sherry transforms canned soup into a rich and aromatic menu item. Port turns raspberry flavored gelatin into a distinctively fresh dessert.

Wine is readily available and easy to use. It does not have to be cleaned, chopped, sliced, sauteed, etc. before you can use it. You simply measure it and pour it into or over the food. The alcohol evaporates during cooking to leave nothing but an overall enhancement of the food.

Dry white wines are generally more compatible with delicately flavored foods such as chicken, fish, cream soups and cream sauces. With robust foods such as beef, meat sauces, meat and vegetable soups, dry red wines are most often used. Rose' goes well with ham, veal and fruit. Use dessert wines such as port and cream sherry in desserts, dessert sauces and gelatin salads.

Wine is readily available and easy to use. It does not have to be cleaned, chopped, sliced, sauteed, etc. before you can use it. You simply measure it and pour it into or over the food. The alcohol evaporates during cooking to leave nothing but an overall enhancement of the food.
Dry white wines are generally more compatible with delicately flavored foods such as chicken, fish, cream soups and cream sauces. With robust foods such as beef, meat sauces, meat and vegetable soups, dry red wines are most often used. Rose' goes well with ham, veal and fruit. Use dessert wines such as port and cream sherry in desserts, dessert sauces and gelatin salads.

Olesons' buffet a feast yule love

yet Roberta confides that it is quite simple to make. There have been times when Lowell has caught fresh Coho in Lake Michigan and the Olesons have frozen it for Christmas use.

Other years, Roberta orders a whole salmon. She prefers it with both head and tail, but sometimes has to settle for the whole fish with just the tail. Poached in court bouillon, both wine and vinegar firm the flesh so that it doesn't crumble. Chilled and skinned, the beautiful pink salmon is decorated with mayonnaise or lemon slices to resemble scales.

Another of her specialties, Steak Tartare, is a little different because of the tasty bleu cheese and onion sauce which is served with it. She also devised attractive shrimp appetizers, made by placing shrimp on garlic-buttered bread rounds and decorating each with a rosette of roka cheese. These can be prepared ahead and frozen, and Roberta advises making a large quantity because they disappear in a hurry.

An interesting new recipe she has used several times is for asparagus hors d'oeuvres made by wrapping asparagus spears in bread slices spread with cheese. Rolled in melted butter and cut in thirds, they are frozen and baked before serving.

She also makes two tasty cheese balls from a mixture of three cheeses seasoned with onion, Worcestershire sauce, parsley and nuts. One is coated with parsley, the other with nuts.

A braunschweiger pate easily is made with liver sausage, mayonnaise, vinegar and dried onion, then molded in a bouillon gelatin. "This is inexpensive to make and really appeals to men because it is something they can recognize," Roberta chuckled.

Two quickie recipes she has used for years are made with crabmeat. One is a tasty hot crabmeat dip, and the other a cream cheese log covered with a mixture of crabmeat and seafood sauce.

To complete the buffet, Roberta adds a few Cantonese hors d'oeuvres, meat balls, a large bowl of egg salad and salted or spiced nuts.

Both cooking and camping have long been two of Roberta's favorite interests in compiling a collection of hobbies, and she is combining these outdoor cooking recipes for use by youth groups. Active in Campfire Girls, she was a leader for seven years and is now camping chairman for the district. Roberta is also president of the Northwest Women's Club.

QUICHE LORRAINE

Pastry:

4 cups flour, sifted and measured
2 teaspoons salt
1 1/3 cups solid shortening (at least half butter)
6 to 8 tablespoons water
1 egg, slightly beaten

Combine flour and salt. Cut in shortening until finely crumbled. Add just enough water to hold pastry together. Roll out pastry to cover the bottom of an 11-by 17-inch jellyroll pan, using scraps to line the sides of pan. Brush bottom and sides with slightly beaten egg and place in refrigerator to dry, at least 8 hours or overnight.

Filling:

1½ pounds bacon
1 cup green onions and stems, chopped
1½ pounds Swiss cheese, grated
4 cups heavy cream or half and half
8 eggs, beaten
1½ teaspoons salt
Grated nutmeg
Several dashes Tabasco sauce

Fry bacon until crisp and drain well on paper towel. Crumble over pastry.

Fry chopped onion in 3 tablespoons fat until wilted. Drain well on paper and sprinkle over bacon. Cover with grated cheese.

Heat oven to 450 degrees. Scald cream and beat into beaten eggs. Season with salt, nutmeg and tabasco.

Place pastry into preheated oven, pour cream mixture over and bake 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 325 degrees and continue baking until knife inserted comes out clean, about 15 to 20 minutes. Serve warm, not hot. May be baked in advance, refrigerated and warmed just before sarving. Cut in 1-inch squares for appetizers, or larger slices for brunch or supper.

WHOLE POACHED SALMON

1 whole, cleaned salmon, fresh or fresh frozen, 4 to 7 pounds

The salmon should have the tail and if possible, the head. For cooking, use either a fish poacher or a large roasting pan with rack to fit inside. The fish also may be wrapped in a hammock of cheesecloth or a towel.

Prepare a court bouillon for the salmon in poaching pan. You will need sufficient water to almost cover fish.

To this, add the following:

2 ribs celery, coarsely chopped
2 carrots, coarsely chopped
1 large onion, coarsely chopped
2 stalks snipped parsley
1 bay leaf
1 tablespoon salt
8 peppercorns
½ cup lemon juice or white vinegar
1 cup dry white wine

Bring ingredients to a rolling boil and boil 20 minutes. Lower fish on rack or substitute into bouillon. Cook 8 to 10 minutes per pound, covered, at a temperature to keep liquid slightly simmering. Never allow it to boil. When done, the fish should feel firm to the pressure of your finger.

Remove fish on rack, drain, and if possible slide directly onto serving platter. Cover with plastic wrap and foil, chill. This may be done one day in advance.

Before serving, slit skin down center back with knife tip and peel off. Also, gently remove any dark flesh remaining. The fish may be decorated in any desired way. Scales may be simulated with piped-on mayonnaise or scallops of lemon slices may be arranged down the center. Surround fish with bed of parsley or watercress.

Historic cranberry gets glory

In the historic community of Plymouth, Mass., less than one quarter mile from Plymouth Rock and Mayflower II, a new waterfront museum called Cranberry World was opened. It's dedicated to the greater glory of the little scarlet-red berry which is one of the North American continent's few native fruits.

Two floors of exhibits, multimedia displays, dioramas, maps and artifacts chronicle the history, lore, legend and commercial development of the tangy berry, from pre-colonial days to the present.

Adding a note of realism to the exhibits, three actual working cranberry bogs surround the museum, which is sponsored by Ocean Spray, Inc., a cooperative with over 900 growers across the country producing more than 80 per cent of the nation's cranberry crop.

Cranberries grew wild on these shores centuries before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth in 1620 and were a favorite food and medicine of the American India. Today, the berries are cultivated in only five states: Massachusetts, Wisconsin, New Jersey, Oregon and Washington. But the berry's popularity continues.

Americans will spend more than $162.5 million for cranberries and cranberry products in 1977.

yet Roberta confides that it is quite simple to make. There have been times when Lowell has caught fresh Coho in Lake Michigan and the Olesons have frozen it for Christmas use.

Other years, Roberta orders a whole salmon. She prefers it with both head and tail, but sometimes has to settle for the whole fish with just the tail. Poached in court bouillon, both wine and vinegar firm the flesh so that it doesn't crumble. Chilled and skinned, the beautiful pink salmon is decorated with mayonnaise or lemon slices to resemble scales.

Another of her specialties, Steak Tartare, is a little different because of the tasty bleu cheese and onion sauce which is served with it. She also devised attractive shrimp appetizers, made by placing shrimp on garlic-buttered bread rounds and decorating each with a rosette of roka cheese. These can be prepared ahead and frozen, and Roberta advises making a large quantity because they disappear in a hurry.

An interesting new recipe she has used several times is for asparagus hors d'oeuvres made by wrapping asparagus spears in bread slices spread with cheese. Rolled in melted butter and cut in thirds, they are frozen and baked before serving.

She also makes two tasty cheese balls from a mixture of three cheeses seasoned with onion, Worcestershire sauce, parsley and nuts. One is coated with parsley, the other with nuts.

A braunschweiger pate easily is made with liver sausage, mayonnaise, vinegar and dried onion, then molded in a bouillon gelatin. "This is inexpensive to make and really appeals to men because it is something they can recognize," Roberta chuckled.

Two quickie recipes she has used for years are made with crabmeat. One is a tasty hot crabmeat dip, and the other a cream cheese log covered with a mixture of crabmeat and seafood sauce.

To complete the buffet, Roberta adds a few Cantonese hors d'oeuvres, meat balls, a large bowl of egg salad and salted or spiced nuts.

Both cooking and camping have long been two of Roberta's favorite interests in compiling a collection of hobbies, and she is combining these outdoor cooking recipes for use by youth groups. Active in Campfire Girls, she was a leader for seven years and is now camping chairman for the district. Roberta is also president of the Northwest Women's Club.

QUICHE LORRAINE

Pastry:

4 cups flour, sifted and measured
2 teaspoons salt
1 1/3 cups solid shortening
(at least half butter)
6 to 8 tablespoons water
1 egg, slightly beaten

Combine flour and salt. Cut in shortening until finely crumbled. Add just enough water to hold pastry together. Roll out pastry to cover the bottom of an 11-by 17-inch jellyroll pan, using scraps to line the sides of pan. Brush bottom and sides with slightly beaten egg and place in refrigerator to dry, at least 8 hours or overnight.

Filling:

1½ pounds bacon
1 cup green onions and stems, chopped 1½ pounds Swiss cheese, grated
4 cups heavy cream or half and half
8 eggs, beaten
1½ teaspoons salt
Grated nutmeg
Several dashes Tabasco sauce

Fry bacon until crisp and drain well on paper towel. Crumble over pastry.

Fry chopped onion in 3 tablespoons fat until wilted. Drain well on paper and sprinkle over bacon. Cover with grated cheese.

Heat oven to 450 degrees. Scald cream and beat into beaten eggs. Season with salt, nutmeg and tabasco.

Place pastry into preheated oven, pour cream mixture over and bake 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 325 degrees and continue baking until knife inserted comes out clean, about 15 to 20 minutes. Serve warm, not hot. May be baked in advance, refrigerated and warmed just before sarving. Cut in 1-inch squares for appetizers, or larger slices for brunch or supper.

WHOLE POACHED SALMON

1 whole, cleaned salmon,
fresh or fresh frozen,
4 to 7 pounds

The salmon should have the tail and if possible, the head. For cooking, use either a fish poacher or a large roasting pan with rack to fit inside. The fish also may be wrapped in a hammock of cheesecloth or a towel.

Prepare a court bouillon for the salmon in poaching pan. You will need sufficient water to almost cover fish.

To this, add the following:

2 ribs celery, coarsely
chopped
2 carrots, coarsely chopped
1 large onion, coarsely chopped
2 stalks snipped parsley
1 bay leaf
1 tablespoon salt
8 peppercorns
½ cup lemon juice or white vinegar
1 cup dry white wine

Bring ingredients to a rolling boil and boil 20 minutes. Lower fish on rack or substitute into bouillon. Cook 8 to 10 minutes per pound, covered, at a temperature to keep liquid slightly simmering. Never allow it to boil. When done, the fish should feel firm to the pressure of your finger.

Remove fish on rack, drain, and if possible slide directly onto serving platter. Cover with plastic wrap and foil, chill. This may be done one day in advance.

Before serving, slit skin down center back with knife tip and peel off. Also, gently remove any dark flesh remaining. The fish may be decorated in any desired way. Scales may be simulated with piped-on mayonnaise or scallops of lemon slices may be arranged down the center. Surround fish with bed of parsley or watercress.

Olesons' holiday feast—a buffet yule just love

Serve with mayonnaise, tartar sauce and lemon slices.

For serving, you will need a knife and fork. Break off chunks of fish just down to the bone. When top half of fish has been served, the bone will lift out. Remove and continue serving the botton half.

STEAK TARTARE

2 pounds of lean ground round or sirloin steak
1 tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon drained capers
½ teaspoon allspice
1 large onion, chopped fine

The meat should be ground the same day it is served. Mix all ingredients well. Garnish with chopped parsley and sieved egg yolk, if desired. Must be refrigerated until serving time. Serve surrounded by ice, if possible.

Serve on dark rye bread with the following sauce:

3 ounces crumbled bleu cheese
½ cup salad oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
Dash of pepper
Dash of paprika
4 medium onions, sliced very thin and quartered

Mix together all ingredients except the onions and pour over onions. Chill. May be made ahead and refrigerated, covered.

ELEGANT SHRIMP

3 dozen medium shrimp, cooked and cleaned
¼ pound soft butter
2 teaspoons garlic salt
Finely chopped parsley
1 jar roka cheese spread
Thin-sliced white bread

Remove crusts from bread and cut into 36 rounds, rectangles or crescents. Bread will be easier to work with if partially frozen. Spread tops of bread shapes with butter mixed with garlic salt and place in stacks of 6 to 8. Butter sides completely and pat sides with chopped parsley. Separate bread slices. Place one shrimp on center of each and pipe rosette of roka cheese spread in center of each shrimp. May be made ahead and frozen if using fresh shrimp. Cover well.

GOOD CHEESE BALL

1 pound bleu cheese, crumbled
7 packages (3 ounces each) cream cheese
8 ounces sharp cheddar cheese spread
1 grated medium onion
3 to 4 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped nots
½ cup chopped parsley

Blend ingredients together well. Divide into 2 portions. Place each in a small, rounded container lined with plastic wrap. Chill. Remove from bowl. Before serving, roll 1 in chopped parsley and 1 in chopped nuts.

BRAUNSCHWEIGER PATE EN GELEE

½ pound braunschweiger or liver sausage
3 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon minced dried onion

Mix ingredients together and chill. Make the following gelee:

1 can consomme, undiluted
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water

Heat consomme until hot. Soften gelatin in cold water. Add to consomme when partially cooled.

Coat inside of small mold or bowl with consomme mixture by placing the bowl in a bowl of ice and tipping and twirling it until coated. Fill with pate and chill until firm. Unmold and serve with rye bread or crackers.

ASPARAGUS HORS d'OEUVRES

2 cans (15 ounces each) asparagus spears, well drained well drained
25 to 30 slices white bread
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese
1 package (4 ounces) cold pack bleu cheese spread
½ pound butter

Remove crusts from bread and roll each slice very thin with a rolling pin.

Mix 2 cheeses together and spread on bread sticks. Lay 1 asparagus spear on each slice and roll up firmly. Roll them through melted butter. Place on cookie sheet and freeze immediately. After 24 hours, cut each roll into 3 pieces. Put into plastic bags and return to freezer until ready to use. Bake on cookie sheet at 400 degrees for 15 to 17 minutes and serve hot. Makes 75 to 80 appetizers.

CRABMEAT CHEESE LOG

1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese
1 can King crabmeat (7½ ounces) drained and shredded
1 bottle (8 ounces) seafood sauce

Mix crabmeat with just enough sauce to bind it together. Cover top and sides of cream cheese block with it. Pour some additional sauce over top of block. Serve with crackers or toast.

HOT CRABMEAT DIP

16 ounces cream cheese
2 ounces butter
2 tablespoons minced dried onion
2 dashes cayenne pepper
2 cans (6½ to 7 ounces each) or 2 packages (6 to 7 ounces each) frozen crabmeat, defrosted

Mix ingredients in top of chafing dish or pan over water. Heat until melted, adding a little milk if mixture seems too stiff for serving. Add crabmeat, which has been well-drained and shredded. Serve with crisp bread or crackers.

Serve with mayonnaise, tartar sauce and lemon slices.

For serving, you will need a knife and fork. Break off chunks of fish just down to the bone. When top half of fish has been served, the bone will lift out. Remove and continue serving the botton half.

STEAK TARTARE

2 pounds of lean ground round or sirloin steak
1 tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon drained capers
½ teaspoon allspice
1 large onion, chopped fine

The meat should be ground the same day it is served. Mix all ingredients well. Garnish with chopped parsley and sieved egg yolk, if desired. Must be refrigerated until serving time. Serve surrounded by ice, if possible.

Serve on dark rye bread with the following sauce:

3 ounces crumbled bleu cheese
½ cup salad oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
Dash of pepper
Dash of paprika
4 medium onions, sliced very thin and quartered

Mix together all ingredients except the onions and pour over onions. Chill. May be made ahead and refrigerated, covered.

ELEGANT SHRIMP

3 dozen medium shrimp, cooked and cleaned
¼ pound soft butter
2 teaspoons garlic salt
Finely chopped parsley
1 jar roka cheese spread
Thin-sliced white bread

Remove crusts from bread and cut into 36 rounds, rectangles or crescents. Bread will be easier to work with if partially frozen. Spread tops of bread shapes with butter mixed with garlic salt and place in stacks of 6 to 8. Butter sides completely and pat sides with chopped parsley. Separate bread slices. Place one shrimp on center of each and pipe rosette of roka cheese spread in center of each shrimp. May be made ahead and frozen if using fresh shrimp. Cover well.

GOOD CHEESE BALL

1 pound bleu cheese, crumbled
7 packages (3 ounces each) cream cheese
8 ounces sharp cheddar cheese spread
1 grated medium onion
3 to 4 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped nots
½ cup chopped parsley

Blend ingredients together well. Divide into 2 portions. Place each in a small, rounded container lined with plastic wrap. Chill. Remove from bowl. Before serving, roll 1 in chopped parsley and 1 in chopped nuts.

BRAUNSCHWEIGER PATE EN GELEE

½ pound braunschweiger or liver sausage
3 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon minced dried onion

Mix ingredients together and chill. Make the following gelee:

1 can consomme, undiluted
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water

Heat consomme until hot. Soften gelatin in cold water. Add to consomme when partially cooled.

Coat inside of small mold or bowl with consomme mixture by placing the bowl in a bowl of ice and tipping and twirling it until coated. Fill with pate and chill until firm. Unmold and serve with rye bread or crackers.

ASPARAGUS HORS d'OEUVRES

2 cans (15 ounces each) asparagus spears, well drained well drained
25 to 30 slices white bread
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese
1 package (4 ounces) cold pack bleu cheese spread
½ pound butter

Remove crusts from bread and roll each slice very thin with a rolling pin.

Mix 2 cheeses together and spread on bread sticks. Lay 1 asparagus spear on each slice and roll up firmly. Roll them through melted butter. Place on cookie sheet and freeze immediately. After 24 hours, cut each roll into 3 pieces. Put into plastic bags and return to freezer until ready to use. Bake on cookie sheet at 400 degrees for 15 to 17 minutes and serve hot. Makes 75 to 80 appetizers.

CRABMEAT CHEESE LOG

1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese
1 can King crabmeat (7½ ounces) drained and shredded
1 bottle (8 ounces) seafood sauce

Mix crabmeat with just enough sauce to bind it together. Cover top and sides of cream cheese block with it. Pour some additional sauce over top of block. Serve with crackers or toast.

HOT CRABMEAT DIP

16 ounces cream cheese
2 ounces butter
2 tablespoons minced dried onion
2 dashes cayenne pepper
2 cans (6½ to 7 ounces each) or 2 packages (6 to 7 ounces each) frozen crabmeat, defrosted

Mix ingredients in top of chafing dish or pan over water. Heat until melted, adding a little milk if mixture seems too stiff for serving. Add crabmeat, which has been well-drained and shredded. Serve with crisp bread or crackers.

Our saucy sauce turns simple spaghetti into a super special casserole.

Easy Spaghetti Casserole

Break ½ pound thin spaghetti into thirds. Cook according to package directions; drain and rinse. Break ½ pound ground chuck into small pieces. Combine cooked spaghetti, chuck, ½ cup chopped green pepper, ½ cup chopped onion, 7-ounce can drained whole kernel corn, ¾ cup shredded process American cheese, two 8-ounce cans Contadina® Tomato Sauce, 2 teaspoons salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper in a large bowl. Spoon mixture into buttered 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle additional ¼ cup shredded cheese over top. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 45 to 50 minutes. Makes about 7 cups.

Our thick, rich paste turns ground beef into a hot and hearty supper.

Quick Skillet Supper

Brown 1 pound ground chuck, ½ cup chopped onion and 1 crushed garlic clove in large 12-inch skillet. Drain off excess fat. Add 6-ounce can Contadina® Tomato Paste. Slowly blend in 3 cups water. Stir in 2-ounce can mushroom stems and pieces and liquid, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and ½ teaspoon Italian seasoning. Boil gently 5 minutes. Stir in 3 cups (6 ounces) uncooked wide noodles. Boil gently, covered, 15 to 20 minutes or until noodles are tender and most of liquid is absorbed; stir occasionally. Serve with Parmesan cheese. Makes 6 cups.

Eileen Kelly

Let's learn to micro-cook

Scallops in wine sauce easy treat

My sister Mary thinks I spend all my time in my kitchen. She's not too far off the mark. I do spend many hours there because I truly enjoy cooking, and there's always something I'm anxious to try. During my high school years I had a dear boyfriend, but he didn't like to eat much and wasn't a successful dinner guest at our house. I knew ours could never be true love with that kind of eating habit! Picky eaters are difficult for me to handle.

With the help of my little girls, I made a truly gourmet dinner of scallops in wine sauce with a minimum of fuss and a maximum of good eating. If the idea of wine turns you away, then substitute chicken broth. I bought the scallops at $3.39 a pound which was a "special." I know that is far from cheap, but stop to consider that there's no waste and no advance preparation of the seafood except washing. Additionally, it's such a delicious seafood. Don't you like to get away from the meat syndrome once in a while?

THIS DISH IS gourmet enough for the most discerning of company and yet there's no reason why you can't prepare it for an everyday meal. Our 8-year-old, Donna, wasn't so sure she would like the dinner but 3-year-old Paul reassured her with, "It's just like chicken!"

You can clothe this dish in fancy French names, if you wish, but why bother — it's good in any language. Basically, it's scallops cooked in a white sauce flavored with wine or chicken broth.

SCALLOPS IN WINE SAUCE

1 pound fresh or frozen scallops, thawed
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 small onion, finely chopped
¼ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of freshly ground pepper
½ cup of dry white wine, cooking sherry or chicken broth
1 can (4 ounces) mushroom stems and pieces, drained
½ cup milk (you can use cream but who needs the extra calories)
1 egg yolk

Run cold water over the scallops and put them on a paper towel to drain. Put the butter and chopped onion in a 2-quart casserole and cook on high, uncovered, for 3 minutes or until onion is tender. Stir at least once during cooking period.

Blend in flour, salt and pepper. Add wine, mushrooms and scallops. Cover the casserole with a lid or plastic wrap. Microwave about 4 minutes on high. Again you can and should stir the mixture several times during the cooking period.

Combine the milk and the egg yolk and stir into the hot scallop mixture. Microwave on high for another minute. Let stand covered for 5 minutes and then serve.

Note: If you have an oven with a medium setting you can do the entire recipe on the medium setting. If you do this you won't have to be so careful about stirring the mixture because of the more gentle cooking situation. The times would be the same except after you add the milk and egg yolk mixture, microwave on "roast" for about 3 minutss.

I serve this dish over a bed of rice but it would be quite attractive in individual pastry shells. Add a tossed green salad with a light French dressing and you have a very delightful meal. A pound of scallops should serve four adults and since our children are young we can get away with using a pound for six of us — but this leaves no leftovers. When you compare a dinner of this type to a meal out at a fast-food restaurant, you can find a reason to think twice about the cost comparison. I hope you'll give it a try the next time you are in the mood for a good but different dinner.

Open Dating

Open dating at A&P means just that - clear, readable dates printed on the label that tell customers the last date the product will be sold.

One of the most important consumer rights is the right to be informed. A&P's open dating policy which began in Jan. 1973 continues to help shoppers who are concerned about the freshness of the foods they buy.

While several freshness codes are in use throughout the supermarket industry, A&P has consistently chosen the "sell by" date. Products are designed with built-in time for normal storage and use in the home, so even if a product is purchased on the "sell by" date the consumer knows the product can be used after that date and still be assured of good quality and freshness.

A&P uses open dates for 95 percent of its perishable and semi-perishable items including poultry, fish, meat (fresh and processed), bean coffee, baked goods, deli, dairy and refrigerated items. Look for our signs in the Meat Department which tell what the open date means. The labels read "Sell by Nov. 16" or "Sell by Nov. 16, 1977." A few products carry the expiration date. It is intended to have the same meaning as the "sell by" date, and the label reads "Exp. Nov. 16."

Open dating is one guide to food freshness, but proper handling and food storage temperature are equally important. Taking groceries home from the supermarket right away, rather than letting them sit in a warm car will maximize their freshness. Read labels for storage directions. Avoid storing any foods in warm places.

For freshness - read the date before you buy.

Special holiday fruit time

The holidays are a good time to indulge in fruits, especially those one often doesn't sample during much of the year.

Once upon a time tangerines and oranges were considered a Christmas treat for lucky children who found them in their Christmas stockings.

With today's jet-fast transportation of most fresh foods, exotic tropical fruits from the islands such as fresh papayas, mangoes and pomeloes are available throughout the year.

Now is the time to freshen up those holiday menus with such new taste treats as a papaya crown or mexicorn salad. These salads go with any meat or fish or poultry dish and make a good luncheon base, too.

PAPAYA CROWN SALAD

1 can (6¼ ounces) tuna, drained
½ cup finely chopped green onions,
¼ cup pared, finely chopped cucumber
1 to 2 tablespoons diced green chilies
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
Salt and pepper to taste
4 Hawaiian papayas
1 lemon

Combine tuna, green onions, cucumber, chilies, capers and mayonnaise in mixing bowl. Season with salt and pepper and chill for several hours. Make papaya crowns by slicing each papaya in half and removing seeds. With sliced side down cut a wedge 2 inches deep from the stem end of each half. Sprinkle each half with lemon juice and refrigerate until ready to serve. To serve, stand 2 papaya halves in a small cup and fill with tuna salad mixture. Makes 4 servings.

PAPAYA MEXICORN SALAD

1 package (10 ounces) frozen corn
½ cup sliced Bermuda onion
1/3 cup chopped green pepper
10 cherry tomatoes, halved
Salt and pepper to taste
Marinade
4 Hawaiian papayas

Prepare corn according to package directions. Remove from heat, rinse with cold water and drain thoroughly. In a mixing bowl combine corn, onion, green pepper and cherry tomatoes. Toss lightly with salt and pepper. Combine marinade with vegetable salad and chill for several hours. To serve: make papaya crowns by slicing each papaya lengthwise in half and removing seeds. With sliced side down, cut a wedge two inches deep from the stem end of each half. Sprinkle each half with lemon juice and refrigerate until serving time. To assemble crowns place 2 papaya halves in a small cup and fill with marinated vegetables.

Marinade

¼ cup olive oil or vegetable oil
3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
1 clove garlic crushed
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash cayenne pepper

Combine ingredients and blend well. Makes 4 servings.

Blue cheese tart adds zip to fruit

2 ounces blue cheese
2 tablespoons soft butter
2 eggs
1 cup light cream
1 tablespoon minced green onion tops
Dash freshly ground pepper

To prepare pastry, crumble pie crust sticks in mixing bowl. Blend in 1 egg and sesame seeds to form a stiff dough. Using about 1 tablespoon dough for each, press dough in bottom and up sides of small muffin cups forming as high an edge as you can. Press pastry as thin as possible taking care there are no holes. Bake 5 minutes in preheated 400 degree oven.

Meanwhile, prepare filling. Blend blue cheese and butter to a fairly smooth paste. Add eggs and blend until smooth. Stir in remaining ingredients. Fill pastry cups with about 1 tablespoon filling. Bake for 20 to 25 minutes, until tops are lightly browned. Cool 5 to 10 minutes before removing from pan. Serve warm. Tarts may be made ahead and reheated, serving with assorted fresh fruits. Makes 3 dozen tarts.

Hint. For easier portioning, uou may want to divide dough into 36 pieces before starting to form shells.

Judo holds her

At 34, Barb Murphy has proved she can throw the best around

by ELEANOR RIVES

See that slender blonde driving that big Wheeling school bus full of high school and junior high school kids? Gosh, some of those kids are bigger than she is.

Well, don't worry about Barbara Murphy. Her passengers never give her any trouble. The guys who know her already have told those who don't that she could flatten any one of them without half trying.

Barbara, a brown belt judo athlete, recently was named "Outstanding Female Competitor of the Year" by the Central Amateur Athletic Union at its annual recognition dinner.

In the past year, she took eighth place in the National Women's Tournament, a nationwide competition that has been held the last four years. "American women do extremely well in national competition," she said.

IN THE United States, international judo competition for women has been held the past two years. Barbara took fifth place in individual competition at the Women's International Judo Competition. Teams came to Hamilton, Ohio, for the internationals from as far away as Israel, Sweden and the Republic of China. Not from Japan. Althought judo originated in Japan, Barbara has never seen a Japanese female compete.

Beginning judo students start with a white belt. As they become more proficient, they advance to yellow, orange, green and then brown. There are three degrees of brown; Barbara is second degree.

In the highest level, black belt, there are 10 degrees. Male competitors at the national level are usually first, second, third-or fourth-degree black belt. The first woman ever to be promoted to fourth-degree black belt, according to Barbara, is her teacher, Phyllis Harper of Glencoe.

TENTH-DEGREE BLACK belt is almost unattainable and, to Barbara's knowledge, there are no 10th-degree black belt judos living today.

How did Barbara and judo find each other?

As a teen-ager, she made sure to please her mother by continuing ballet lessons while inwardly she yearned to be halfway down the block at the intriguing store front with the judo pictures in the window. But girls didn't do that.

She waited. She grew up, went to college, majored in piano at Northwestern University. She married Martin Murphy, a nice corporation salesman who is very supportive of anyone who wants to learn judo but prefers doing macrame in his spare time. They settled in Wheeling and proceeded to have five children.

THEN, AT 29, when their fifth child was still a baby, Barbara took the judo lessons that had always intrigued her. In the following years, all five of the children followed her example. Today, though Brendan, 9, and Kael, 7, have turned to other sports, Colleen, 12, Sean, 11 and Siobahn, 5, are hard at it. Colleen captured fourth place in the Junior AAU Nationals in San Francisco last summer.

When teased by neighborhood kids, the five young Murphys invite them over to the club to watch their judo practice sessions. That's all that is necessary.

The "club" is above the Glenview Ice Center, and two evenings a week, Barbara and whichever children are currently involved in the sport don their Gis, kimono-type athletic outfits made of practically indestructible material, and trek over there for a few hours of hard practice on the mats. That includes hold-downs, chokes, arm bars, foot sweeps and falls — many, many falls — all under the watchful eye of instructor Fergus Furlong.

"WE SPENT ABOUT six weeks learning how to fall," Barbara explained. "Judo shouldn't be confused with jujitsu or karate — those are more for self-defense, more dangerous. Judo is really a sport. It's great aerobatic exercise, good physical conditioning. It uses your large muscles.

"It's played as a game is played," she went on. "A referee watches very closely. There are also two judges, a timekeeper, scorekeepers, and there's a doctor in attendance at all times."

She hastened to enlarge on the last statement. "Well, it's fairly safe," she said. "In any sport, there are bound to be accidents. I've never been seriously injured. But I can assure you if I throw someone hard on concrete, someone who doesn't know how to fall, he is going to be pretty sore."

YOUNG SIOBAHN, a kindergartner, knows how to fall — and how to throw, too. She and her mother had great fun demonstrating judo to a fifth grade class of schoolchildren recently. "It's a question of getting the other person off balance," her mother said.

In her spare time, Barbara gives piano lessons and occasionally plays for various social affairs. For kicks, she and another woman are building a harpsichord, something she has always wanted to do.

As a musician, she finds that her body requires something physical to offset the hours of sitting at the piano. Judo has filled that need.

BARBARA SAID there are two types of Judo: Shiai, which means "contest," and Kata, which means "form." Shiai are three to eight-minute matches in which the contestants try to throw each other. Kata matches are demonstrations of a series of prearranged throws, judged on how well they are done.

"I enjoy competition," 34-year-old Barbara said. "I'll probably compete in Shiai about three more years. After that I'll stay basically in Kata."

Kata has its own special excitement to her, for it opens the door to a new dream.

"Female judo competition has never been allowed in the Olympics," she said. "The games are in Moscow in 1980, and if the Russian women's judo team is ready, they will probably bring it in. The 1984 Olympics will be in Los Angeles.

"I could do Kata there," she said matter-of-factly.

EVEN A 5-YEAR-OLD can throw an adult. While Sean referees the judo practice match, Siobahn demonstrates how to take advantage of her mother's momentum and throw her off balance.

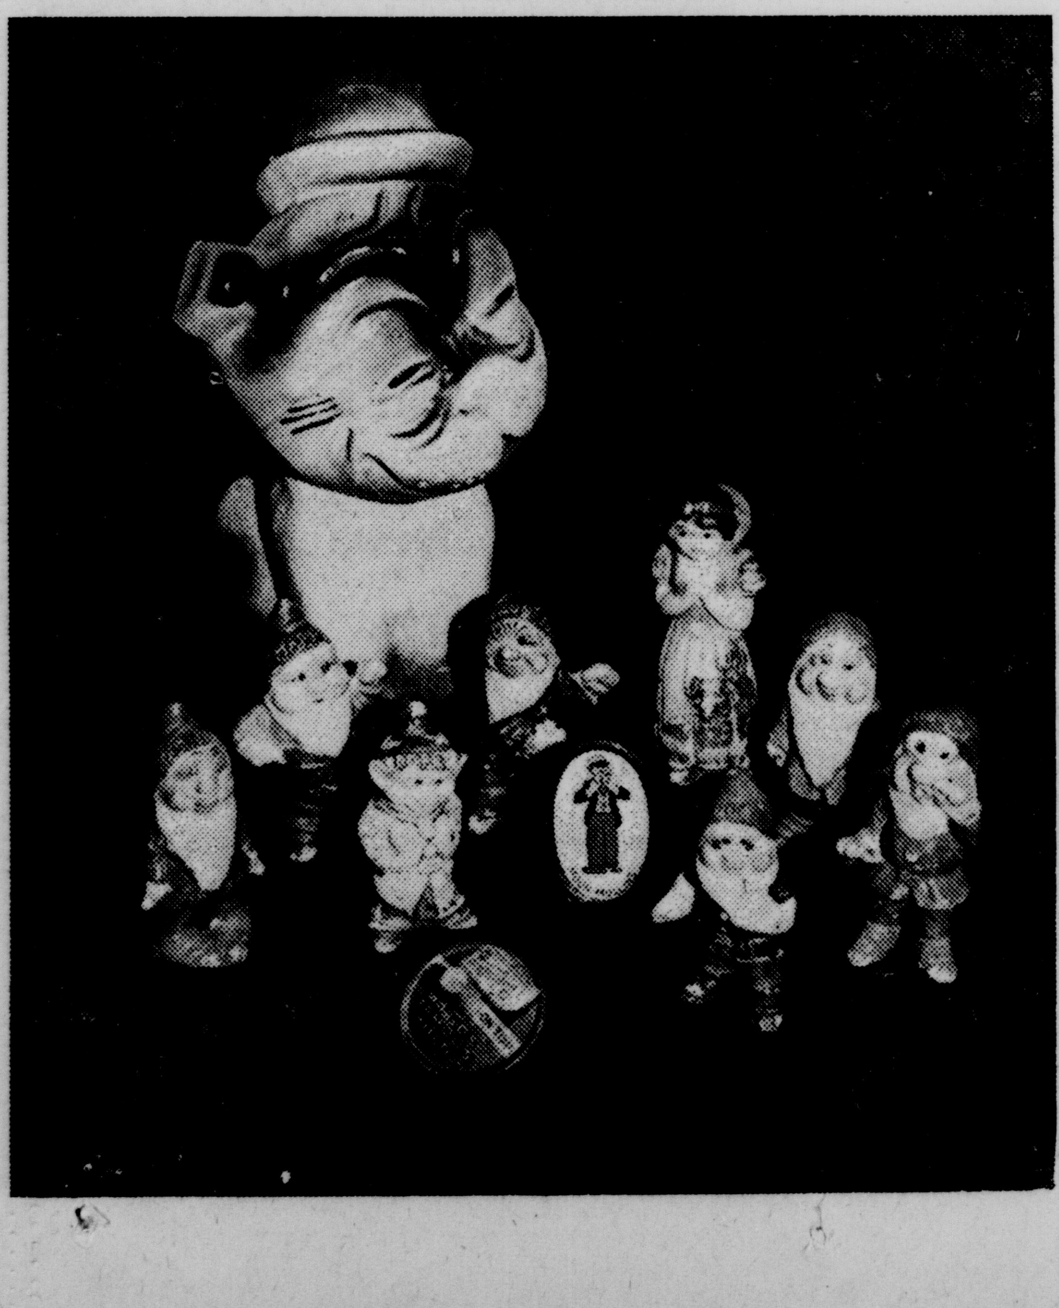
'Remember when' key to collecting



Grace Carolyn

Collecting

My friend from Texas — the one who used to say of every pretty antique we saw "Ah need that" until I told her she didn't, and she changed her tune to "Ah wont that!" — called the other evening. She lives in Minneapolis now.

"What ah wont," she said, "is something to collect that no one else is looking for and that is very reasonable." I told her when I find out what that cheap unknown collectible is, you can bet your sweet aspidistra I'll start looking for it myself.

But really, if someone would like to collect just for the fun of it on the chance that it might become valuable one day, there are a lot of precedents to follow. I think the key word is "nostalgia." That's the most overworked word around and you know what it means. Nostalgia means the good old days colored by a faulty memory. And everyone's good old days aren't the same, obviously, depending upon the decade of one's birth.

TO ME, NOSTALGIA means the 1920s; to my kids, the 1940s. If only I had saved those little glass candy containers from the dime store, in the shapes of telephones, Santas and trains. Why didn't someone keep my Betty Boop doll and my Mr. Planter peanut container? Even the composition baby dolls and the Shirley Temple. I tried to remember those discarded things and keep my kids' toys, at least the ones which survived.They're in a box marked "to be opened in 50 years."

Here are some samples of everyday things and novelties which have escalated mightily during the past few decades:

The little "Made in Japan" Snow White and Seven Dwarfs shown — they can't be more than 40 years old, because that's how old Snow White is. Imagine — 40 years old! And the Cracker Jack prizes shown, the tin top and the Moon Mullins figure. They are from the 1930s. The carnival chalkware dog is about the same age, and what they're all smirking about is the latest price quotes in the antique guides. In the current issue, a "Sneezy" figure, 4 inches tall, in bisque (identical to the figure on the extreme right) is listed at $22.

OTHER NOVELTIES are listed: Dagwood the Driver wind-up toy by Marx, $250; Betty Boop clear glass figural bottle, $35; Kewpie Christmas card, signed O'Neil, $13; Mickey Mouse Big-Little book (first issue) $50; Buster Brown mechanical valentine, $20. (The Big-Little book price is from Ashton's Catalog, 902 Progress St., Middletown, Ind. 47356.)

The carnival chalk figures are not expensive. I purchased the one shown for $3 recently. Cracker Jack, in the days when real metal toys were packed in the boxes, issued a series of a dozen comic character standups such as Moon Mullins and Orphan Annie. I purchased it and the tin top for 50 cents each not long ago, but I think they're worth quite a bit more. Paw through boxes of junk at garage sales.

And keep your eyes open for semi-old dolls. They don't have to be old German bisque to be collectible. Many of the character dolls of our childhoods are desirable. Just price a Shirley Temple doll, for instance.

I THINK IT might be a good idea to save any doll which survives your children's play. I had saved two of the original "Barbies" which Dana discarded when she discovered real live Kens. But the teething poodle in the house took care of those. Right now might be a good time to buy a few character or special action dolls to put away for the children who may turn into collectors some day. Shirley Temples were revived a couple of years ago, and some of these drink-wet, bubble, burp dolls probably are going to be very "limited editions" with a low survival rate.

A large representative collection of almost anything is interesting. I read about one man who looks for out of date dog tags. Not from the army — but from dogs. One of my readers collects old plastic or preplastic powder compacts. Remember when we always carried a refillable compact in our purses? That's the password of nostalgia — "remember when?" Just think about what you remember — and start looking for it.

The doctor says

Coffee, smoking can affect blood pressure

I would like your advice on a matter that concerns me very much. How long can a person go with only four to five hours of sleep a night and do hard physical labor? A friend of mine who is 59, very nervous, and has high blood pressure, will not take medication for it. He works 10 to 11 hours a day, six days a week. He does very heavy lifting. He drinks several beers when he gets home, and then lives on a diet of mostly starch.

He goes to bed around 7 p.m. and then is up and down all night smoking. He smokes around two cartons a week. At 3:30 p.m., he is up with the coffee pot on, and off to work around 5 a.m.

No matter what I say, he will not listen. He won't see a doctor so I thought maybe you could give us an answer in the paper. I read it every day, and maybe a word from you would help this man.

He does need help. Ignoring the sleep hours for the moment, if he is a heavy smoker and has high blood pressure, he is greatly increasing the risk of having a heart attack or a stroke.

He should stop cigarettes entirely. Also, he should stop coffee. A person who is nervous and has high blood pressure is often treated with medicines that have a tranquilizing effect. Coffee has the opposite effect. I think people who have high blood pressure should eliminate coffee, tea, colas and chocolate.

It's very important to control blood pressure to help prevent heart attacks and strokes. If your friend's change in lifestyle doesn't result in lowered blood pressure, he should have medicine. All of this means he needs to be under a doctor's care.

He may be getting more rest than you think. If he goes to bed at 7 p.m. and gets up at 3 a.m., that is eight hours. The fact that he is up and down may decrease his rest, but just resting for the eight hours does some good even if a person is not sleeping.

Whether he is eating a proper diet or not depends upon what else he eats besides starches, and whether or not he is overweight. If he is overweight, he needs to lose weight in the interest of helping to lower his blood pressure.

Please tell me if the medication, diethylstilbesterol, is a cancer deterrent.

That depends. It is a synthetic female hormone known as DES or simply as stilbesterol. It can be used as an anticancer chemotherapy, as in the treatment of cancer of the prostate. On the other hand, its use in women to prevent a miscarriage may rarely cause a cancer in the female offspring of the mother. And, there are the questions about female hormones as a factor in cancer of the lining of the uterus. This is a good example where medicine has different effects in different people, which makes it hard for people to understand why their doctor is using that medicine.

Poultry franks becoming popular

New Products Department: If you like the standard types of frankfurters, think of trying the new franks made with poultry in place of beef or pork. At our house we prefer the flavor of the new hot dogs to all others. They contain about a third less fat than the federal standard set for franks, and they also plump up nicely when boiled. Our only reluctance about serving them often is the presence of sodium nitrite in their ingredints. When will food processors learn that shoppers are becoming more and more savvy, and that we will buy such reasonably priced items in greater numbers only when questionable additives are dropped from their contents?

Dear Roberta: Last year for Christmas my parents gave our young daughters towel sets — each in a different color and decorated with their own monograms. Both girls have loved them, and so we took this idea and expanded on it by giving each a comb, brush and toothbrush in the same color as her towels. Besides putting a stop to squabbles over ownership of toilet items, we've noticed that they take good care of those very personal possessions. — Peg Reynolds.

Dear Roberta: I laughted through tears when I read the letter from the woman whose children lose mittens all the time. Wait 'till they're bigger! Mine developed a worse habit, leaving their jackets at school, on playing fields, at the library etc. What's a mother to do when a son comes home at night coat-less, and the next day is supposed to be chilly? Yup, go out to the car with him and retrace his path home. Like that reader, I've now taken to putting names on the outside of clothing. I applique their first names in letters as large as football numbers on jerseys on the backs of those jackets. — Mary Wyche.

The doctor says

Coffee, smoking can affect blood pressure

I would like your advice on a matter that concerns me very much. How long can a person go with only four to five hours of sleep a night and do hard physical labor? A friend of mine who is 59, very nervous, and has high blood pressure, will not take medication for it. He works 10 to 11 hours a day, six days a week. He does very heavy lifting. He drinks several beers when he gets home, and then lives on a diet of mostly starch.

He goes to bed around 7 p.m. and then is up and down all night smoking. He smokes around two cartons a week. At 3:30 p.m., he is up with the coffee pot on, and off to work around 5 a.m.

No matter what I say, he will not listen. He won't see a doctor so I thought maybe you could give us an answer in the paper. I read it every day, and maybe a word from you would help this man.

He does need help. Ignoring the sleep hours for the moment, if he is a heavy smoker and has high blood pressure, he is greatly increasing the risk of having a heart attack or a stroke.

He should stop cigarettes entirely. Also, he should stop coffee. A person who is nervous and has high blood pressure is often treated with medicines that have a tranquilizing effect. Coffee has the opposite effect. I think people who have high blood pressure should eliminate coffee, tea, colas and chocolate.

It's very important to control blood pressure to help prevent heart attacks and strokes. If your friend's change in lifestyle doesn't result in lowered blood pressure, he should have medicine. All of this means he needs to be under a doctor's care.

He may be getting more rest than you think. If he goes to bed at 7 p.m. and gets up at 3 a.m., that is eight hours. The fact that he is up and down may decrease his rest, but just resting for the eight hours does some good even if a person is not sleeping.

Whether he is eating a proper diet or not depends upon what else he eats besides starches, and whether or not he is overweight. If he is overweight, he needs to lose weight in the interest of helping to lower his blood pressure.

Please tell me if the medication, diethylstilbesterol, is a cancer deterrent.

That depends. It is a synthetic female hormone known as DES or simply as stilbesterol. It can be used as an anticancer chemotherapy, as in the treatment of cancer of the prostate. On the other hand, its use in women to prevent a miscarriage may rarely cause a cancer in the female offspring of the mother. And, there are the questions about female hormones as a factor in cancer of the lining of the uterus. This is a good example where medicine has different effects in different people, which makes it hard for people to understand why their doctor is using that medicine.

New Products Department: If you like the standard types of frankfurters, think of trying the new franks made with poultry in place of beef or pork. At our house we prefer the flavor of the new hot dogs to all others. They contain about a third less fat than the federal standard set for franks, and they also plump up nicely when boiled. Our only reluctance about serving them often is the presence of sodium nitrite in their ingredints. When will food processors learn that shoppers are becoming more and more savvy, and that we will buy such reasonably priced items in greater numbers only when questionable additives are dropped from their contents?

Dear Roberta: Last year for Christmas my parents gave our young daughters towel sets — each in a different color and decorated with their own monograms. Both girls have loved them, and so we took this idea and expanded on it by giving each a comb, brush and toothbrush in the same color as her towels. Besides putting a stop to squabbles over ownership of toilet items, we've noticed that they take good care of those very personal possessions. — Peg Reynolds.

Dear Roberta: I laughted through tears when I read the letter from the woman whose children lose mittens all the time. Wait 'till they're bigger! Mine developed a worse habit, leaving their jackets at school, on playing fields, at the library etc. What's a mother to do when a son comes home at night coat-less, and the next day is supposed to be chilly? Yup, go out to the car with him and retrace his path home. Like that reader, I've now taken to putting names on the outside of clothing. I applique their first names in letters as large as football numbers on jerseys on the backs of those jackets. — Mary Wyche.

Mrs. Mathews welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Hts., Ill. 60006.

Percy wants liquid protein off counters

In the wake of 27 reported deaths possibly linked to the pre-digested liquid protein diet, U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill. urged the Food and Drug Administration to reclassify the substance as a prescription drug, not to be available over the counter.

Current laws now classify the liquid protein as a special dietary supplement and as a result, the substance must be regulated as any food. As a prescription drug, liquid protein must be proven safe and effective before made available to consumers. Because of its link to death, liquid protein as a prescription drug could be removed from the market as a possible health hazard.

Percy, in a letter to FDA commissioner Dr. Donald Kennedy, had asked that liquid protein be banned and removed from the shelves. Due to the present classification, the FDA says they cannot ban liquid protein from sale.

"If it's shown beyond a shadow of a doubt that the current laws prevent banning the predigested liquid protein, Percy will change his legislation," one of Percy's aides in Washington said. The FDA has asked manufacturers of the liquid protein to voluntarily put warning labels on the bottles; one manufacturer already has refused to follow the recommendation.

At the present time, both the FDA and Percy's office continue to study the issue. "Everything is still up in the air," Percy's aide said.

Choose toys carefully

Selecting a safe toy for the kids is no easy task this year because there are more than 150,000 toys now on the market. But if you're interested in suggestions on what to look for when buying toys, the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) has a free check sheet for consumers.

"Safety Toy Tips" cautions shoppers to look for sharp points and edges, rigid wires or small parts a child could remove. A younger child, intrigued by removable pieces, could possibly swallow or inhale the parts, the CPSC says.

In addition, age is a factor in toy selection. CPSC recommends following the age restrictions listed on individual toys. Although an electrically powered toy may be safe for an older child, a younger child, who does not understand the toy's mechanism could be burned. For children of all ages, CPSC says to avoid tops with loud noises that can damage hearing.

FOR A FREE copy of "Safe Toy Tips," send a postcard to Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Defense schools vary

If you're considering taking up the art of self-defense, choosing a reputable school becomes an art in itself. Before selecting a school, decide which type of martial art is for you.

There are different categories of the martial arts, says "Caveat Emptor," a consumer magazine published by the Consumer Education Research Group, a non-profit group. Grappling arts, such as Jujitsu, Judo and Aikido, concentrate on overcoming an opponent through speed, leverage, skill and strength.

Jujitsu is better for street self-defense because students learn basic joint-bending, striking and choking techniques. Aikido, which concentrates more on developing inner strength or centering is recommended for a small person. "It teaches practical self-defense techniques as well as centering . . ." says Caveat Emptor. Karate and Kung Fu the striking and kicking arts, are best for those who want to learn quick self-defense techniques.

When you've decided which of the martial arts is for you, look for a good instructor. When you've found a good instructor, you've found your best deal," says Caveat Emptor. A good teacher should have at least eight years experience.

If you are uncertain where to look, YMCA courses, free universities and college extension services usually offer qualified teachers, the publication says. Chain schools, although easy to locate, are most often a "rip-off" the magazine cautions.

Plan to spend six months training if self-defense is your target. In practice time, that means about 12 hours a week.

Although experience may be the best teacher, observation is definitely valuable when selecting a school. Once you've found a class and watched the student/teacher interaction, talk to the instructor. Caveat Emptor suggests asking these questions:

What style do you teach? Where did you study? What federation do you belong to?

For more information on the martial arts, you may send 25 cents or two 13-cent postage stamps to Caveat Emptor, 620 Freeman St., Orange N.J. 07050. You will receive the November issue of Caveat Emptor.

'Little fires' brighten suburbs at Christmas

The old Mexican custom of "little fires" again will light driveways and sidewalks of suburban homes this Christmas Eve. Little fires is the translation of luminaria, which are utility candles set in sand in brown paper bags.

Traditionally, the luminaria are set from 5 to 10 feet apart to make a row of twinkling lights. They are lit from 6 to 10 p.m.

All area residents are encouraged to take part in the Christmas Eve luminaria lighting, kits for which are being sold by three area groups.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Center of Infant Welfare will sell kits from 10 a.m. to 2 pm.. Saturday and Sunday in the southwest corner of Arlington Market. Center members ask that residents bring their own container for sand.

Palatine Center of Infant Welfare will be selling kits from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Dec. 10 and 11 at Nelson's Bo-Kay Shoppe, 16 S. Bothwell, Palatine.

Mount Prospect Juniors will be selling kits from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday and Dec. 10 at Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. See Gwun Ave., Mount Prospect. Girl and Boy Scouts are assisting the Juniors with the sale. Those wishing to purchase in large quantities for an entire neighborhood are asked to place orders in advance by calling Pat Huska, 439-9048, or Donna Casper, 259-2731.

All groups are selling the kits of five luminaria for $1.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Schrieber

Diane Marie Gullo - Thomas J. Schrieber

Two area families were united Oct. 29 when Diane Marie Gullo and Thomas Joseph Schrieber were married in a double-ring ceremony in St. Edna's Church, Arlington Heights. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gullo, Arlington Heights, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schrieber, Mount Prospect.

Diane wore a lace trimmed white knit dress and chapel-length veil also trimmed in lace. She carried white orchids, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Mary Radford, Villa Park, was maid of honor in a dusty rose colored knit dress with matching chiffon cape. She carried a nosegay of pink carnations, white daisies and baby's breath. Identically attired were bridesmaids Gretchen Gullo, Palatine, sister-in-law of the bride; Debbie Schultz, Barrington; Janis Neugebauer, Palatine; Susan McCarthy, Arlington Heights; Sharon Sydell, Mount Prospect; and Kathy Farrell, Lombard. The flower girl, Amy Comerford, 6, of Arlington Heights, wore a beige lace dress trimmed in burgundy.

JERRY SCHRIEBER was his brother's best man. Ushers included Thomas Kidd and Mark Webb, both of Mount Prospect; the bride's brothers, Gary and Ross, both of Palatine; Casey Rush, Prospect Heights; and Rich Brower, San Diego, Calif.

After a reception at the Aqua Bella Hall, Chicago, the newlyweds left for a week's honeymoon on the West Coast. They are making their home in Arlington Heights.

Diane, a graduate of Hersey High School, attended Illinois State University, and is employed by C. F. Industries, Long Grove. Tom, a graduate of Prospect High and a '76 graduate of Illinois State, is a suburban police officer.

Check your home for fire safety

NEW YORK — Fire is like the weather. Many people talk about it, but precariously few do anything about it, says Glen E. Jorgensen, whose company is a major source of home improvement financing.

Sixty-two hundred persons died in fires last year, and property losses totaled more than $3.5-billion, said Jorgensen, president of CIT Financial Services. The company's current customer publication offers these fire prevention tips:

Make certain everyone in your house, including babysitters, knows the location of the nearest fire alarm box. Keep the phone numbers of the fire and police departments beside the telephone.

PLAN ESCAPE routes from all parts of the house or apartment. Tell everyone how to evacuate the building in case of fire.

Install at least two workable home fire extinguishers within easy reach. Check them monthly to see they are fully charged.

Screen fireplaces.

Store refuse in containers made from non-flammable material.

Store flammable liquids in safety cans.

AVOID MULTIPLE connections in wall outlets.

Keep outside venting ducts clean.

Keep your basement, garage and other such areas free of combustible materials.

Keep matches out of the reach of children.

Have your heating plant and chimneys cleaned and serviced annually.

CHECK FOR AND replace worn out or frayed electrical wiring.

Use fire-retardant curtains and bedding.

Consider installing a reliable fire or smoke detector system.

Use fuses of the proper amperage for the circuits they protect.

Clear away weeds, brush and other debris around the house.

Keep a box of sand stored in a handy place to fight oil or gas fires.

‘Little fires’ brighten suburbs at Christmas

The old Mexican custom of "little fires" again will light driveways and sidewalks of suburban homes this Christmas Eve. Little fires is the translation of luminaria, which are utility candles set in sand in brown paper bags.

Traditionally, the luminaria are set from 5 to 10 feet apart to make a row of twinkling lights. They are lit from 6 to 10 p.m.

All area residents are encouraged to take part in the Christmas Eve luminaria lighting, kits for which are being sold by three area groups.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Center of Infant Welfare will sell kits from 10 a.m. to 2 pm.. Saturday and Sunday in the southwest corner of Arlington Market. Center members ask that residents bring their own container for sand.

Palatine Center of Infant Welfare will be selling kits from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Dec. 10 and 11 at Nelson's Bo-Kay Shoppe, 16 S. Bothwell, Palatine.

Mount Prospect Juniors will be selling kits from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday and Dec. 10 at Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. See Gwun Ave., Mount Prospect. Girl and Boy Scouts are assisting the Juniors with the sale. Those wishing to purchase in large quantities for an entire neighborhood are asked to place orders in advance by calling Pat Huska, 439-9048, or Donna Casper, 259-2731.

All groups are selling the kits of five luminaria for $1.

Debra Arnold - Robert Weber

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mathew Weber.

Two Arlington Heights families were united when Debra Mae Arnold became the bride of Robert Mathew Weber Nov. 5 in Courtstreet United Methodist Church, Rockford. Dinner and dancing for 200 guests at the Ramada Inn, Rockford, followed the ceremony.

Debra is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell H. Arnold, and Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Weber.

The bride wore an ivory sata peau gown with appliques of imported French embroidered Alencon lace encrusted with pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses, baby's breath, stephanotis, ivy and white Elegance carnations.

Linda Feeley, Des Moines, Iowa, was matron of honor in a forest green knit gown and matching fitted coat with hood trimmed in green marabou. She carried yellow roses, baby's breath and white Elegance carnations. Identically attired were the bridesmaids, Kathy Markel, Armada, Mich., Jo Nancy Anderson, Northbrook, and Lynn Sommer, Mount Prospect.

GEORGE VANDON, Lombard, was best man and ushers were the groom's cousins, Greg Dattilo, Golden Valley, Minn., and Bill Schaefer, Elgin, and Al Boslen, Bedford, Ind.

Debra, a graduate of John Hersey High School, received a bachelor's degree from Elmhurst College and a master's degree from Roosevelt University. She is a second grade teacher in Grayslake School District. Robert, also a Hersey graduate, received a degree in engineering from Evansville University, Evansville, Ind., and now works for Underwriters Laboratories, Northbrook.

The coulpe lives in Arlington Heights.

Patricia McMorrow-Ronald Jacoby

A pair of 1972 high school graduates, who dated occasionally when they were students at Prospect High, became resident assistants in the same residence hall at Western Illinois University, resumed their romance as seniors, graduated in 1976 and were married in 1977.

The wedding uniting Patricia Anne McMorrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. McMorrow, Mount Prospect, and Ronald Paul Jacoby took place at 3 p.m. Nov. 5 at St. Raymond Catholic Church, Mount Prospect. Ronald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald B. Jacoby, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., formerly of Arlington Heights.

For the double-ring ceremony, Patricia wore a white satin gown embellished with Alencon lace and seed pearls. Her chapel length veil fell from a headpiece of lace and pearls. Apricot roses, stephanotis and baby's breath were combined in her bouquet.

PAT HORNE OF Wheaton served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Lynne; Sherri Fullen, Park Ridge; and Sheila O'Brien, Chicago. They were attired in apricot knit gowns with short jackets in dark brown velvet. They each carried a bouquet of apricot roses; gold, orange and rust mums; and baby's breath.

John Jacoby served his brother as best man. Another brother of the groom, Chuck, of Monterey, Calif., was a groomsman, as were Keith McMorrow, brother of the bride, and Terry Clarke, Harvard, Ill.

A dinner dance at Indian Lakes Country Club for 175 guests followed the ceremony.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Jacoby now reside in Palatine. Patricia holds a degree in elementary education but presently is not teaching. Ronald is a science teacher in the Belvidere Community School District.

Teens suffer tooth decay, nutritionist says

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tooth decay is particularly severe among teenagers, says nutritionist Marci Guiney.

Miss Guiney, executive director of the Dairy Council of Metropolitan New York, blames teen-agers' haphazard eating habits and snacks, among other things. She said snacks are a big offender because they often consist of carbonated beverages, candy, pastries, cookies and other foods made with sugar.

"Mouth bacteria use the sugar in these products to form acid, which dissolves tooth enamel," she said.

"Sugar is also used by some bacteria to form a thin, colorless film called plaque. Once plaque is formed, it sets up a medium for more bacterial growth. These bacteria also act upon sugar to produce the acids which cause tooth decay."

A pair of 1972 high school graduates, who dated occasionally when they were students at Prospect High, became resident assistants in the same residence hall at Western Illinois University, resumed their romance as seniors, graduated in 1976 and were married in 1977.

The wedding uniting Patricia Anne McMorrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. McMorrow, Mount Prospect, and Ronald Paul Jacoby took place at 3 p.m. Nov. 5 at St. Raymond Catholic Church, Mount Prospect. Ronald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald B. Jacoby, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., formerly of Arlington Heights.

For the double-ring ceremony, Patricia wore a white satin gown embellished with Alencon lace and seed pearls. Her chapel length veil fell from a headpiece of lace and pearls. Apricot roses, stephanotis and baby's breath were combined in her bouquet.

PAT HORNE OF Wheaton served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Lynne; Sherri Fullen, Park Ridge; and Sheila O'Brien, Chicago. They were attired in apricot knit gowns with short jackets in dark brown velvet. They each carried a bouquet of apricot roses; gold, orange and rust mums: and baby's breath.

John Jacoby served his brother as best man. Another brother of the groom, Chuck, of Monterey, Calif., was a groomsman, as were Keith McMorrow, brother of the bride, and Terry Clarke, Harvard, Ill.

A dinner dance at Indian Lakes Country Club for 175 guests followed the ceremony.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Jacoby now reside in Palatine. Patricia holds a degree in elementary education but presently is not teaching. Ronald is a science teacher in the Belvidere Community School District.

Teens suffer tooth decay, nutritionist says

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tooth decay is particularly severe among teenagers, says nutritionist Marci Guiney.

Miss Guiney, executive director of the Dairy Council of Metropolitan New York, blames teen-agers' haphazard eating habits and snacks, among other things. She said snacks are a big offender because they often consist of carbonated beverages, candy, pastries, cookies and other foods made with sugar.

"Mouth bacteria use the sugar in these products to form acid, which dissolves tooth enamel," she said.

"Sugar is also used by some bacteria to form a thin, colorless film called plaque. Once plaque is formed, it sets up a medium for more bacterial growth. These bacteria also act upon sugar to produce the acids which cause tooth decay."

Holiday drinking may be deadly

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Some people frolicking at holiday parties may be role-players like that of the opera clown, Pagliacci, who laughs while his heart is breaking.

If the party-goers look happy but are depressed, and if their depression is physiological, it is potentially fatal, says Prof. George Spratto of Purdue University's School of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences.

"I can't stress strongly enough that alcohol is a depressant, that a person can die from an alcohol overdose even if there are no drugs or medication involved," Spratto said.

He said persons who take drugs containing depressants risk potentially lethal interaction if they drink alcohol while the body is reacting to the drugs.

"MOST PEOPLE can't believe alcohol is a depressant because they know people who take a couple of drinks and suddenly become very active, very friendly . . . or tell stories they normally wouldn't tell."

Spratto said this reaction occurs because alcohol has removed their inhibitions by depressing certain areas of the brain.

He said some kinds of medication should never be taken by people intending to drink alcohol.

For example someone with a bad cold might fortify himself with a cough remedy to better enjoy an evening of partying. If the cough medicine contains codeine, a drug that has some depressant effects, and an antihistamine, which also has depressant effects, that one drink too many for the cold sufferer might be only his second or third, the professor said.

HE SAID PERSONS who say, "I can just drink enough until I pass out" can drink enough in a short time to die from an alcohol overdose.

Even if they don't die from an alcohol overdose, per se, Spratto said, many who pass out, especially if they are alone at the time, may choke to death if they have spasms of vomiting while unconscious.

Contrary to popular opinions, there is nothing that will speed a drunk to sobriety, Spratto said.

"Everybody knows about the old 'remedies' such as walking the person around the block or throwing him into a shower or pouring a lot of coffee into him. That's not going to get rid of the alcohol any faster," Spratto said.

"WHAT YOU HAVE on your hands then is a wide-awake drunk, which really might not be a bad idea. You don't want that person lying down some place and possibly vomiting. There is a chance he can choke on the vomit, esptcially if his body is depressed. Walking and the like has a first-aid effect in that if the drunk does vomit, he is not as likely to choke."

The speed with which a person becomes drunk depends on several factors, including body weight, he said.

". . . alcohol is distributed throughout the entire body. If a 250-pound man and his 150-pound companion are matching each other drink for drink, it stands to reason the 150-pounder will start feeling it first, provided both have the same general sensitivity to alcohol."

Spratto said the sensitivity factor is important. While alcohol intoxication occurs when the amount taken in is greater than the amount the body breaks down and gets rid of, different individuals might have special sensitivities to alcohol that would in effect result in an alcohol "overload" more quickly.

"YOU MUST KNOW yourself, know your limits," he said. "I'm a firm believer that anyone who has ever had a drink knows how much he can take."

As for hangovers, he said:

"People have been studying hangovers for years . . . centuries, probably . . . and everyone seems to have his own home remedy for coping with a hangover.

"You almost have to treat it symptomatically. If you have a headache, take aspirin; if you're nauseated, take whatever seems appropriate. Certainly, to take more alcohol is not the way to approach it. All that added alcohol is doing is depressing the system even more."

But the best hangover cure, he said, is prevention: "Simply avoid drinking more than you can handle."

Lisa M. Folina - Patrick Raymond

A couple who met at a party four years ago were married Nov. 6 in a double-ring ceremony in St. Thomas of Villanova Church, Palatine. The bride is the former Lisa Marie Folina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph John Folina, Palatine, and her husband, Patrick Roland Raymond, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Raymond, Barrington.

For the 4 p.m. ceremony, Lisa chose a peau de soie gown with a cathedral train trimmed in lace and a two-tiered veil with beaded mantilla cap. She carried stephanotis, Abbey roses, baby's breath and orchids.

Carol Springsteen, Old Tappan, N.J., was maid of honor in an apricot colored dress with a floral brown and apricot cape. She carried Abbey roses and baby's breath and wore Abbey garnets with baby's breath in her hair. Wearing apricot colored dresses with apricot floral capes were the bridesmaids, the couple's sisters, Lynn and Loren Folina and Cheryl Raymond.

The groom's sister, Michelle, 9, was flower girl and she wore a floral apricot dress with attached cape and carried a basket of Abbey roses and baby's breath. She wore an Abbey garnet wreath in her hair.

MICHAEL RAYMOND was his brother's best man. Ushers were the groom's other brothers, Paul and James, and his cousin, Roger Pelletier, Chicago. Patrick's 6-year-old twin brothers, Jason and Brian, were ring bearers.

A reception for 120 guests was at Allgauer's Fireside, Northbrook, after which the couple left for a two-week Hawaiian honeymoon. They are living in Schaumburg.

Lisa, a 1975 graduate of Palatine High School, attends Harper College and will graduate in '78. She works for Hoffman Enterprises, Barrington. Patrick, a 1974 graduate of Fremd High School, attended Harper and now works for the Chicago Board of Trade.

Exercise is not always good for your health.

In addition to tennis elbow and jogger's heel, there is an ailment called swimmer's knee.

Ancient hunter bagged a big one: reports

by DAVID LAWSKY

SEQUIM, Wash. (UPI) The remains of a mastodon, which lived between 11,000 and 14,000 years ago, has been found in a peat bog with a spearhead imbedded in its ribs.

Archeologists say that although 10-foot-high, six-ton mastodons roamed the world for some 10 to 15 million years, there are fewer than a half-dozen mastodon skeletons as complete as the one found in Sequim and no others that obviously were killed by hunters.

"There's never been a mastodon found before that showed direct evidence of hunting and we've always wondered about it," Richard Daugherty, an archeologist from Washington State University said Tuesday. "This is particularly good evidence in that the projectile point of bone is stuck right in the rib."

THE MASTODON was found by Emanuel Manis on Aug. 16 as he was backhoeing his bog while building a pond. Manis stopped the backhoe as soon as he came across the animal's tusks and his wife telephoned for help.

Carl Gustofson, a zoologist from Washington State University who was working at the Lake Ozette archeological dig 50 miles away, hurried to the scene, as did Daughtery. Digging began Aug. 19.

"I'm still in shock," said Gustofson, who specializes in animals like the mastodon. "This is very exciting."

The scientists have completed work on dirt brought up by the backhoe and are going in next for the skull. They found some bones of other animals in the ditch, including a bison.

"WHAT APPARENTLY happened is that there was a lake here and the mastodon got stuck in the mud and was found by early hunters," said Daugherty.

The creature found on Manis' land lived as glaciers were retreating at the end of the most recent Ice Age, the Pleistocene Epoch.

It is hoped carbon dating or other techniques can establish the mastodon's age within a few hundred years.

Gustofson, who coincidentally was writing a paper on the subject, said mastodons disppeared either because of a changing climate or because hunters killed off so many of them they were unable to reproduce.

Holiday drinking may be deadly

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Some people frolicking at holiday parties may be role-players like that of the opera clown, Pagliacci, who laughs while his heart is breaking.

If the party-goers look happy but are depressed, and if their depression is physiological, it is potentially fatal, says Prof. George Spratto of Purdue University's School of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences.

"I can't stress strongly enough that alcohol is a depressant, that a person can die from an alcohol overdose even if there are no drugs or medication involved," Spratto said.

He said persons who take drugs containing depressants risk potentially lethal interaction if they drink alcohol while the body is reacting to the drugs.

SMILES REFLECT satisfaction with a recent donation by Women's American ORT to help build the first major ORT training school in the U.S., Bramson Center in New York City. Lincolnwood Hyatt House gave a benefit luncheon for ORT's Northern Illinois Region women, at which Vivian Drexler, Des Plaines, head of the executive committee, and Harlene Levin, Des Plaines, president, greeted Geri Prince, right, chairwoman of Bramson Center.

"MOST PEOPLE can't believe alcohol is a depressant because they know people who take a couple of drinks and suddenly become very active, very friendly . . . or tell stories they normally wouldn't tell."

Spratto said this reaction occurs because alcohol has removed their inhibitions by depressing certain areas of the brain.

He said some kinds of medication should never be taken by people intending to drink alcohol.

For example someone with a bad cold might fortify himself with a cough remedy to better enjoy an evening of partying. If the cough medicine contains codeine, a drug that has some depressant effects, and an antihistamine, which also has depressant effects, that one drink too many for the cold sufferer might be only his second or third, the professor said.

HE SAID PERSONS who say, "I can just drink enough until I pass out" can drink enough in a short time to die from an alcohol overdose.

Even if they don't die from an alcohol overdose, per se, Spratto said, many who pass out, especially if they are alone at the time, may choke to death if they have spasms of vomiting while unconscious.

Contrary to popular opinions, there is nothing that will speed a drunk to sobriety, Spratto said.

"Everybody knows about the old 'remedies' such as walking the person around the block or throwing him into a shower or pouring a lot of coffee into him. That's not going to get rid of the alcohol any faster," Spratto said.

"WHAT YOU HAVE on your hands then is a wide-awake drunk, which really might not be a bad idea. You don't want that person lying down some place and possibly vomiting. There is a chance he can choke on the vomit, esptcially if his body is depressed. Walking and the like has a first-aid effect in that if the drunk does vomit, he is not as likely to choke."

The speed with which a person becomes drunk depends on several factors, including body weight, he said.

". . . alcohol is distributed throughout the entire body. If a 250-pound man and his 150-pound companion are matching each other drink for drink, it stands to reason the 150-pounder will start feeling it first, provided both have the same general sensitivity to alcohol."

Spratto said the sensitivity factor is important. While alcohol intoxication occurs when the amount taken in is greater than the amount the body breaks down and gets rid of, different individuals might have special sensitivities to alcohol that would in effect result in an alcohol "overload" more quickly.

"YOU MUST KNOW yourself, know your limits," he said. "I'm a firm believer that anyone who has ever had a drink knows how much he can take."

As for hangovers, he said:

"People have been studying hangovers for years . . . centuries, probably . . . and everyone seems to have his own home remedy for coping with a hangover.

"You almost have to treat it symptomatically. If you have a headache, take aspirin; if you're nauseated, take whatever seems appropriate. Certainly, to take more alcohol is not the way to approach it. All that added alcohol is doing is depressing the system even more."

But the best hangover cure, he said, is prevention: "Simply avoid drinking more than you can handle."

Nationwide TV viewership dips: poll

A. C. Nielsen's nationwide survey of HUTs (homes using television) confirms what this columnist reported almost two months ago — people seem to be watching less television than at similar times in past years.

HUT levels are down for prime time, daytime and Saturday mornings based on Nielsen surveys measuring ratings of television programs and how long television sets are being left on.

The reasons for the apparent slack in nationwide viewership are subject to debate. But one thing is for certain: national book sales and periodical subscriptions are way up over last year, indicating that people are spending more leisure time reading and less time watching the tube.

AS EXPECTED, the television industry is not ready to accept Nielsen's figures at face value and is doing its own studies. Some network officials have speculated that the drop in viewership statistics could be attributed to a quirk in Nielsen's method or computer programming as was the case in 1975 when there were similar dips in viewership.

But, Nielsen is sticking by its method and information. The company insists prime time has not been stable since March, contributing to the current 3 to 4 per cent drop, about 300,000 homes, in viewership over last year.

Daytime television has experienced an even greater decline with an average 8 per cent drop in viewership over last. Saturday morning viewership is down an estimated 5 per cent.

AS THE NEW TELEVISION season progresses, both Nielsen and the networks will have a better grasp on the situation. If the future confirms what Nielsen's statistics project the networks are in for big trouble.

Although the Nielsen statistics are bad news for the television industry, they are an encouraging sign that people are no longer content with visual garbage. When there's nothing on television worth watching, they evidently are willing to give their minds and bodies a chance to breathe and grow through more worthwhile activities.

TV NOTES:

Phil Boyer, station manager of WLS-TV, Channel 7, says he still is searching for a replacement for "A.M. Chicago" talk show host Steve Edwards who leaves Dec. 9 when his contract expires.

Edwards assumes similar talk show duties at KNXT-TV in Los Angeles where WMAQ-TV's anchorman, Maury Povich, recently began working. Also, Van Gordon Sauter, former news director for WBBM-TV in Chicago and current CBS program practices and standards head, soon will begin working at KNXT-TV as the station's vice president and general manager.

Current "A.M. Chicago" cohost Sandi Freeman will be joined by guest hosts once Edwards leaves "but that shouldn't be for more than four weeks because I'm sure we'll find the right person by then," Boyer said.

The guest hosts will be entertainers in town or other celebrities and not persons being auditioned for the hosting job, he said.

"We're looking to replace Steve and not necessarily change the format of the show," said Boyer, who admits the show, which has a strong following, may suffer a temporary ratings loss in the transition.

Boyer said he is not certain whether the new "A.M. Chicago" host will assume Edwards' other duties which include hosting the "Friday Night" talk show and serving as critic-at-large on the station's evening news.

- The latest cancellations of the new season are CBS's "Logan's Run," which airs Feb. 13 for the last time, and "The Fitzpatricks," which ends with its Jan. 10 show. NBC also has cancelled "Man From Atlantis." No replacement shows have been announced. A total of 13 new network shows have been cancelled this season.
- Television viewers were obviously curious about the unveiling of new outfits for Channel 7's news anchors and reporters. The station's newscasts Monday night attracted the highest ratings of the whole November sweep period. The 5 p.m. newscast had a 16 rating compared to its average 9 or 10 and the 6 p.m. newscast attracted a 15.6 rating compared to its average 12 or 13.

"ALL-STAR TRIBUTE TO ELIZABETH TAYLOR"

- Mike Leiberman, formerly of the Newsweek Broadcast Service, signs on as QMAQ-TV's weekend sports anchor Dec. 12, replacing Greg Gumble who continues as a station sports reporter.
- Both ABC and NBC plan to launch weekly news magazine next season in answer to CBS' winning "60 Minutes." The NBC project will be an off-shoot of its current monthly "Weekend" report, produced by Reuven Frank.

The ABC news magazine will be produced by Bob Shanks who is responsible for the success of the network's "Good Morning, America" and other entertainment projects. For that reason the news program promises to be more show than tell.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

"All-Star Tribute to Elizabeth Taylor" at 8 p.m. on Channel 2 faeatures words and praises by former hubby Richard Burton and former leading men including Rock Hudson.

"The Court-Martial of George Armstrong Custer" at 8 p.m. on Channel 5 is a dramatic courtroom account of charges leveled against the Little Bighorn hero.

"ABC News Closeup: The Class that Went to War" at 9 p.m. on Channel 7 is a study of Vietnam War veterans today.

Swiss filmmaker's study on loneliness wins praise

by ELEANOR GUREWITSCH

ZURICH, Switzerland— Seventy-five-year-old shoemaker Konrad Steiner shared an apartment with his wife, and in the first floor of the same building, he had his shoe shop. He had a happy life.

But his pleasant, orderly existence was shattered by two events: first, his wife died; then it was announced that the building in which he lived and worked was scheduled for destruction. The city of Zurich offered him comfortable accommodations in a home for the elderly, but the old shoemaker, who had been proudly independent all his life, declined.

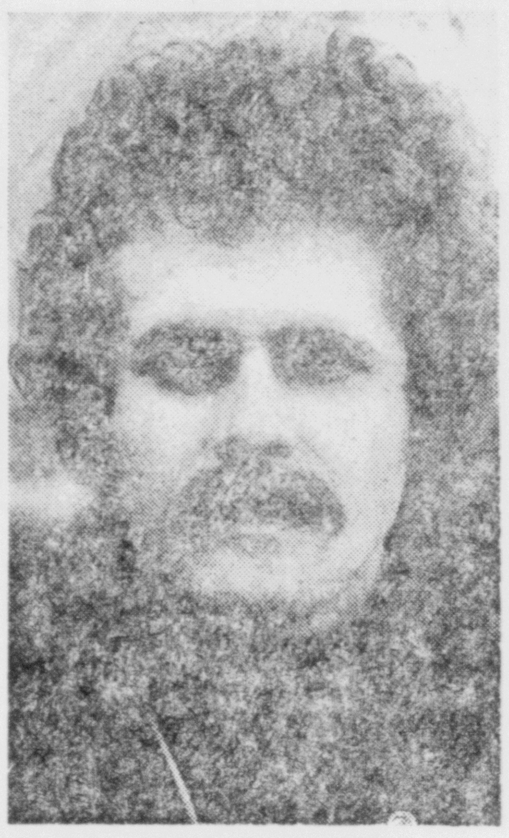
This is the plot of "The Sudden Loneliness of Konrad Steiner," the work of 35-year-old filmmaker Kurt Gloor. The movie, which stars actor Sigrit Steiner, is a big hit with the young people of Zurich, who have been flocking to see it. It also was well received at this year's International Film Festival for Human Rights in Strasbourg, where it won first prize.

"I COULD BECOME an expert on films about the elderly," Gloor says. "I have received many invitations to make films for TV and film companies on this theme. But I don't want to make another film about the elderly right now. I want to continue to make movies about different groups of people that are socially weak.

When Gloor started his own film company in 1969, he chose the inexpensive documentary form as the most appropriate for a new operation. Immediately his films on poor mountain farmers, alcoholics, children and married women attracted attention and prizes. Now "Lonliness," his first commercial film, has attracted even more attention.

Gloor recently returned to Zurich following a three-week visit to New Delhi to attend a film festival. He reports that Indians could not understand "The Sudden Loneliness of Konrad Steiner"; there people are seldom lonely; older people are treated with deference; and, if a shoemaker lost his shop, he would continue to work on the street.

"It was very strange to sit in a film theater with 800 Indians and realize that only a handful really understood my film about Konrad Steiner," Gloor says. "Those who did understand were mostly other foreigners or professional movie experts. For Indians my film was exotic, incomprehensible. The problems we have created for ourselves in our industrialized society are much different than those facing people in India."



Filmmaker Kurt Gloor

GLOOR'S NEXT project is a film for Swiss TV about the hostilities generated when people are compelled to do dull, monontonous, noncreative work over long periods of time. Another film, currently shelved until adequate financing can be drummed up, concerns Swiss child laborers in the 19th century.

Although Gloor has no intention of doing another film about the elderly at this point, in conversation he returns frequently to this theme. He strongly opposes life in homes for the elderly, even in good homes for the elderly. He says it involves a continuous sacrifice of the small, personal pleasures which have made life important for these individuals and requires too much adaptation to the interests of the group.

He says he considers his film about Konrad Steiner a way to encourage older people to fight for their rights. "The plight of old people would look different if only they would and could stand up for themselves. But they have never learned how. I only hope that at least the young people of today, when they grow old, will be better equipped to do so."

Strangely, at the end of "Konrad Steiner," the old shoemaker decides not to fight for his apartment, but with considerable courage packs his bags and heads off happily for Italy.

Lisa M. Folina - Patrick Raymond

A couple who met at a party four years ago were married Nov. 6 in a double-ring ceremony in St. Thomas of Villanova Church, Palatine. The bride is the former Lisa Marie Folina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph John Folina, Palatine, and her husband, Patrick Roland Raymond, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Raymond, Barrington.

For the 4 p.m. ceremony, Lisa chose a peau de soie gown with a cathedral train trimmed in lace and a two-tiered veil with beaded mantilla cap. She carried stephanotis, Abbey roses, baby's breath and orchids.

Carol Springsteen, Old Tappan, N.J., was maid of honor in an apricot colored dress with a floral brown and apricot cape. She carried Abbey roses and baby's breath and wore Abbey garnets with baby's breath in her hair. Wearing apricot colored dresses with apricot floral capes were the bridesmaids, the couple's sisters, Lynn and Loren Folina and Cheryl Raymond.

The groom's sister, Michelle, 9, was flower girl and she wore a floral apricot dress with attached cape and carried a basket of Abbey roses and baby's breath. She wore an Abbey garnet wreath in her hair.

MICHAEL RAYMOND was his brother's best man. Ushers were the groom's other brothers, Paul and James, and his cousin, Roger Pelletier, Chicago. Patrick's 6-year-old twin brothers, Jason and Brian, were ring bearers.

A reception for 120 guests was at Allgauer's Fireside, Northbrook, after which the couple left for a two-week Hawaiian honeymoon. They are living in Schaumburg.

Lisa, a 1975 graduate of Palatine High School, attends Harper College and will graduate in '78. She works for Hoffman Enterprises, Barrington. Patrick, a 1974 graduate of Fremd High School, attended Harper and now works for the Chicago Board of Trade.

Athletes knees get in the swim of bad sprains

Exercise is not always good for your health.

In addition to tennis elbow and jogger's heel, there is an ailment called swimmer's knee.

The Journal of the American Medical Assn. says swimmer's knee is not likely to bother the average swimmer who splashes around the pool occasionally. It is a problem largely for dedicated competitive swimmers who train extensively.

The ailment results from chronic sprain of a ligament or a pulled hamstring from too much hard swimming.

Ancient hunter bagged a big one: reports

by DAVID LAWSKY

SEQUIM, Wash. (UPI) The remains of a mastodon, which lived between 11,000 and 14,000 years ago, has been found in a peat bog with a spearhead imbedded in its ribs.

Archeologists say that although 10-foot-high, six-ton mastodons roamed the world for some 10 to 15 million years, there are fewer than a half-dozen mastodon skeletons as complete as the one found in Sequim and no others that obviously were killed by hunters.

"There's never been a mastodon found before that showed direct evidence of hunting and we've always wondered about it," Richard Daugherty, an archeologist from Washington State University said Tuesday. "This is particularly good evidence in that the projectile point of bone is stuck right in the rib."

THE MASTODON was found by Emanuel Manis on Aug. 16 as he was backhoeing his bog while building a pond. Manis stopped the backhoe as soon as he came across the animal's tusks and his wife telephoned for help.

Carl Gustofson, a zoologist from Washington State University who was working at the Lake Ozette archeological dig 50 miles away, hurried to the scene, as did Daughtery. Digging began Aug. 19.

"I'm still in shock," said Gustofson, who specializes in animals like the mastodon. "This is very exciting."

The scientists have completed work on dirt brought up by the backhoe and are going in next for the skull. They found some bones of other animals in the ditch, including a bison.

"WHAT APPARENTLY happened is that there was a lake here and the mastodon got stuck in the mud and was found by early hunters," said Daugherty.

The creature found on Manis' land lived as glaciers were retreating at the end of the most recent Ice Age, the Pleistocene Epoch.

It is hoped carbon dating or other techniques can establish the mastodon's age within a few hundred years.

Gustofson, who coincidentally was writing a paper on the subject, said mastodons disppeared either because of a changing climate or because hunters killed off so many of them they were unable to reproduce.

Cinch hand for Lochridge

The game was matchpoint duplicate. The late Charles Lochridge, one of the great dummy players, whose bidding was on the sensational side elected to open five notrump and wound up at six after getting a chance to show his spades.

West opened the four of spades. Charley won, played his ace of clubs, stopped for a second to note that West had discarded the deuce of hearts and continued by leading his deuce of clubs to dummy's 10. East played low to keep Charley from taking four club tricks.

Charley might have tried a red-suit finesse at this point, but he had a better idea. He simply ran off the last five spades to come down to a five-card ending. East came down to two clubs, a heart and two diamonds, West to three hearts and two diamonds.

Now Charley led his queen of clubs. West let another heart go. Then Charley played his ace-queen of hearts. West was in with the king and had to lead away from his king of diamonds.

"Cinch hand," remarked Charley. "I was sure that West led into my spades because he held both red kings."

Ask Andy

The dragonfly doesn't act like its namesake

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Mike Sawers, 13, of Oak Hill, W. Va., for his question:

CAN YOU TELL ME ABOUT THE DRAGONFLY?

The word dragon was given as the name for the most terrible monster that could be imagined by our ancient relatives. Dragons were thought to be fire-breathing serpents with huge wings. The dragon was the bad guy on early maps, since he was shown to inhabit the unknown lands. The Chinese, however, took kindly to him and thought of him as a friendly god.

The beautiful dragonfly that we find hovering over our ponds today certainly has none of the sinister qualities of the mythical dragons in the past. Our water insect is strictly a friendly fellow.

Four fragile wings which look like fine gauze are anchored on the dragonfly's back. The large wings shimmer and flash in the sunlight when the insect is in flight.

The dragonfly's long and slender body is colored brown, blue or green. He has compound eyes covering most of his head, and they look like a cluster of beads. He can see objects that are motionless up to six feet away, and moving objects that are up to 18 feet away from him.

Six legs covered with spines help the dragonfly to perch on twigs and limbs. He cannot walk, but he has another good use for his legs: as he flies through the air he holds his legs to form a basket in which he captures insects. Once the prey has been grasped with his legs, he can transfer it to his jaws and eat while flying.

Dragonflies have been clocked at speeds up to 60 miles per hour. They are so swift that they can usually outfly birds or other animals. Some species now extinct had wingspreads if two and a half feet. Today's dragonflies are just a few inches long.

Mating for the dragonfly is done while in flight. The female then drops her eggs from the air into the water or inside the stem of water plants. Young dragonflies, called nymphs, hatch from the eggs within five to 15 days. They have thick bodies, big heads and mouths but no wings. They breathe by means of gills since the first one to five years of their lives are spent as water animals.

Dragonfly nymphs shed their skin about 12 times as they slowly develop into adults. The final molt happens out of water. They shed their skin for the last time and emerge as flying adults with wings.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Scotty Diddams, 9, of Gallup, N.M., for his question:

WHAT DOES YOUR APPENDIX DO FOR YOU?

The appendix is a narrow tube which is attached to your large intestine. The tube is closed at one end. It is located in the lower right part of your abdomen.

In man, the appendix probably has no function. Some scientists believe it lost its function through evolution.

In addition to being found in man, an appendix is also part of the ape's intestines. It is also found in rodents where it actually functions as part of the digestive system.

If your appendix becomes inflamed, you'll have what is called appendicitis. Sometimes the infected appendix will burst and surgery is necessary. In mild cases of appendicitis, surgery isn't necessary since with a doctor's help the inflammation often subsides quickly.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Hts., Illinois 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to boys and girls 7 to 17.

Nationwide TV viewership dips: poll

A. C. Nielsen's nationwide survey of HUTs (homes using television) confirms what this columnist reported almost two months ago — people seem to be watching less television than at similar times in past years.

HUT levels are down for prime time, daytime and Saturday mornings based on Nielsen surveys measuring ratings of television programs and how long television sets are being left on.

The reasons for the apparent slack in nationwide viewership are subject to debate. But one thing is for certain: national book sales and periodical subscriptions are way up over last year, indicating that people are spending more leisure time reading and less time watching the tube.

AS EXPECTED, the television industry is not ready to accept Nielsen's figures at face value and is doing its own studies. Some network officials have speculated that the drop in viewership statistics could be attributed to a quirk in Nielsen's method or computer programming as was the case in 1975 when there were similar dips in viewership.

But, Nielsen is sticking by its method and information. The company insists prime time has not been stable since March, contributing to the current 3 to 4 per cent drop, about 300,000 homes, in viewership over last year.

Daytime television has experienced an even greater decline with an average 8 per cent drop in viewership over last. Saturday morning viewership is down an estimated 5 per cent.

AS THE NEW TELEVISION season progresses, both Nielsen and the networks will have a better grasp on the situation. If the future confirms what Nielsen's statistics project the networks are in for big trouble.

Although the Nielsen statistics are bad news for the television industry, they are an encouraging sign that people are no longer content with visual garbage. When there's nothing on television worth watching, they evidently are willing to give their minds and bodies a chance to breathe and grow through more worthwhile activities.

TV NOTES:

Phil Boyer, station manager of WLS-TV, Channel 7, says he still is searching for a replacement for "A.M. Chicago" talk show host Steve Edwards who leaves Dec. 9 when his contract expires.

Edwards assumes similar talk show duties at KNXT-TV in Los Angeles where WMAQ-TV's anchorman, Maury Povich, recently began working. Also, Van Gordon Sauter, former news director for WBBM-TV in Chicago and current CBS program practices and standards head, soon will begin working at KNXT-TV as the station's vice president and general manager.

Current "A.M. Chicago" cohost Sandi Freeman will be joined by guest hosts once Edwards leaves "but that shouldn't be for more than four weeks because I'm sure we'll find the right person by then," Boyer said.

The guest hosts will be entertainers in town or other celebrities and not persons being auditioned for the hosting job, he said.

"We're looking to replace Steve and not necessarily change the format of the show," said Boyer, who admits the show, which has a strong following, may suffer a temporary ratings loss in the transition.

Boyer said he is not certain whether the new "A.M. Chicago" host will assume Edwards' other duties which include hosting the "Friday Night" talk show and serving as critic-at-large on the station's evening news.

- The latest cancellations of the new season are CBS's "Logan's Run," which airs Feb. 13 for the last time, and "The Fitzpatricks," which ends with its Jan. 10 show. NBC also has cancelled "Man From Atlantis." No replacement shows have been announced. A total of 13 new network shows have been cancelled this season.
- Television viewers were obviously curious about the unveiling of new outfits for Channel 7's news anchors and reporters. The station's newscasts Monday night attracted the highest ratings of the whole November sweep period. The 5 p.m. newscast had a 16 rating compared to its average 9 or 10 and the 6 p.m. newscast attracted a 15.6 rating compared to its average 12 or 13.

"ALL-STAR TRIBUTE TO ELIZABETH TAYLOR"

- Mike Leiberman, formerly of the Newsweek Broadcast Service, signs on as QMAQ-TV's weekend sports anchor Dec. 12, replacing Greg Gumble who continues as a station sports reporter.
- Both ABC and NBC plan to launch weekly news magazine next season in answer to CBS' winning "60 Minutes." The NBC project will be an off-shoot of its current monthly "Weekend" report, produced by Reuven Frank.

The ABC news magazine will be produced by Bob Shanks who is responsible for the success of the network's "Good Morning, America" and other entertainment projects. For that reason the news program promises to be more show than tell.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

"All-Star Tribute to Elizabeth Taylor" at 8 p.m. on Channel 2 faeatures words and praises by former hubby Richard Burton and former leading men including Rock Hudson.

"The Court-Martial of George Armstrong Custer" at 8 p.m. on Channel 5 is a dramatic courtroom account of charges leveled against the Little Bighorn hero.

"ABC News Closeup: The Class that Went to War" at 9 p.m. on Channel 7 is a study of Vietnam War veterans today.

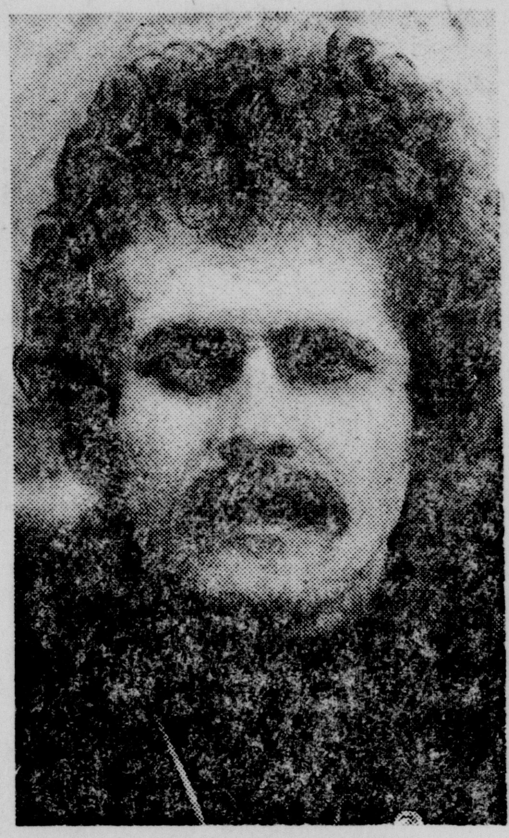
Swiss filmmaker's study on loneliness wins praise

by ELEANOR GUREWITSCH

ZURICH, Switzerland— Seventy-five-year-old shoemaker Konrad Steiner shared an apartment with his wife, and in the first floor of the same building, he had his shoe shop. He had a happy life.

But his pleasant, orderly existence was shattered by two events: first, his wife died; then it was announced that the building in which he lived and worked was scheduled for destruction. The city of Zurich offered him comfortable accommodations in a home for the elderly, but the old shoemaker, who had been proudly independent all his life, declined.

This is the plot of "The Sudden Loneliness of Konrad Steiner," the work of 35-year-old filmmaker Kurt Gloor. The movie, which stars actor Sigrit Steiner, is a big hit with the young people of Zurich, who have been flocking to see it. It also was well received at this year's International Film Festival for Human Rights in Strasbourg, where it won first prize.



Filmmaker Kurt Gloor

"I COULD BECOME an expert on films about the elderly," Gloor says. "I have received many invitations to make films for TV and film companies on this theme. But I don't want to make another film about the elderly right now. I want to continue to make movies about different groups of people that are socially weak.

When Gloor started his own film company in 1969, he chose the inexpensive documentary form as the most appropriate for a new operation. Immediately his films on poor mountain farmers, alcoholics, children and married women attracted attention and prizes. Now "Lonliness," his first commercial film, has attracted even more attention.

Gloor recently returned to Zurich following a three-week visit to New Delhi to attend a film festival. He reports that Indians could not understand "The Sudden Loneliness of Konrad Steiner"; there people are seldom lonely; older people are treated with deference; and, if a shoemaker lost his shop, he would continue to work on the street.

"It was very strange to sit in a film theater with 800 Indians and realize that only a handful really understood my film about Konrad Steiner," Gloor says. "Those who did understand were mostly other foreigners or professional movie experts. For Indians my film was exotic, incomprehensible. The problems we have created for ourselves in our industrialized society are much different than those facing people in India."

GLOOR'S NEXT project is a film for Swiss TV about the hostilities generated when people are compelled to do dull, monontonous, noncreative work over long periods of time. Another film, currently shelved until adequate financing can be drummed up, concerns Swiss child laborers in the 19th century.

Although Gloor has no intention of doing another film about the elderly at this point, in conversation he returns frequently to this theme. He strongly opposes life in homes for the elderly, even in good homes for the elderly. He says it involves a continuous sacrifice of the small, personal pleasures which have made life important for these individuals and requires too much adaptation to the interests of the group.

He says he considers his film about Konrad Steiner a way to encourage older people to fight for their rights. "The plight of old people would look different if only they would and could stand up for themselves. But they have never learned how. I only hope that at least the young people of today, when they grow old, will be better equipped to do so."

Strangely, at the end of "Konrad Steiner," the old shoemaker decides not to fight for his apartment, but with considerable courage packs his bags and heads off happily for Italy.

The game was matchpoint duplicate. The late Charles Lochridge, one of the great dummy players, whose bidding was on the sensational side elected to open five notrump and wound up at six after getting a chance to show his spades.

West opened the four of spades. Charley won, played his ace of clubs, stopped for a second to note that West had discarded the deuce of hearts and continued by leading his deuce of clubs to dummy's 10. East played low to keep Charley from taking four club tricks.

Charley might have tried a red-suit finesse at this point, but he had a better idea. He simply ran off the last five spades to come down to a five-card ending. East came down to two clubs, a heart and two diamonds, West to three hearts and two diamonds.

Now Charley led his queen of clubs. West let another heart go. Then Charley played his ace-queen of hearts. West was in with the king and had to lead away from his king of diamonds.

"Cinch hand," remarked Charley. "I was sure that West led into my spades because he held both red kings."

Ask Andy

The dragonfly doesn't act like its namesake

CAN YOU TELL ME ABOUT THE DRAGONFLY?

The word dragon was given as the name for the most terrible monster that could be imagined by our ancient relatives. Dragons were thought to be fire-breathing serpents with huge wings. The dragon was the bad guy on early maps, since he was shown to inhabit the unknown lands. The Chinese, however, took kindly to him and thought of him as a friendly god.

The beautiful dragonfly that we find hovering over our ponds today certainly has none of the sinister qualities of the mythical dragons in the past. Our water insect is strictly a friendly fellow.

Four fragile wings which look like fine gauze are anchored on the dragonfly's back. The large wings shimmer and flash in the sunlight when the insect is in flight.

The dragonfly's long and slender body is colored brown, blue or green. He has compound eyes covering most of his head, and they look like a cluster of beads. He can see objects that are motionless up to six feet away, and moving objects that are up to 18 feet away from him.

Six legs covered with spines help the dragonfly to perch on twigs and limbs. He cannot walk, but he has another good use for his legs: as he flies through the air he holds his legs to form a basket in which he captures insects. Once the prey has been grasped with his legs, he can transfer it to his jaws and eat while flying.

Dragonflies have been clocked at speeds up to 60 miles per hour. They are so swift that they can usually outfly birds or other animals. Some species now extinct had wingspreads if two and a half feet. Today's dragonflies are just a few inches long.

Mating for the dragonfly is done while in flight. The female then drops her eggs from the air into the water or inside the stem of water plants. Young dragonflies, called nymphs, hatch from the eggs within five to 15 days. They have thick bodies, big heads and mouths but no wings. They breathe by means of gills since the first one to five years of their lives are spent as water animals.

Dragonfly nymphs shed their skin about 12 times as they slowly develop into adults. The final molt happens out of water. They shed their skin for the last time and emerge as flying adults with wings.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Scotty Diddams, 9, of Gallup, N.M., for his question:

WHAT DOES YOUR APPENDIX DO FOR YOU?

The appendix is a narrow tube which is attached to your large intestine. The tube is closed at one end. It is located in the lower right part of your abdomen.

In man, the appendix probably has no function. Some scientists believe it lost its function through evolution.

In addition to being found in man, an appendix is also part of the ape's intestines. It is also found in rodents where it actually functions as part of the digestive system.

If your appendix becomes inflamed, you'll have what is called appendicitis. Sometimes the infected appendix will burst and surgery is necessary. In mild cases of appendicitis, surgery isn't necessary since with a doctor's help the inflammation often subsides quickly.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Hts., Illinois 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to boys and girls 7 to 17.

'Most dangerous' research done by health unit

by PETER VANDEVANTER

FREDERICK, Md. (UPI) — On a military facility nestled in the rolling Blue Ridge Piedmont, the National Institute of Health has built the nation's safest laboratory for what many believe to be the most dangerous modern research.

The purpose of the early research — in a yellow, three-story building at Fort Detrick — is to determine just how dangerous it will be for scientists to produce unknown manmade organisms.

Known to scientists as recombinant DNA (deoxyribuonucleic acid) research, the work at Fort Detrick, about 40 miles from Washington, involves the chemical combining of chromosomes.

DR. WILLIAM PAYNE, scientific coordinator at Fort Detrick, said the first planned research is not considered hazardous and will be used as a guide to determine if further research on the subject will be conducted.

"The NIH safety guidelines are very strict and, for the time being, prohibit recombinant DNA research with anything really dangerous," he said.

"We will be working with a cancer that has never infected people and is for all intents and purposes harmless to mice."

But Ferdinand Mack, who has filed suit to stop the laboratory work, contends:

"THE RESEARCH has the potential of accidentally producing a disease that would make the bubonic plague look like a bad head cold."

The NIH disagrees with Mack's assessment, but still the federal institution has said the safest laboratory conceivable must be built for the research because of the potential danger.

The laboratory is designated P-4, the highest possible safety classification, and will be the only such working facility in the nation.

DNA is a long and complex molecule, a string of chemical beads. Individual beads are called genes and these are the instructions that the organism follows in making new bits and pieces for itself and for the creation of progeny.

RECOMBINANT DNA molecules consist of rearranged and recoupled beads of different organisms' DNAs. They are joined together in a laboratory test tube and have the capacity to infect and multiply in a host organism.

The research has been done since 1972 with living organisms in the laboratory, but now the NIH wants to extend the research to the combination of cancerous and noncancerous tissues placed in a live rat.

The hereditary factors of the virus Polyoma, which causes cancer in some mice, will be combined with bacteria from a mouse's intestine and the combination implanted in test mice to see if they develop cancer.

"The reason for the test is to find out exactly what kind of risk is associated with recombinant DNA research," said Dr. Malcom Martin, who will conduct the experiment.

"IT'S A MODEL to mimick the kind of scenario that critics of recombinant DNA foresee."

Martin said the scenario he referred to described the accidental oral ingestion, such as by a laboratory attendant, of a recombinant DNA organism that would come to thrive in the attendant and then infect others.

"We think the scenario is science fiction," he said. "Basically, we are asking if the presence of a dangerous gene in an intestinal bacteria will pose any hazard for the susceptible animal?

"We don't think so. We think the animal will just digest it by breaking it apart."

MARTIN SAID any recombinant DNA organism could not come to live in a person or any other animal simply by being swallowed or breathed.

The federal institute has chosen a former World War II chemical warfare test lab for renovation under present specifications for the DNA research.

There are blueprints for the construction of two other buildings which will house at least five other P-4 labs costing nearly $25 million.

The first lab should be ready for use this August, according to Everett Hanel, the safety officer for the lab. Construction of the other labs should begin in the fall for completion in another year.

THE ACTUAL beginning of the laboratory work depends on the outcome of Mack's suit, but Hanel said he expects the first two NIH scientists to put on their laboratory gloves for work this fall.

"I filed suit on behalf of my two sons, because although they can build the most airtight lab in the world they can't plan for human error," Mack said.

"One of those fabricated organisms could get out and feed in the area for years before it launches its disease and we would never know.

"The federal people look at me and say 'What do you want us to do, build the lab in a desert or on the moon?' and I say 'Yes, exactly.' Instead they are building it within 10 miles of the Potomac River which is the main water source for the Washington metropolitan area."

Controversial defoliant cremated, sprinkled at sea

by ROBERT C. MILLER

HONOLULU (UPI) — Sprinkled over the deep waters of the central Pacific are perhaps the world's most expensive carbon particles.

The particles were created by the cremation of $70 million worth of the defoliant "herbicide orange," which was produced seven years ago to help fight the war in Vietnam.

At an admitted cost of $5 million and after seven years of bureaucratic bickering, the Air Force finally rid the world of what had started out as a harmless weed killer and became, in the minds of many, a horror fluid capable of producing birth defects.

THE FURNACES of the Dutch ship Vulcanus, heated to 2,732 degrees, incinerated the 2,290,000 gallons into harmless gaseous particles about 1,000 miles west of Honolulu.

The drums of herbicide orange had been stored at Gulfport, Miss., and at Johnston Island in the central Pacific during the years it took to find a satisfactory way of disposing of the defoliant.

Aerial spraying by specially modified Air Force tankers had dumped more than 11 million gallons of the weed killer on the lush Vietnamese jungles during the seven years it was used to wipe out ground cover that the Viet Cong might use for ambushes.

Then, after South Vietnamese newspapers blamed the spraying for increased birth defects, it took the Air Force seven more years to satisfactorily dispose of it. Not only was it suddenly dangerous to man, but also to fish and bird life.

FOR 30 YEARS, the weed killer had been sold commercially across hardware counters and stored in barns from Maine to Oregon. Suddenly, it became such a threat that the 2½-mile railroad track linking the Gulfport storage area with the dock had to be rebuilt before authorities would allow the 860,000 gallons to be moved.

"And the cars were allowed to move only at a speed of 2½ miles an hour to prevent any derailment," said Col. Stanley A. Morrow, director of the disposal operation.

Morrow estimated $5 million was spent during the seven years it took to finally find and carry out a government-approved method of destroying the 45 pounds of dangerous TCDD (tetrachlorodibenzo-p-dioxin) contained in the herbicide orange.

Pentagon sources close to the project said the total costs were "far more" than $5 million, and claimed the destroyed herbicide orange had a value of more than $70 million on the commercial market and Washington found a currently available and economically sound way for the toxic dioxin to be removed by filtering.

MORROW SAID the Air Force had considered offers by a chemical company to recycle the herbicide, but said the "environmental apprehension" associated with the disposal of the toxic-saturated filters killed the project.

Buried somewhere in the classified files of the Pentagon is the origin of "Ranch Hand," the code name given in 1963 to the defoliation project in Vietnam.

The theory, which in hindsight seems ludicrous, was that by defoliating all the jungle and vegetation that paralleled the roads and highways and surrounded the military installations, the Viet Cong would be deprived of cover from which to launch ambushes.

Transport aircraft were converted to tankers and for the next seven years the low-flying planes crisscrossed Vietnam, spraying their millions of gallons of herbicide orange on the landscape, and consequently, Vietnamese and Americans.

ON ONE OF THE first flights in 1964, this reporter asked the crew what would prevent ambushes from the edges of the defoliated areas.

"Don't ask me," answered the pilot. "I just work here."

The first note of apprehension came from Saigon newspapers in June and July of 1969, when they reported a big increase in birth defects among persons allegedly living in defoliated areas.

Then Bionetics Research Laboratories of Litton Industries said their research showed that mice and rats treated during early pregnancies with large doses of the chemical produced birth-defective offpsring.

THESE WELL-PUBLICIZED findings caused Washington to suspend certain uses of it within the United States, and the Pentagon subsequently ordered the end of "Operation Ranch Hand."

"To our knowledge," said Morrow, "there has never been a documented case of human intoxification traced to herbicide orange during Ranch Hand, although there were thousands of American servicemen working directly with the herbicide, frequently with little or no precautionary measures taken. Many were stripped to the waist while handling the herbicide, yet we have no record of any ill effects to any of these people."

Following the warnings of its hazards, nobody was allowed to move the 860,000 gallons awaiting shipment to Vietnam at Gulfport, and nobody wanted the 1,430,000 gallons in Vietnam returned to the United States.

Amidst tight security and extreme safety precautions, the Vietnamese supply finally was shipped to Johnston Island, where increased safeguards were introduced, including restrictions on women staying on the island.

DURING THE NEXT four years, the various state and national environmental agencies competed to see which could denounce herbicide orange the loudest.

A proposal to burn the Gulfport supply at Deer Park, Tex., nearly brought out the Texas Rangers. When Suget, Ill., was suggested as another incineration site, the Air Force was engulfted with protests.

When a commercial company proved in a pilot plant that herbicide orange could be recycled at a profit of millions, the deal was blocked by environmentalists.

Preparations were made to bury the toxic-saturated filters from the pilot program in West Covina, Calif., until California's Health Dept. heard about it and vetoed the proposal.

The canisters were moved to Oregon, but when word leaked out that the unwanted filters were to be buried in Oregon's soil, state authorities ordered them removed. The Air Force had to set up a special flight to fly the canisters nonstop from Oregon to Johnston Island.

Finally this spring, the Air Force's Dr. Billy Welch told an Environmental Protection Agency hearing in Washington that the Dutch incinerator ship Vulcanus would pick up the Gulfport supply, take it 220 miles west of Johnston Island and incinerate it. Then the Vulcanus would incinerate the 1,430,000 gallons stored at Johnston.

The long-sought permit was finally given, and the Vulcanus was hired at a cost of $14,500 a day when she is in port and $15,500 a day while at sea.

'Most dangerous' research done by health unit

by PETER VANDEVANTER

FREDERICK, Md. (UPI) — On a military facility nestled in the rolling Blue Ridge Piedmont, the National Institute of Health has built the nation's safest laboratory for what many believe to be the most dangerous modern research.

The purpose of the early research — in a yellow, three-story building at Fort Detrick — is to determine just how dangerous it will be for scientists to produce unknown manmade organisms.

Known to scientists as recombinant DNA (deoxyribuonucleic acid) research, the work at Fort Detrick, about 40 miles from Washington, involves the chemical combining of chromosomes.

DR. WILLIAM PAYNE, scientific coordinator at Fort Detrick, said the first planned research is not considered hazardous and will be used as a guide to determine if further research on the subject will be conducted.

"The NIH safety guidelines are very strict and, for the time being, prohibit recombinant DNA research with anything really dangerous," he said.

"We will be working with a cancer that has never infected people and is for all intents and purposes harmless to mice."

But Ferdinand Mack, who has filed suit to stop the laboratory work, contends:

"THE RESEARCH has the potential of accidentally producing a disease that would make the bubonic plague look like a bad head cold."

The NIH disagrees with Mack's assessment, but still the federal institution has said the safest laboratory conceivable must be built for the research because of the potential danger.

The laboratory is designated P-4, the highest possible safety classification, and will be the only such working facility in the nation.

DNA is a long and complex molecule, a string of chemical beads. Individual beads are called genes and these are the instructions that the organism follows in making new bits and pieces for itself and for the creation of progeny.

RECOMBINANT DNA molecules consist of rearranged and recoupled beads of different organisms' DNAs. They are joined together in a laboratory test tube and have the capacity to infect and multiply in a host organism.

The research has been done since 1972 with living organisms in the laboratory, but now the NIH wants to extend the research to the combination of cancerous and noncancerous tissues placed in a live rat.

The hereditary factors of the virus Polyoma, which causes cancer in some mice, will be combined with bacteria from a mouse's intestine and the combination implanted in test mice to see if they develop cancer.

"The reason for the test is to find out exactly what kind of risk is associated with recombinant DNA research," said Dr. Malcom Martin, who will conduct the experiment.

"IT'S A MODEL to mimick the kind of scenario that critics of recombinant DNA foresee."

Martin said the scenario he referred to described the accidental oral ingestion, such as by a laboratory attendant, of a recombinant DNA organism that would come to thrive in the attendant and then infect others.

"We think the scenario is science fiction," he said. "Basically, we are asking if the presence of a dangerous gene in an intestinal bacteria will pose any hazard for the susceptible animal?

"We don't think so. We think the animal will just digest it by breaking it apart."

MARTIN SAID any recombinant DNA organism could not come to live in a person or any other animal simply by being swallowed or breathed.

The federal institute has chosen a former World War II chemical warfare test lab for renovation under present specifications for the DNA research.

There are blueprints for the construction of two other buildings which will house at least five other P-4 labs costing nearly $25 million.

The first lab should be ready for use this August, according to Everett Hanel, the safety officer for the lab. Construction of the other labs should begin in the fall for completion in another year.

THE ACTUAL beginning of the laboratory work depends on the outcome of Mack's suit, but Hanel said he expects the first two NIH scientists to put on their laboratory gloves for work this fall.

"I filed suit on behalf of my two sons, because although they can build the most airtight lab in the world they can't plan for human error," Mack said.

"One of those fabricated organisms could get out and feed in the area for years before it launches its disease and we would never know.

"The federal people look at me and say 'What do you want us to do, build the lab in a desert or on the moon?' and I say 'Yes, exactly.' Instead they are building it within 10 miles of the Potomac River which is the main water source for the Washington metropolitan area."

Controversial defoliant cremated, sprinkled at sea

by ROBERT C. MILLER

HONOLULU (UPI) — Sprinkled over the deep waters of the central Pacific are perhaps the world's most expensive carbon particles.

The particles were created by the cremation of $70 million worth of the defoliant "herbicide orange," which was produced seven years ago to help fight the war in Vietnam.

At an admitted cost of $5 million and after seven years of bureaucratic bickering, the Air Force finally rid the world of what had started out as a harmless weed killer and became, in the minds of many, a horror fluid capable of producing birth defects.

THE FURNACES of the Dutch ship Vulcanus, heated to 2,732 degrees, incinerated the 2,290,000 gallons into harmless gaseous particles about 1,000 miles west of Honolulu.

The drums of herbicide orange had been stored at Gulfport, Miss., and at Johnston Island in the central Pacific during the years it took to find a satisfactory way of disposing of the defoliant.

Aerial spraying by specially modified Air Force tankers had dumped more than 11 million gallons of the weed killer on the lush Vietnamese jungles during the seven years it was used to wipe out ground cover that the Viet Cong might use for ambushes.

Then, after South Vietnamese newspapers blamed the spraying for increased birth defects, it took the Air Force seven more years to satisfactorily dispose of it. Not only was it suddenly dangerous to man, but also to fish and bird life.

FOR 30 YEARS, the weed killer had been sold commercially across hardware counters and stored in barns from Maine to Oregon. Suddenly, it became such a threat that the 2½-mile railroad track linking the Gulfport storage area with the dock had to be rebuilt before authorities would allow the 860,000 gallons to be moved.

"And the cars were allowed to move only at a speed of 2½ miles an hour to prevent any derailment," said Col. Stanley A. Morrow, director of the disposal operation.

Morrow estimated $5 million was spent during the seven years it took to finally find and carry out a government-approved method of destroying the 45 pounds of dangerous TCDD (tetrachlorodibenzo-p-dioxin) contained in the herbicide orange.

Pentagon sources close to the project said the total costs were "far more" than $5 million, and claimed the destroyed herbicide orange had a value of more than $70 million on the commercial market and Washington found a currently available and economically sound way for the toxic dioxin to be removed by filtering.

MORROW SAID the Air Force had considered offers by a chemical company to recycle the herbicide, but said the "environmental apprehension" associated with the disposal of the toxic-saturated filters killed the project.

Buried somewhere in the classified files of the Pentagon is the origin of "Ranch Hand," the code name given in 1963 to the defoliation project in Vietnam.

The theory, which in hindsight seems ludicrous, was that by defoliating all the jungle and vegetation that paralleled the roads and highways and surrounded the military installations, the Viet Cong would be deprived of cover from which to launch ambushes.

Transport aircraft were converted to tankers and for the next seven years the low-flying planes crisscrossed Vietnam, spraying their millions of gallons of herbicide orange on the landscape, and consequently, Vietnamese and Americans.

ON ONE OF THE first flights in 1964, this reporter asked the crew what would prevent ambushes from the edges of the defoliated areas.

"Don't ask me," answered the pilot. "I just work here."

The first note of apprehension came from Saigon newspapers in June and July of 1969, when they reported a big increase in birth defects among persons allegedly living in defoliated areas.

Then Bionetics Research Laboratories of Litton Industries said their research showed that mice and rats treated during early pregnancies with large doses of the chemical produced birth-defective offpsring.

THESE WELL-PUBLICIZED findings caused Washington to suspend certain uses of it within the United States, and the Pentagon subsequently ordered the end of "Operation Ranch Hand."

"To our knowledge," said Morrow, "there has never been a documented case of human intoxification traced to herbicide orange during Ranch Hand, although there were thousands of American servicemen working directly with the herbicide, frequently with little or no precautionary measures taken. Many were stripped to the waist while handling the herbicide, yet we have no record of any ill effects to any of these people."

Following the warnings of its hazards, nobody was allowed to move the 860,000 gallons awaiting shipment to Vietnam at Gulfport, and nobody wanted the 1,430,000 gallons in Vietnam returned to the United States.

Amidst tight security and extreme safety precautions, the Vietnamese supply finally was shipped to Johnston Island, where increased safeguards were introduced, including restrictions on women staying on the island.

DURING THE NEXT four years, the various state and national environmental agencies competed to see which could denounce herbicide orange the loudest.

A proposal to burn the Gulfport supply at Deer Park, Tex., nearly brought out the Texas Rangers. When Suget, Ill., was suggested as another incineration site, the Air Force was engulfted with protests.

When a commercial company proved in a pilot plant that herbicide orange could be recycled at a profit of millions, the deal was blocked by environmentalists.

Preparations were made to bury the toxic-saturated filters from the pilot program in West Covina, Calif., until California's Health Dept. heard about it and vetoed the proposal.

The canisters were moved to Oregon, but when word leaked out that the unwanted filters were to be buried in Oregon's soil, state authorities ordered them removed. The Air Force had to set up a special flight to fly the canisters nonstop from Oregon to Johnston Island.

Finally this spring, the Air Force's Dr. Billy Welch told an Environmental Protection Agency hearing in Washington that the Dutch incinerator ship Vulcanus would pick up the Gulfport supply, take it 220 miles west of Johnston Island and incinerate it. Then the Vulcanus would incinerate the 1,430,000 gallons stored at Johnston.

The long-sought permit was finally given, and the Vulcanus was hired at a cost of $14,500 a day when she is in port and $15,500 a day while at sea.

T. M. LONERGAN
Vice-president/
Police Pension Fund

Published in Rolling Meadows Herald Nov. 30, Dec. 1, 2, 1977.

Nobody understands us.

Right now, no matter where you are, there's a United Way agency service close at hand. In case you need a hand.

But what kind of agency? That's hard to say, since there are more than 37,000 different United Way agencies. And that's what makes United Way a little hard to understand.

So we're going to explain. And we'll keep it simple.

We're trying to ease people's pain and misery. In all its forms wherever we find it. And no matter who we find it in.

And in one way or another, all of those 37,000 human service agencies are set up to do just that. They all operate at the local level to provide important health and social services to anyone who needs them.

Help with the problems of drug abuse, family stress and alcoholism.

Help during disaster and civil emergencies.

And mental health programs by the hundreds.

Not to mention care for retarded children. Vocational training, rehabilitation and placement for adults who want to work. And services for the aged and chronically ill.

The list goes on and on. And chances are if you've got a special charitable interest, it's one of our interests, too. That's nice to know.

It's also nice to know that the help United Way agencies give is available to anyone, regardless of race, creed or color. Or income.

So please, give us as much help as you can. It'll give you a good feeling.

And who knows? Some day, you could get back a lot more than you give.

United Way
Thanks to you . . . it works . . . for ALL OF US.

enjoy the holiday season at Wheeling Bank

Take a break from the hectic pace of Christmas season. Make a leisurely stop at the bank. Take a load off your feet. We'll be glad to have you.

While you're here, have your child drop a coupon in our drawing box. He (or she) could win a giant stocking full of toys. If you've got some Christmas bonus money to spare, try saving it. If it's as much as $300, we'll give you a nice blanket . . . a cookbook . . . a fire extinguisher. Merry Christmas. Relax. Enjoy.

T. M. LONERGAN
Vice-president/
Police Pension Fund

Published in Rolling Meadows Herald Nov. 30, Dec. 1, 2, 1977.

Nobody understands us.

Right now, no matter where you are, there's a United Way agency service close at hand. In case you need a hand.

But what kind of agency? That's hard to say, since there are more than 37,000 different United Way agencies. And that's what makes United Way a little hard to understand.

So we're going to explain. And we'll keep it simple.

We're trying to ease people's pain and misery. In all its forms wherever we find it. And no matter who we find it in.

And in one way or another, all of those 37,000 human service agencies are set up to do just that. They all operate at the local level to provide important health and social services to anyone who needs them.

Help with the problems of drug abuse, family stress and alcoholism.

Help with adoptions and child day care.

Help during disaster and civil emergencies.

And mental health programs by the hundreds.

Not to mention care for retarded children. Vocational training, rehabilitation and placement for adults who want to work. And services for the aged and chronically ill.

The list goes on and on. And chances are if you've got a special charitable interest, it's one of our interests, too. That's nice to know.

It's also nice to know that the help United Way agencies give is available to anyone, regardless of race, creed or color. Or income.

So please, give us as much help as you can. It'll give you a good feeling.

And who knows? Some day, you could get back a lot more than you give.

United Way
Thanks to you . . . it works . . . for ALL OF US.

enjoy the holiday season at Wheeling Bank

Take a break from the hectic pace of Christmas season. Make a leisurely stop at the bank. Take a load off your feet. We'll be glad to have you.

While you're here, have your child drop a coupon in our drawing box. He (or she) could win a giant stocking full of toys. If you've got some Christmas bonus money to spare, try saving it. If it's as much as $300, we'll give you a nice blanket . . . a cookbook . . . a fire extinguisher. Merry Christmas. Relax. Enjoy.
